

AS IN THE DAYS OF NOAH....

It's interesting that it's only Noah that most remember as the main character involved when Yahuah flooded the earth and of course most Christians don't really know the why and the reason of what it was other than the "people" were debased and had lost all moral integrity. In reality, perhaps it would be better said "As in the days of Jared/Yared", Enoch's father. Yared was the first to spot as they were called "The Watchers", those angels who had left their First Estate (Jude 1:6) to bring evil and debauchery to the earth in the form of changing the human DNA. But I'm getting ahead of myself and this will all be addressed later as this progresses.

I've always been a fan of horror and science fiction and when I found Yahuah, I realized just what those genres really were. It has given me the opportunity to really understand that there are NO UFO's, little grey men, green men or whatever you want to think in terms of extra-terrestrial life, that we continue to try and reach/contact non-human life. What I have found is that, all of this is nothing more than "demons". Shall we begin!!!

Genesis 6:1

וַיְהִי כִּי־הִתְחַל הָאָדָם לָרֹב עַל־פְּנֵי הָאֲדָמָה וּבָנוֹת יָלְדוּ לָהֶם׃ And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground , daughters were born to them. | LEB
EHRIOTLEB | יָלְדוּ לָהֶם׃

And it came to pass, occur, take place that, when humankind, a class created by Yahuah without regard to sex, with a focus as a class of creature, distinct from animals, plant or even spiritual beings began to increase, become numerous, daughters were born.

Genesis 6:2

וַיִּרְאוּ בְנֵי-הָאֱלֹהִים אֶת-בָּנוֹת הָאָדָם כִּי טֹבֹת
הָיָה וַיִּקְחוּ לָהֶם נָשִׁים מִכָּל אֲשֶׁר בָּחָרוּ: | LEB
EHRIOTLEB

Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. | LEB

Then the sons of Yahuah saw the daughters of humankind, beautiful, having good value and pleasing. They took, seized, captured, stole and took possession of wives from all they chose, examined, preferred, to make complete.

Whenever I've read these verses, I was always under the impression that these women "gladly" went with the sons of Yahuah. I mean after all, I'm sure they had "the world" to offer them, but then again maybe not, since 1947, the first real "world" pronouncement of a UFO and from there began a steady stream of alien abductions. If you've read anything about alien abductions, you will know that not any one willingly went. That puts a whole new spin on things!

With the advent of technology, which as I understand new technology pops up every 18 months, meaning that new phone you bought will be outdated soon, or anything that has a techno-bent to it. Nano-technology has made everything so tiny; wonder where that theological argument of "how many angels can dance on the head of a pin" will be once that technology proves this really can happen. They have 3D printers that make guns, dresses, just about anything that you want, and they also have what they call nano-assemblers, so in the not so far future, or more correctly already here, these are what will be creating everything. The frightening part is these scientists are working to make these things "self-replicating". There's an excellent book called "Prey" by Michael Crichton, who was ahead of his time, which explains how this works and not. It is this technology that is being used to change medicine, kind of like the movie "Fantastic Voyage" but you won't need to shrink a ship down and inject them into the body, these things will be "useful" for all kinds of things and need only to be injected!!!

The problem is we are "doomed to repeat the past", as in the days of Noah/Enoch/Yared - we too have to contend with those that want to change our DNA and to me that is the "Mark of the Beast", it's that subtle whisper of the adversary promising immortality!!!

ALIENS—OR—DEMONS?

Eze18:4 Behold, all souls are Mine; the soul of the father as well as the soul of the son is Mine. The soul who sins will die.

Whitley Strieber, famous alien abductee and ufology author wrote what they call a “fact/fiction” book called “Majestic”. A fact/fiction book uses facts to build a story which may be all true, but then again will have some “story” in it to enhance whatever the idea is. His book centers around a government group called The Majestic 12 or MJ12, this was invented to keep the secrets of Roswell, which we will be discussing, but what I want to draw your attention to is this sentence from “Majestic”.

Pg. 303 - “...that the visitors are like farmers, and they are harvesting souls.”

Does that sound like what “aliens” do? We’ve been led to believe that they are either friendly or want to take over our world. That statement sounds more like what the “adversary” would do and as the Scripture from Ezekiel says, “the soul that sins will die”, who better to play that game in working to take humankind from Yahuah? Aliens or shatan? So it would appear that ET’s, aliens or visitors are more akin to demons than another life form from other worlds.

We’ve all heard of the Roswell Incident, which happened in July of 1947. Originally the news reported that a flying saucer had crashed, but once the military got involved, they wanted it changed to a weather balloon and in doing so made people think that either the farmer was crazy or that anyone else who might have seen the wreckage would not be credible, but then again we know that governments are masters of disinformation!

From Dr. Robert M. Wood and Nick Redfern’s book, “Alien Viruses” are the following excerpts:

In the summer of 1947:

Vern & Jean Malatais said their friend Grady Barnett, a field engineer attached to the Soil Conservation Services had guardedly informed them he stumbled upon the remains of an unusual vehicle in New Mexico's Plain of San Augustin. It looked like a kind of disk, like dirty stainless steel. Around the craft were a number of dead bodies of unusual nature, all were short, with oversized baldheads and oddly spaced eyes.

Sergeant Melvin E. Brown said they looked Asian, had larger heads and no hair, they looked a yellowy color.

Frankie Rowe's dad witnessed the crash and strange bodies as well as one solitary being who survived the impact. Was about the size of a 10 year old child, didn't have any hair and it seemed scared and lost.

Glenn Dennis, a mortician said a friend of his who did the autopsy described the bodies: hands had little tiny suction cups on the inside of the fingers; head large, eyes set-in; skulls soft like a new-born baby's; they were pliable; the ears instead of one canal had two, no lobes, just a little flap over each canal; the mouths were just very small slits; their face and nose were concave.

A nurse who worked at Los Alamos said from 1945-1947 bodies were being flown in and out. She thought they may have been coming from Japan, they were small bodies with deformed heads and limbs and their eyes were abnormally big.

A witness also said that a retrieved saucer with artifacts exhibited "Paleo-Hebrew inscriptions".

A lot more different than "little green" men, but as we know without the help of something else, man would not have the ability to create these exotic aircrafts or even beings for that matter. As in the days of Enoch when the watchers had fallen and given away all the secrets, so too it happens again.

From Whitley Strieber's "Majestic" pg. 215 "It takes many generations to create the gold of a new species out of the clay of the old."

Let's take a look at Unit 731.

UNIT 731 AND FACTORIES OF DEATH

The top photo is known as the China Alien while the other is supposedly from Roswell the incident in 1947. They may be real, but the Roswell is not an actual photograph but a model, oddly though it fits with the description in the previous chapter, looking far more Asian than alien.

Set up as a top-secret biological and chemical weapons facility during the Second Sino-Japanese War and World War Two, Unit 731 has been referred to as the Asian Auschwitz. Through the practice of lethal human experimentation, the unit is thought to have been responsible for the death of up to 200,000 civilians and military personnel – the vast majority Chinese and Korean nationals, but also South East Asians, Pacific Islanders and Allied POWs. In the sprawling six kilometer-square complex in the city of Harbin (now part of Northeast China) those behind the sickening 'research' developed some of the most cruel and sadistic experiments ever to be conducted on human victims. These included vivisection, amputations, germ warfare tests, explosive weapons testing, and much more.

Written by: Michele Collet

Unit 731 is the most famous of the “Factories of Death” also a book by Sheldon H. Harris – from his book:

Japanese scientists had engaged in research on biological and chemical weapons throughout the region from the moment Japan occupied all of Manchuria in 1931 and 1932 until its surrender in August 1945. The scientists, with the enthusiastic support of the highest government leaders erected secret bases throughout the territory. Here scientists could experiment freely on animals and human subjects without influence from any authority. During its occupation, Japan in effect turned Manchuria into one gigantic biological and chemical warfare laboratory.

And just like the Nazi scientists who were given immunity from war crime prosecution by the American government with Project Paperclip, so too were the main players involved in the outcome of their experiments in Manchuria.

Lt. Col Robert McQuail of Army Intelligence (oxymoron), in a summary prepared for his office in early Jan 1947 notes: A confidential informant claims that Gen/Dr. Shiro Ishii, who was the leading authority and in charge of all the labs, had his assistants inject bubonic plague bacilli into the bodies of some American POW's in Mukden, Manchuria, as an experiment. Instead of being horrified he said, “naturally, the results of these experiments are of the highest intelligence value.”

Intelligence value, not war crimes would be the dominant factor in all discussions concerning the Japanese biological weapons experts.

Make note that Japan is still doing experiments during our time that lead one to wonder about their ethics and moral values, but then again as scientific knowledge appears to take precedence over human life and value this would only make sense. Japan has relaxed its ban on chimeric embryo experiments, meaning its ok to mix human and animal DNA together.

Here's just a small example, but will be studied further in the "trans-humanism" chapter of what is going on in Japan:

Infant rats are being decapitated and their heads grafted onto the thighs of adults by researchers in Japan.

If kept cool while the blood flow is stopped, a transplanted brain can develop as normal for at least three weeks, and the mouth of the head will move, as if it is trying to drink milk, the team reports.

The grafted heads could be "excellent models" for investigating brain function in human babies after periods of no blood flow, known as ischemia, they claim.

"Our main purpose is to investigate how the transplanted brain can develop and maintain function after prolonged total brain ischemia," researcher Nobufumi Kawai, at the Jichi Medical School in Tochigi, told New Scientist. "And we tried to investigate the effect of lowering the temperature of the brain during the grafting."

My question is; what adults would be allowing this? The point of this is to show that in addition to the biological and chemical experiments going on, so too would have been experiments like what is happening today. Splicing foreign DNA into people is not anything new in our current time, harkening back to the days of Yared/Enoch and Noah.

What is now being discussed is that those Roswell aliens are nothing more than people who have been enhanced physically or due to their physical disabilities experimented with or to create something else.

All of the following is from Nick Redfern's book: Body Snatchers in the Desert, what I'm putting down here is but a small portion of the book, which is a fascinating read and details many more things, what I've chosen relates to this chapter's subject.

Mr. Redfern interviewed a woman who worked at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory which is at the base of the Appalachian Mountains in Tennessee. This place back in the 40's where the US was working on the atomic bomb, separated uranium-235 from uranium-238.

Uranium found in nature consists largely of two isotopes, U-235 and U-238. The production of energy in nuclear reactors is from the 'fission' or splitting of the U-235 atoms, a process which releases energy in the form of heat. U-235 is the main fissile isotope of uranium.

Natural uranium contains 0.7% of the U-235 isotope. The remaining 99.3% is mostly the U-238 isotope which does not contribute directly to the fission process (though it does so indirectly by the formation of fissile isotopes of plutonium). Isotope separation is a physical process to concentrate ('enrich') one isotope relative to others. Most reactors are Light Water Reactors (of two types - PWR and BWR) and require uranium to be enriched from 0.7% to 3% to 5% U-235 in their fuel.

It was her duty to assist in research that was being conducted at the time to determine the effects of radiation and high-altitude exposure on the human body. Much of the research was related to experiments that had been undertaken both at Oak Ridge and Los Alamos after 1946 and that specifically centered upon the military's then-fledgling plans to build and fly a nuclear-powered, prototype aircraft. They needed to know what the possible effects that such a power source might have on the physical health of the aircraft's crew when matters progressed to actual test plans.

On three occasions from May to August 1947 (Roswell incident happened in July of 1947), horrible-looking bodies were brought to Clinton (this was the original name of Oak Ridge) in trucks. The bodies arrived in a "preserved" condition and in three batches of five. She added that she personally viewed three of the bodies and had seen black and white photographs of several more.

She stated that all of the bodies were "Oriental" and around five feet in height. Some looked like normal Japanese people, but injured as if from an accident, and several exhibited signs of severe physical handicaps - such as oversized heads and malformed faces and hands; while others had slightly larger and protruding eyes. She continues, those bodies, the Roswell bodies, they weren't aliens. The government could care less about stories of alien bodies found at Roswell - except to hide the truth. Those bodies were Japanese people.

In the 40's, research into "atomic issues" was undertaken at Oak Ridge, Los Alamos, White Sands Proving Ground, and the University of Chicago (Chicago, nothing good ever comes out of there). These people, these bodies were seen as expendable and were used in tests and experiments.

She learned at Oak Ridge the government had first acquired some of the people and bodies in early 1945 after a battle between American and Japanese troops on a small island in the Pacific. (I've tried to nail down which island this would have been, but could find nothing concrete since there were battles on Saipan Island, Guam, Okinawa and Dublon Island. Of course I can't imagine there would be as that would look bad for the government).

After the Japanese unit had been overrun, a small medical laboratory where Japanese doctors and scientists conducted all manner of atrocities on both physically and mentally handicapped people were discovered on the island.

For the most part the surviving people of the experiments, although severely traumatized and scarred, "looked normal". But there were some that though human, did not. Some were obviously the result of inbreeding and some showed characteristics of larger heads, progeria or having six-fingers - all kinds of syndromes.

She also states that there were those working on some strange aircraft ideas at Oak Ridge and White Sands, and the two crossed paths and merged to an extent.

Confirming the story of the woman from Oak Ridge, was a British man by the name of Levine who verified after the Japanese surrendered a number of these bodies and a "quantity" of still living people were found in the remains of Unit 731 facilities (bodies were also found in German laboratories) by allied soldiers.

Mr. Levine confirmed the fact that a number of these people were dwarves, handicapped, with enlarged heads, and were used in a variety of experiments in the New Mexico desert that involved everything from biological warfare to high-altitude tests linked with prototype aircraft developed in the immediate postwar era. This is where, according to Levine, the stories of alien bodies recovered from crashed UFO's had their origins.

It is being said that the crash in Roswell was indeed a weather balloon. We for the most part have a concept of a balloon that doesn't remotely look like what the governments uses. Japan for example had been experimenting with high-altitude balloons that could carry bombs to the west. As a matter of fact in Body Snatchers of the Desert, it describes how this was carried out and that about 1000 of these types of bombs made it to the West Coast and there were some fatal consequences. The Japanese wanted to also use them to carry biological weapons, i.e. the bubonic plague, anthrax, etc. Before they were able to accomplish that, the bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were dropped.

Project Mogul, a US project explains as follows: from this website:

http://www.csicop.org/si/show/roswell_incident_and_project_mogul

In June and early July 1947, numerous NYU balloon flights were launched from Alamogordo Army Air Field in New Mexico. Some of these flights consisted of very long trains containing up to two dozen neoprene sounding balloons, having a total length of more than 600 feet.

Moore makes a strong case for the hypothesis that NYU Flight #4, which he helped launch on June 4, 1947, was the source of the debris Brazel found on the Foster ranch, and therefore the source of the "Roswell Incident" itself. Many of the materials used in Flight 4 bear striking similarities to pieces of the Roswell debris. A diagram of an earlier, similar flight, Flight #2 (launched April 18, 1947, from Bethlehem, Pennsylvania) shows the balloon train. No such diagram is available for Flight 4; since no altitude data were obtained for it, it was not included in formal NYU reports. However, Moore says the configuration for Flight 4 was quite similar to that shown. The large octahedral objects at top left and bottom middle are radar reflectors, which were used for tracking. Several small aluminum rings for handling the lines are indicated; the "payload" (a sonobuoy) was supported by slightly larger rings. The cluster of neoprene sounding balloons extended for hundreds of feet in flight.

The debris Brazel picked up—and which was later taken to Fort Worth, Texas, for inspection by Brigadier General Roger Ramey, the Air Force commander there—matches NYU Flight 4 in several different ways. Some of the debris consisted of patches of a smelly, smoky gray, rubber-like material, which is consistent with the neoprene balloons used in NYU Flight 4. Much of the Roswell debris—sticks, metallic paper, and strangely marked tape—is similar to material used for the radar reflectors. When Warrant Officer Irving Newton saw the debris in General Ramey's office, he recognized it as pieces of a radar target. Moore points out that the Ramey photographs show parts of more than one reflector; Flight 4 contained three Signal Corps ML-307B RAWIN targets.

Many witnesses of the debris described tape with flower designs or hieroglyphics on it. Moore recalls that the reinforcing tape used on NYU targets had curious markings. "There were about four of us who were involved in this, and all remember that our targets had sort of a stylized, flowerlike design. I have prepared, in my life, probably more than a hundred of these targets for flight. And every time I have prepared one of these targets, I have always wondered what the purpose of that tape marking was. But . . . a major named John Peterson, laughed . . . and said 'What do you expect when you get your targets made by a toy factory?'"

The radar targets contained small eyelets. Moore showed the NMSR audience a similar target with the eyelets. In an article in the Roswell Daily Record on July 9, 1947, rancher Brazel described the debris as having no strings or wire, but as having eyelets for some sort of attachment.

While many UFO proponents claim the wreckage shown in General Ramey's office was just a weather balloon switched for the "real debris," Moore pointed out that the radar targets used by NYU were unlike anything flown in New Mexico before and that "they were not available in Fort Worth to be substituted for the debris in General Ramey's office." Warrant Officer Newton was able to recognize the debris in General Ramey's office because he happened to have used an early version of the same targets while serving as a weatherman in Okinawa. The earlier-model targets Newton used did not have the reinforcing tape with the pinkish-purple flower designs.

Interesting note is that in Whitely Strieber's Majestic, one of his characters describes the "saucer" has having what they called wallpaper with flower designs on it that you could see through but was incredibly strong.

The idea that we are being visited by "creatures" from another world begins to look more and more like what it really is - demon possession. I mean, after all to be able to do some of the things that have been done in the name of "science" one would have to be possessed.

There are three syndromes that can be used to explain the appearance of bodies found at crash sites:

Ellis-van Creveld (EVC) syndrome is a form of short-limbed dwarfism. The middle parts of the limbs are primarily affected with the shortening more apparent in the lower limbs. The hands are short and wide and have an additional digit next to the fifth finger. In addition 10 to 20% of people with EVC will have an additional digit on their feet. Adults range from 42-60" in height as well as problems with nails and teeth.

Newborn with Ellis-van Creveld syndrome. Note the narrow chest.

Postaxial polydactyly.

Natal teeth and lip tie.

Hutchinson-Gilford progeria syndrome - skin remarkably thin, in some places not being thicker than brown paper. The genitals presented a marked contrast to the rest of body, being in a state of a normally plump child. They rarely exceed four feet in height. All body hair, including eyebrows and eyelashes either fail to develop or are lost. There are also skeletal and structural abnormalities, such as a receding chin, an oversized bald head, beaklike nose and protruding eyes. Voices are usually thin and high-pitched. Life expectancy 12-13 years, survival beyond 20 is rare.

Werner's syndrome is a progeria disorder like Hutchinson-Gilford syndrome. It is known as progeria of the adult and is the most common of the premature aging disorders. In the US this is rare but it's most common in Japan and Sardinia. Of the approx. 1000 cases reported, 800 can be found in Japan - the direct result that in Japan 1st and 2nd cousin marriages are more common. In Werner's the syndrome rarely starts before the age of 20. Men are rarely more than five tall and women several inches under that.

I think I can safely say that it's not little green men or gray men, but demons and before we go to the next chapter of this, let me leave you with Enoch 8: 1 & 3:

And Azazel taught men to make swords, and knives, and shields, and breastplates, and taught them about metals of the earth and art of working them, and bracelets, and ornaments, and the use of antimony, and beautifying of the eyelids and all kinds of precious stones, and all colorings and dyes. (The tools to make war with; the ability to work with the metals of the earth; and Antimony, an interesting element:

The largest applications for metallic antimony are as alloying material for lead and tin and for lead antimony plates in lead-acid batteries. Alloying lead and tin with antimony improves the properties of the alloys which are used in solders, bullets and plain bearings. Antimony compounds are prominent additives for chlorine- and bromine-containing fire retardants found in many commercial and domestic products. An emerging application is the use of antimony in microelectronics.

From the EPA website: <http://www.epa.gov/ttnatw01/hlthef/antimony.html>

Uses

- Antimony is alloyed with other metals such as lead to increase its hardness and strength; its primary use is in antimonial lead, which is used in grid metal for lead acid storage batteries. (1)
- Other uses of antimony alloys are for solder, sheet and pipe, bearing metals, castings, and type metal. (1)
- Antimony oxides (primarily antimony trioxide) are used as fire retardants for plastics, textiles, rubber, adhesives, pigments, and paper. (1)

Health Hazard Information

Acute Effects:

- The only effects reported from acute exposure to antimony by inhalation in humans are effects on the skin and eyes. Skin effects consist of a condition known as antimony spots, which is a rash consisting of pustules around sweat and sebaceous glands, while effects on the eye include ocular conjunctivitis. Oral exposure to antimony in humans has resulted in gastrointestinal effects. (1,2)
- Animal studies have reported effects on the lungs, cardiovascular system, and liver from acute exposure to high levels of antimony by inhalation. (1)
- Antimony is considered to have high acute toxicity based on short-term oral tests in rats, mice, and guinea pigs. (3)

Chronic Effects (Noncancer):

- The primary effects from chronic exposure to antimony in humans are respiratory effects that include antimony pneumoconiosis (inflammation of the lungs due to irritation caused by the inhalation of dust), alterations in pulmonary function, chronic bronchitis, chronic emphysema, inactive tuberculosis, pleural adhesions, and irritation. (1,2)
- Other effects noted in humans chronically exposed to antimony by inhalation are cardiovascular effects (increased blood pressure, altered EKG readings and heart muscle damage) and gastrointestinal disorders. (1,2)
- Animal studies have reported effects on the respiratory and cardiovascular systems and kidney from chronic inhalation exposure. Oral animal studies have reported effects on the blood, liver, central nervous system (CNS), and gastrointestinal effects. (1)
- A National Toxicology Program (NTP) 14-day drinking water study of potassium antimony tartrate reported an increase in relative liver and kidney weights in the high dose group (females only). A 13-week intraperitoneal injection study, also by the NTP, reported inflammation and/or fibrosis of the liver in mice dosed with potassium antimony tartrate. (5)
- EPA has not established a Reference Concentration (RfC) for antimony. However, EPA has established an RfC of 0.0002 milligrams per cubic meter (mg/m³) for antimony trioxide based on respiratory effects in rats. The RfC is an estimate (with uncertainty spanning perhaps an order of magnitude) of a continuous inhalation exposure to the human population (including sensitive subgroups) that is likely to be without appreciable risk of deleterious noncancer effects during a lifetime. It is not a direct estimator of risk but rather a reference point to gauge the potential effects. At exposures increasingly greater than the RfC, the potential for adverse health effects increases. Lifetime exposure above the RfC does not imply that an adverse health effect would necessarily occur. (4)
- EPA has medium confidence in the study on which the RfC was based because it uses an adequate number of animals but it is not a chronic, lifetime study; medium confidence in the database because no adequate developmental or reproductive studies are available; and, consequently, low confidence in the RfC. (4)
- The Reference Dose (RfD) for antimony is 0.0004 milligrams per kilogram body weight per day (mg/kg/d) based on longevity, blood glucose, and cholesterol in rats. (5)
- EPA has low confidence in the study on which the RfD was based because only one species was used, only one dose level was used, no no-observed-adverse-effect level (NOAEL) was determined, and gross pathology and histopathology were not well described; low confidence in the database due to lack of adequate oral exposure investigations; and, consequently, low confidence in the RfD. (5)

Reproductive/Developmental Effects:

- An increased incidence of spontaneous abortions, as compared with a control group, was reported in women working at an antimony plant. Disturbances in the menstrual cycle were reported in women exposed to various antimony compounds in a metallurgical plant. However, the study that reported these findings was unclear about concurrent exposure to other chemicals, nor did it provide the characteristics of the controls used. (1,2)
- Animal studies have reported a decrease in the number of offspring born to rats exposed to antimony prior to conception and throughout gestation. Reproductive effects, including metaplasia in the uterus and disturbances in the ovum-maturing process, were reported in a rat study, following inhalation exposure. (1)

Cancer Risk:

- In one human study, inhalation exposure to antimony did not affect the incidence of cancer in workers employed for 9 to 31 years. (1)
- Lung tumors have been observed in rats exposed to antimony trioxide by inhalation. (1,2,4)
- EPA has not classified antimony for carcinogenicity.

http://www.slate.com/articles/health_and_science/elements/features/2010/blogg_ing_the_periodic_table/antimonyit_might_have_killed_mozart.html

Despite its obscurity, probably no element on the periodic table has as colorful a history as antimony. Money, madness, poison, linguistics, charlatanism, sex—pretty much every theme that runs through the periodic table can be found in Element 51.

Let's start with the charlatan. In the early 1600s, a merchant named Johann Thölde divided his time three ways: running a salt mine in rural Germany, studying alchemy, and serving as secretary of the Rosicrucian Brotherhood, a society, one historian says, "founded on literary fraud and saturated with it." Totally in character, then, Thölde claimed one day he'd been in a local monastery when a storm swept in and a "miraculous thunderbolt" split open a marble pillar. Out tumbled a load of books, including The Triumphal Chariot of Antimony, an alchemical text.

Thölde further claimed that a persecuted monk and secret alchemist named Basil Valentine had hidden the book in the pillar 150 years before. Amid its alchemical spells, the book explained how to prepare compounds of antimony, an element important to certain sects of alchemists—including, not coincidentally, Thölde's. The seeming ancientness and authority of the book probably boosted the prestige of the Rosicrucians in comparison with other groups of alchemists.

Even by 1710, Gottfried Leibniz, co-inventor of calculus, had declared the manuscripts obvious frauds, and most scholars today doubt that Thölde's Basil Valentine existed. Yet the doubts didn't stop Isaac Newton, a devoted alchemist and Leibniz's rival in inventing calculus, from becoming obsessed with antimony. Newton actually spent more time studying antimony than gravity, scribbling hundreds of pages about alchemy in his notebooks and (for God knows what reason) performing experiments like dissolving oak in vinegars laced with antimony.

Newton failed (at least through alchemy) to unlock the secrets of the universe, but the element remained popular with alchemists for centuries, a legacy that lingers today. Alchemists tended to anthropomorphize elements, projecting human characteristics onto them. For obscure reasons, many alchemists saw antimony as the essence of femininity, and a version of its alchemical symbol, ♀, still stands for "female" today.

Antimony has enjoyed wide use throughout history, and not just in alchemical experiments. Egyptian women used one form of antimony, stibium, as eyeliner (hence the symbol for antimony, Sb, even though neither letter appears in the element's name). Pills of the element became popular as a medicine in the 1700s, especially as a laxative, able to blast through the most compacted bowels. It was so good the chronically constipated would root through their excrement to retrieve the pill and reuse it later. Some lucky families passed down antimony laxatives from generation to generation.

Unfortunately, antimony purges the bowels so well partly because it's poison—the body wants to get rid of it. But these were the days in medicine of fighting fire with fire: Doctors believed the only way to cure a violent illness was with an equally violent reaction to medicine, and antimony's popularity grew. There's even been speculation recently that Mozart, a hypochondriac, died from taking too much antimony "medicine" for fever and internal aches.

By the 20th century, doctors had sobered up and declared antimony dangerous. That didn't stop a province in China, Guizhou, from minting cheap coins from antimony, its only resource, in 1931. Antimony proved too brittle and soft—the pictures would wear off—to make good coins, and, again, it's toxic. So Guizhou retired the 10-cent pieces and suffered on in poverty. Naturally, the coins can fetch thousands of dollars from numismatists today.

Semjaza taught the casting of spells, and root-cuttings (witchcraft and GMO's), Armaros taught counter-spells (release from spell), Baraijal taught astrology:

Astrological beliefs in correspondences between celestial observations and terrestrial events have influenced various aspects of human history, including world-views, language and many elements of social culture.

Among Indo-European peoples, astrology has been dated to the 3rd millennium BC, with roots in calendrical systems used to predict seasonal shifts and to interpret celestial cycles as signs of divine communications. Until the 17th century, astrology was considered a scholarly tradition, and it helped drive the development of astronomy. It was commonly accepted in political and cultural circles, and some of its concepts were used in other traditional studies, such as alchemy, meteorology and medicine. By the end of the 17th century, emerging scientific concepts in astronomy, such as heliocentrism, were irrevocably undermining the theoretical basis of astrology, which subsequently lost its academic standing.

In the 20th century astrology gained broader consumer popularity through the influence of regular mass media products, such as newspaper horoscopes.

Astrology, in its broadest sense, is the search for human meaning in the sky. It has been argued that astrology began as a study as soon as human beings made conscious attempts to measure, record, and predict seasonal changes by reference to astronomical cycles.

Early evidence of such practices appears as markings on bones and cave walls, which show that lunar cycles were being noted as early as 25,000 years ago; the first step towards recording the Moon's influence upon tides and rivers, and towards organizing a communal calendar. With the Neolithic agricultural revolution new needs were also met by increasing knowledge of constellations, whose appearances in the night-time sky change with the seasons, allowing the rising of particular star-groups to herald annual floods or seasonal activities. By the 3rd millennium BC, widespread civilizations had developed sophisticated awareness of celestial cycles, and are believed to have consciously oriented their temples to create alignment with the heliacal risings of the stars.

There is scattered evidence to suggest that the oldest known astrological references are copies of texts made during this period. Two, from the Venus tablet of Ammisaduqa (compiled in Babylon round 1700 BC) are reported to have been made during the reign of king Sargon of Akkad (2334-2279 BC).^[8] Another, showing an early use of electional astrology, is ascribed to the reign of the Sumerian ruler Gudea of Lagash (c. 2144 - 2124 BC). This describes how the gods revealed to him in a dream the constellations that would be most favourable for the planned construction of a temple.^[9] However, controversy attends the question of whether they were genuinely recorded at the time or merely ascribed to ancient rulers by posterity. The oldest undisputed evidence of the use of astrology as an integrated system of knowledge is therefore attributed to the records that emerge from the Neo-Sumerian period (1950-1651 BC)

Astronomy is a natural science that is the study of celestial objects (such as moons, planets, stars, nebulae, and galaxies), the physics, chemistry, mathematics, and evolution of such objects, and phenomena that originate outside the atmosphere of Earth, including supernovae explosions, gamma ray bursts, and cosmic background radiation. A related but distinct subject, cosmology, is concerned with studying the universe as a whole.

Astronomy is one of the oldest sciences. Prehistoric cultures left behind astronomical artifacts such as the Egyptian monuments and Nubian monuments, and early civilizations such as the Babylonians, Greeks, Chinese, Indians, Iranians and Maya performed methodical observations of the night sky. However, the invention of the telescope was required before astronomy was able to develop into a modern science. Historically, astronomy has included disciplines as diverse as astrometry, celestial navigation, observational astronomy, and the making of calendars, but professional astronomy is nowadays often considered to be synonymous with astrophysics.

During the 20th century, the field of professional astronomy split into observational and theoretical branches. Observational astronomy is focused on acquiring data from observations of astronomical objects, which is then analyzed using basic principles of physics. Theoretical astronomy is oriented toward the development of computer or analytical models to describe astronomical objects and phenomena. The two fields complement each other, with theoretical astronomy seeking to explain the observational results and observations being used to confirm theoretical results.

Amateur astronomers have contributed to many important astronomical discoveries, and astronomy is one of the few sciences where amateurs can still play an active role, especially in the discovery and observation of transient phenomena.

Astronomy is not to be confused with astrology, the belief system which claims that human affairs are correlated with the positions of celestial objects. Although the two fields share a common origin they are now entirely distinct.

Kokabel taught the constellations: portents or omens (as Scripture tells us, we can see the earth's history by the constellations), Ezeqeel the knowledge of the clouds (weather and chemtrails), Araqiel the signs of the earth (volcanoes, earthquakes, electromagnetic grid and control of it, HAARP), Shamsiel the signs of the sun, and Sariel the course of the moon.

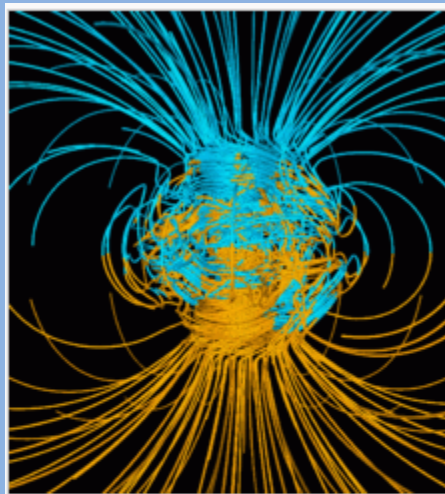

Nothing with a Yahuah quality was ever taught by any of these "fallen" angels, and we did learn from Scripture that even after the flood, we would see this knowledge become a more evil force of destruction. After all man, continues to be "seduced" by the adversary with false promises of power and wealth, forgetting that shatan wants "all" humanity gone!!

THE EARTH'S MAGNETIC FIELD

Earth's magnetic field (also known as the geomagnetic field) is the magnetic field that extends from the Earth's inner core to where it meets the solar wind, a stream of energetic particles emanating from the Sun. Its magnitude at the Earth's surface ranges from 25 to 65 μT (0.25 to 0.65 G). It is approximately the field of a magnetic dipole tilted at an angle of 11 degrees with respect to the rotational axis—as if there were a bar magnet placed at that angle at the center of the Earth. However, unlike the field of a bar magnet, Earth's field changes over time because it is generated by the motion of molten iron alloys in the Earth's outer core (the geodynamo).

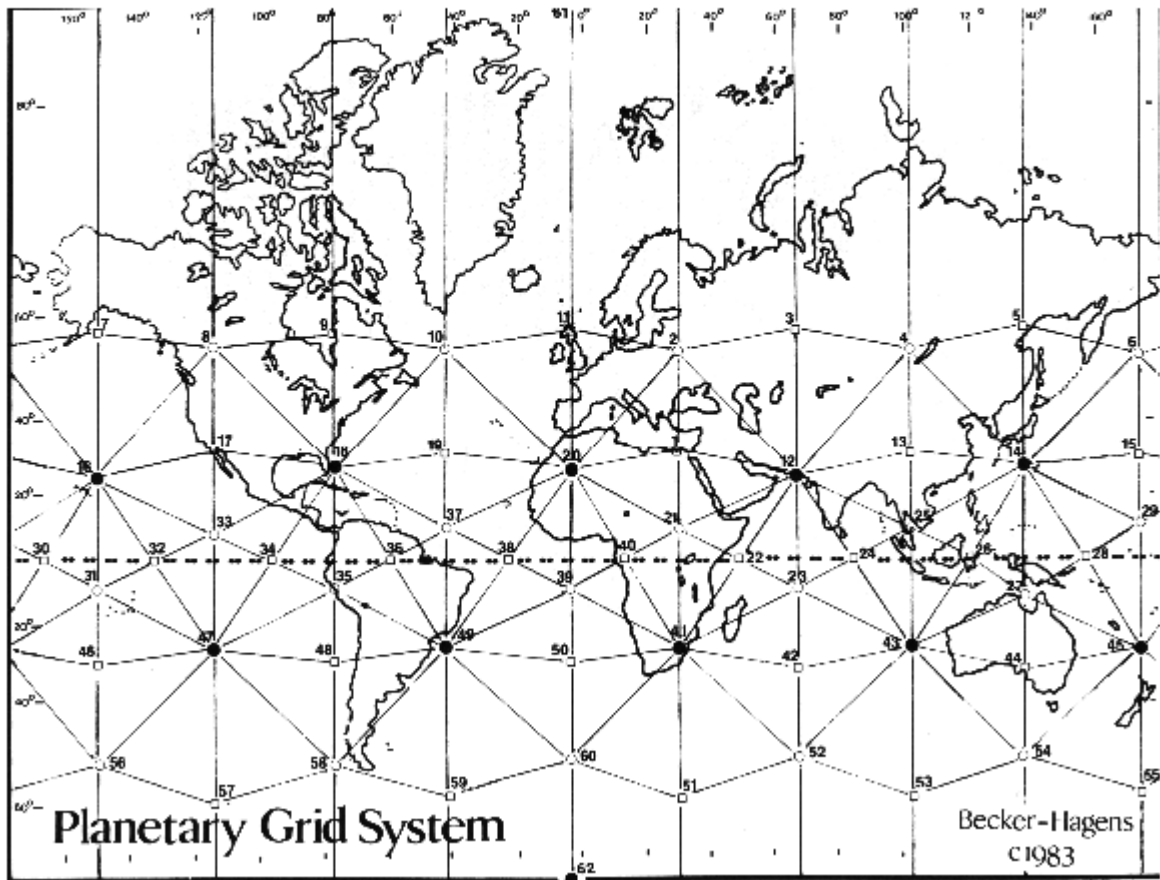

The North Magnetic Pole wanders, but does so slowly enough that a simple compass remains useful for navigation, however, at random intervals, which average about several hundred thousand years the Earth's, field reverses, which causes the north and South Magnetic Poles to change places with each other. These reversals of the geomagnetic poles leave a record in rocks that allow paleomagnetists to calculate past motions of continents and ocean floors as a result of plate tectonics.

The region above the ionosphere is called the magnetosphere, and extends several tens of thousands of kilometers into space. This region protects the Earth from cosmic rays that would otherwise strip away the upper atmosphere, including the ozone layer that protects the earth from harmful ultraviolet radiation.

Computer simulation of the Earth's field in a normal period between reversals.^[1]
The lines represent magnetic field lines, blue when the field points towards the center and yellow when away. The rotation axis of the Earth is centered and vertical. The dense clusters of lines are within the Earth's core.^[2]

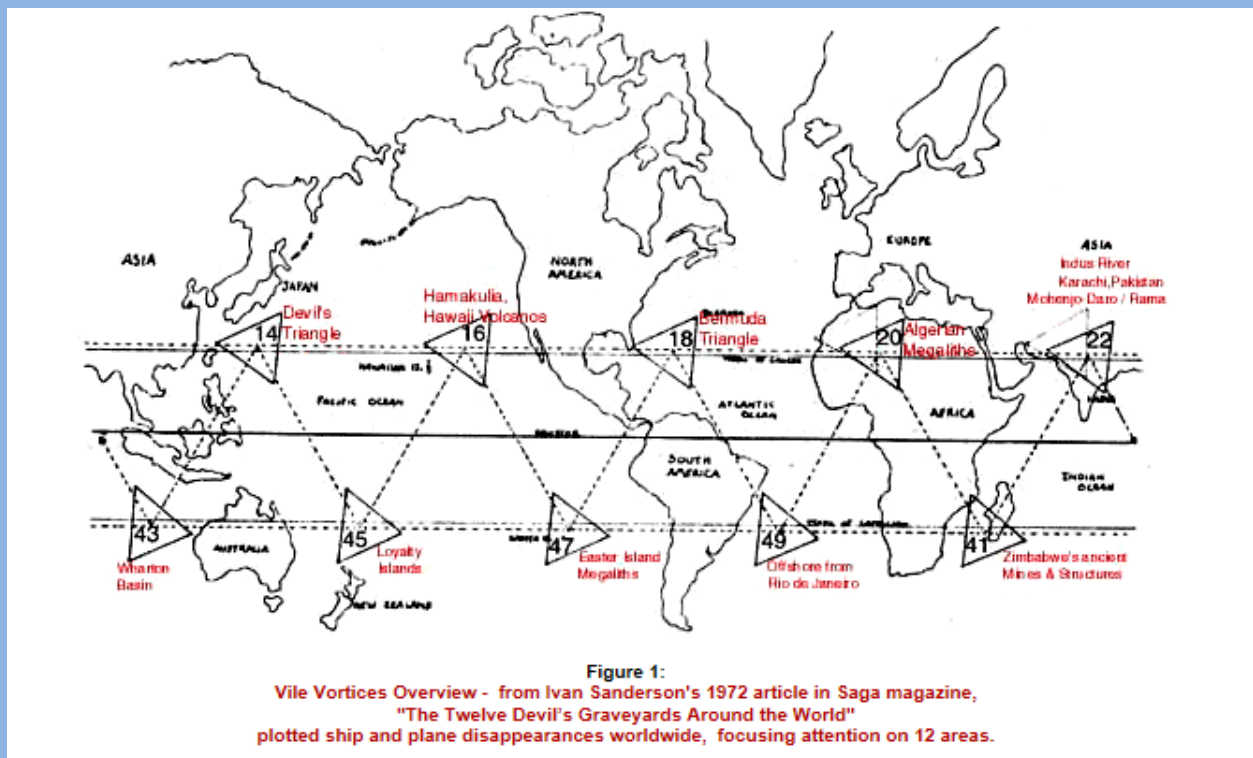

Becker-Hagens Grid

- Ley lines are "the radial threads on a spider's web."
- Ley lines form the "focal points in a vast multilayered cobweb somewhat reminiscent of a micrograph of nerve cells and their ganglia" as "the circulation and nervous system of the body of earth."
- The Grid is "a geometrically precise web" punctuated with "Grids of Light, focal points," a "receptor web complex with nexi of entrance."
- The British novelist Doris Lessing writes intimately of the Grid as "the enclosing web of subtle light (that) touched the earth globe...All over the globe ran these pulses or lines" which make "a colored spinning membrane" and "a great web of patterning oscillations and quivering's."

The Grid is not something out there, away from us, safely; abstractly separate from our daily lives. Our molecular bodies and human consciousness as we walk on Earth live within the Grid. The Grid is like a unified tuning fork vibrating with our Light/Life/Electromagnetic spectrum for Earth as we receive it daily from our specific Star Evolution paradigm, the Sun, the astrophysical center of our local solar system Grid. Our King Sun is an evolving star, and our lives as humans on Earth are breathed within the Grid-mediated parameters of "His" body, our familiar solar system.

Our earth has a magnetic field, which keeps our planet afloat as it were, and though many would have you believe Ley lines are system of vortexes that meet up with various monoliths, i.e. Stonehenge, the pyramids, Easter Island and the Bermuda triangle, which are to be incorporated into a metaphysical and meditative practice, as well as using it to prove the “mother earth/GAIA/deity worship, I believe it has more to do with demons/fallen angels/nephilim. The adversary is going to “use” everything to continue his quest for collecting “souls”, this may seem a less evil way of “devil” worship than those of the Satanic persuasion, by giving it more “holistic” feel, however, it is still worshipping the adversary.

The highest energy areas seem to center near the 31.7 degree (Positive) or 25 degree (Negative) parallels - North and South:

There are 5 areas of the Northern Hemisphere near 25 North that may be doors to other dimensions; often called "Vile Vortices" (Vile may be too strong a term):

- Bermuda Triangle (planes & ships disappear in green fog)
- Algerian Megalithic Ruins (South of Timbuktu)
- Karachi (Pakistan) [site of Mohenjo Daro - Rama culture, the ancient origins of Hindu culture]
- Devil's Sea Triangle (near Iwo Jima, Japan) (planes & ships disappear - Japan officially calls dangerous)
- Hamakulia, S.E. Hawaii (heaviest volcanic activity) - actually, the focal point is in the ocean, more to the SE of Hawaii. It is in the Ocean, where some ships and planes have disappeared in the past.

There are 5 areas of the Northern Hemisphere near 31.7 North that are Positive healing Energy Vortices:

- Between Sedona, AZ & Sonora, Mexico (31.7N 112.8W) - Hopi & Yaqui Indian, Hohokom waterworks, Sedona Healing Vortex (& magnetic anomalies at Torreon, Mexico?)
- The calculated Vortex Focus is near the Papago Indian Reservation, W of Tucson, AZ, S of Pisinimo/W. of Cowlic/Vamori/Little Tucson
- According to Ken Eagle Feather, in "A Toltec Path" p.11, Castenada's Books on Don Juan (Matus) were centered here (mid-Atlantic, Atlantis per Edgar Cayce - "the position ... Atlantis occupied is between the Gulf of Mexico ... and the Mediterranean")
- Egypt - Pyramids (focus Energy)
- Himalayas, N.E. of Lhasa (Tibet) - Center for Tibetan Enlightenment - also, not far from Xi'an Pyramids in China. Home of the Panda and ancient irrigation systems and Midway Island

Further North, near 50 to 55 North, are some well known Vortices:

- Findhorn, Scotland: Key Celtic/Druid Ley Line: Calendish megaliths, Loch Ness, Maes Howe, Ring of Brodger
- Kiev (Ukraine, Russia) - Key Eastern Orthodox Religious Site
- Buffalo Lake (Alberta Canada), major Indian Medicine Wheels
- Hudson Bay, Canada north Magnetic pole, Ugansk Bay, Eskimo Art, Chubb meteor crater
- Lake Baikal (Northern Mongolia): Meteor Crash? - unique soil, strange plant & animal genetic changes

In the southern Hemisphere, there are also 5+5 areas, near 25 & 30 South, (most are in less-traveled ocean areas), some of which are the:

- Megalithic structures at Sarawak (Borneo)
- Nan Madol (Pohnpei Island, Micronesia)
- Incan Culture in South America
- Easter Island - Megalithic Statues, many of evil Cthulhu - culture degraded to cannibalism, then enslaved
- Gabon (West Africa) alleged [natural Atomic Reactor 1.7million yrs ago] / Zimbabwe Megaliths

The diagrams show that the vortices intersect the ley lines, could those vortices then be the doorway into another dimension? There are many horror writers who in their writings often use this, especially H.P. Lovecraft who believed that in this other dimension there are an ancient people waiting to be released into our dimension. The "evil" Cthulhu of Easter Island is something that he incorporated into many of his stories.

There are many stories of people just vanishing and we're not talking about people that were kidnapped under cover of night or individuals who want to just "disappear" due to other circumstances, but there are cases where people have vanished in front of witnesses.

You can visit this website for more cases, but here are some examples:

<http://www.rense.com/general1/dis.htm>

Between 1920 and 1950, Bennington, Vermont was the site of several completely unexplained disappearances:

* On December 1, 1949, Mr. Tetford vanished from a crowded bus. Tetford was on his way home to Bennington from a trip to St. Albans, Vermont. Tetford, an ex-soldier who lived in the Soldier's Home in Bennington, was sitting on the bus with 14 other passengers. They all testified to seeing him there, sleeping in his seat. When the bus reached its destination, however, Tetford was gone, although his belongings were still on the luggage rack and a bus timetable lay open on his empty seat. Tetford has never returned or been found. * On December 1, 1946, an 18-year-old student named Paula Welden vanished while taking a walk. Welden was walking along the Long Trail into Glastonbury Mountain. She was seen by a middle-aged couple that was strolling about 100 yards behind her. They lost sight of her when she followed the trail around a rocky outcropping, but when they rounded the outcropping themselves, she was nowhere to be seen. Welden has not been seen nor heard from since. * In mid-October, 1950, 8-year old Paul Jepson disappeared from a farm. Paul's mother, who earned a living as an animal caretaker, left her small son happily playing near a pig sty while she tended to the animals. A short time later, she returned to find him missing. An extensive search of the area proved fruitless. * For more information, see Vanishing Point.

Time Tunnel

In 1975, a man named Jackson Wright was driving with his wife from New Jersey to New York City. This required them to travel through the Lincoln Tunnel. According to Wright, who was driving, once through the tunnel he pulled the car over to wipe the windshield of condensation. His wife Martha volunteered to clean off the back window so they could more readily resume their trip. When Wright turned around, his wife was gone. He neither heard nor saw anything unusual take place, and a subsequent investigation could find no evidence of foul play. Martha Wright had just disappeared.

The Stonehenge Disappearance

The mysterious standing stones of Stonehenge in England was the site of an amazing disappearance in August, 1971. At this time Stonehenge was not yet protected from the public, and on this particular night, a group of "hippies" decided to pitch tents in the center of the circle and spend the night. They built a campfire, lit several joints of pot and sat around smoking and signing. Their campout was abruptly interrupted at about 2 a.m. by a severe thunder storm that quickly blew in over Salisbury Plain. Bright bolts of lightning crashed down on the area, striking area trees and even the standing stones themselves. Two witnesses, a farmer and a policeman, said that the stones of the ancient monument lit up with an eerie blue light that was so intense that they had to avert their eyes. They heard screams from the campers and the two witnesses rushed to the scene expecting to find injured - or even dead - campers. To their surprise, they found no one. All that remained within the circle of stones were several smoldering tent pegs and the drowned remains of a campfire. The hippies themselves were gone without a trace.

The Village That Disappeared

An individual that vanishes is one thing, but how about an entire village of 2,000 men, women and children? In November, 1930, a fur trapper named Joe Labelle made his way on snow shoes to an Eskimo village on the shores of Lake Anjikuni in northern Canada. Labelle was familiar with the village, which he knew as a thriving fishing community of about 2,000 residents. When he arrived, however, the village was deserted. All of the huts and storehouses were vacant. He found one smoldering fire on which there was a pot of blackened stew. Labelle notified the authorities and an investigation was begun, and which turned up some bizarre findings: no footprints of any of the residents were found, if they had vacated the village; all of the Eskimos' sled dogs were found buried under a 12-foot-high snow drift - they had all starved to death; all of the Eskimos' food and provisions were found undisturbed in their huts. And there was one last unnerving discovery: the Eskimos' ancestral graves had been emptied.

One can find many examples of these types of vanishings, so the question would be - "where did they go"? Are there in fact doors that by accident are opened causing people to disappear? We know that shatan will use every means necessary to destroy us who believe in Yahuah and turn those who don't into "his" slaves, which again leads one to realize that the path to Yahuah is extremely "narrow", but the road to "evil" is wide causing navigation without Yahuah impossible. Most people are fascinated by the supernatural and all the trappings, giving it a credence either as a form of a new-age religion or mystery school religions and never showing the "evil" that it really is. The thing about shatan is there is NO 'free-will', as the Eagles said in "Hotel California", you can check it but you can never leave...that is unless you find Yahuah!!! But I digress, so let us continue.

2 Kings 17:17

וַיַּעֲבִירוּ אֶת־בְּנֵיהֶם וְאֶת־בָּנוֹתֵיהֶם בָּאֵשׁ וַיִּקְסְמוּ וַיִּנְחָשׁוּ וַיִּתְמַכְרוּ לַעֲשׂוֹת הָרַע בְּעֵינֵי יְהוָה לְהַכְעִיסוֹ׃ They made their sons and their daughters pass through the fire, they practiced divination and read omens, and they sold themselves to do evil in the eyes of Yahweh to provoke him. | LEB

They made their sons, descendants, offspring and their daughters, women, maidens pass, lead, through the fire, they practiced divination, to seek an omen, determine the future or hidden knowledge through signs, omens and supernatural power, by the position of the stars; speaking with dead spirits; examining animal parts or potsherds; using a specially marked stick, pebble or shard thrown down for making decisions based on pagan views of chance, and they sold, surrendered, betrayed themselves to do, manufacture, make, cause and sold one's self to evil, wickedness, corruption and harm in the eyes of Yahuah to provoke, anger, distress, disturb, offend and grieve Him.

There is a place in Florida called the Coral Castle. What is remarkable about this place is, that it was simply a single man, small in stature and weighed at the most 120 pounds, who built it.

Coral Castle was constructed of huge blocks of coral rock that had been quarried as single pieces from the ground, some of them weighing as much as 57,000 pounds. Coral Castle was built by Edward Leedskalnin. Ed did everything himself and refused any outside assistance. He used only primitive tools that he made from old car parts. He only worked at night, using the moon and a lantern to give him light.

Many believed that Ed had mastered the laws of gravity since he was only 5'6", even though there were those who knew him that said he was even shorter, giving him the nickname of Mr. Leprechaun.

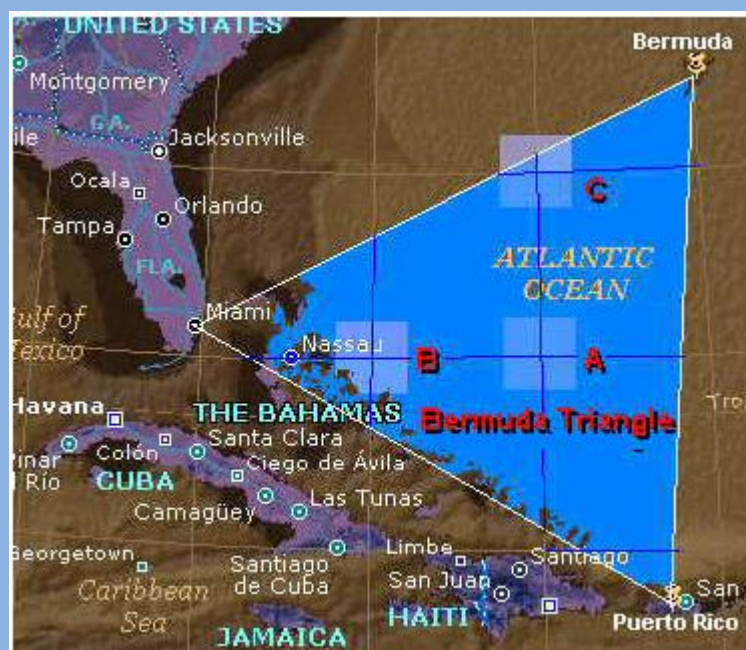

Ed was known to use a "witching" or dowsing rod believed capable of "divining" the presence of water or so-called "energy" fields within the earth.

Ed started construction his Coral Castle in 1925 in Florida City, FL. In the late 1930's he decided to move to Homestead, FL. Some say this was due to an earlier miscalculation on Ed's part, having to do with earth's energy grid.

This grid, sometimes called the magnetic grid, is made up of a hypothetical network of lines, called ley lines that crisscross the earth and connect to a number of megalithic places. You saw this at the beginning of this chapter showing the connections to each other. The places where these ley lines intersect are said to hold tremendous electro-magnetic power.

Ed's new property, just west of Homestead, FL called Modello, was ten acres on US 1 and located at one of these intersection points. The westernmost point of this property intersects with a well-known geometric area contained within the grid. The Bermuda Triangle!!

For more information on Ed, read Coral Castle by Rusty McClure and Jack Heffron.

The Bermuda Triangle is a place of electro-magnetic anomalies and with abundant UFO activity. UFO only means an unidentified flying object it does NOT always mean an ET. Most try to attribute logical explanations to compass malfunctions, disorientation, sudden and violent bouts of severe weather, mechanical and electrical failures, and pilot error as the explanation of so many disappearances.

The reality is just like the earlier instances of people simply vanishing, the people that have gone missing in the Bermuda Triangle have never been found. On March 14, 1918 the USS Cyclops was Baltimore-based when it disappeared with a loss of 300 lives. In 1920, a schooner called the Carroll A. Deering became another victim of the Bermuda Triangle. The difference in this case is the ship was found but the crew had vanished.

The Bermuda Triangle also affects aircraft, but the difference is there were some pilots who at the last minute were spared the fate that those that traveled by sea did not.

During WWII Lt. Robert Ulmer in November of 1943 was flying over the area in a Boeing B-24 at 9,000 feet on a clear and bright day. Suddenly he noticed his on-board instrumentation acting wildly; the plane shook violently and plummeted 4,000 feet. Realizing the plane was out of control the crew bailed out. After the crew bailed out, the plane righted itself and stayed in the air for 1500 miles, crossing the Gulf of Mexico before finally slamming into a mountain.

The Bermuda Triangle is a vortex of electro-magnetic power and is part of the earth's grid that intersects with other "power-lines", ley lines, so to speak.

There are some who say that they have found Atlantis, and it's in the Bermuda Triangle. It is thought that Atlantis possessed what are called Fire Crystals. These are powerful crystals that could be harnessed as a form of destructive energy. Like a laser or plasma ray, both which use crystals. There's a file called the Gemstones File that has been circulating since the 70's which has everything to do with "synthetic" crystals and has been something this is closely aligned with the Illuminati and NWO.

<http://www.altering-perspectives.com/2013/06/giant-pyramids-and-sphinxes-found-in.html>

Two scientists, Paul Weinzwieg and Pauline Zalitzki, working off the coast of Cuba and using a robot submersible, have confirmed that a gigantic city exists at the bottom of the ocean. The site of the ancient city — that includes several sphinxes and at least four giant pyramids plus other structures — amazingly sits within the boundaries of the fabled Bermuda Triangle.

As an aside but still relevant to the Triangle, in a declassified official British Admiralty file, in December of 1857, the crew of the 1,063 ton ship Castilan, sighted near the Atlantic island of St. Helena, the ship's captain George H. Harrington and his crew described a leviathan of the deep in excess of 500 feet in length.

Psalm 104:26

שֵׁם אֲנִיּוֹת יִהְיֶה לְכֹן לְוִיָּתָן זֶה־יִצְרָתָּ There the ships sail. Leviathan is there that you formed to play with. | LEB

לְשַׁחֲקֵבּוֹ: | EHRIOTLEB

There the ships, naval fleets sail, go, haunt, or die. Leviathan, dragon, serpent, sea creature that You formed, fashioned, ordained, created to play, pit against, provide amusement with.

From Fortean Times Magazine By

David Clarke

The Ministry of Defence does not keep any secret files on sea monsters reported by Royal Navy personnel, but crews of ships and submarines who make unusual sightings can record their experiences in official logbooks that are public records. This emerged as a result of a Freedom of Information request made to the MoD by marine biologist Sebastian Darby in February. Darby's request asked the MoD if there were "any abnormally large, or dangerous sea monsters hundreds of metres under the sea that haven't been revealed to the public". If such creatures did exist, he argued, it would be in the public interest to publish the facts as marine biologists' lives could be at risk.

Navy FOI officer Heather Godfrey's response admitted neither the Navy nor the MoD maintained "any form of central repository of information purely devoted to sea monsters". Although there was no formal requirement, the Navy did encourage personnel to record sightings of marine mammals "and it's possible this could include unusual sightings". All such reports were sent to the UK Hydrographic Office in Somerset, while individual ship's logs are retained until they are deposited at The National Archives after 30 years. But a search of thousands of ship's logs for entries on sea monster sightings would exceed the cost limits allowed for a FOI request.

Nautical folklore is replete with such stories and first-hand accounts of sightings have been recorded in Atlantic waters since the Middle Ages. In more recent centuries, one of the most celebrated sea serpent reports was made by the captain and officers of the frigate HMS Daedalus off the Cape of Good Hope in the South Atlantic on 6 August 1848 (see 'The Golden Age of Sea Serpents'). On arrival in England, the captain, Peter M'Quhae, sent details to the Admiralty and to The Times. He supervised a detailed drawing of the 60ft-long creature that was visible for 20 minutes. But his story was rejected by palæontologist Professor Richard Owen, who insisted the crew had seen a giant seal.

A number of other 19th-century accounts have emerged in British Admiralty files deposited at The National Archives in Kew. One contains an account of a sea serpent written by Captain James Stockdale in May 1830. Stockdale and the crew of the barque Rob Roy were near the island of St Helena when they heard a scuffling noise in the water. As they turned to the port bow, they were amazed to see the head of "a great thundering sea snake" whose head rose six feet out of the water "as square with our topsail [and] his tail was square with the foremast". Stockdale said his ship was 171ft long with the foremast 42ft from the stern, which would make the monster 129ft long. He reported to his masters in London: "If I had not seen it I could not have believed it but there was no mistake or doubt of its length – for the brute was so close I could even smell his nasty fishy smell."

A Board of Trade file from 1857 contains an account from Commander George Henry Harrington of the 1,063-ton merchant ship Castilan, again near the same South Atlantic island. On 13 December of that year, he and two officers saw “a huge marine animal” which suddenly reared out of the water just 20ft from the ship. For a few moments, its long neck and dark head, shaped “like a long buoy” and covered with white spots, were clearly visible “with a kind of scroll or ruff encircling it”. The creature was submerged for a moment and then reappeared, leaving the crew in no doubt they were watching a sea monster “of extraordinary length [which] appeared to be moving slowly towards the land”. The boatswain, who watched it for some time, said that it was more than double the length of the ship, which made it 500ft long.

Both reports appear to have been filed away without comment by the Admiralty, in much the same way that the Air Ministry dealt with reports of flying saucers and UFOs from RAF crews during the 20th century. Unless a clear threat was identified, either from sea monsters or aliens, unusual sightings like these were classified as interesting but of “no defence significance”.

[PA] D.Telegraph, 16 May 2010; Rickard & Michell: “The Rough Guide to Unexplained Phenomena”, 2007

Cousin to the Bermuda Triangle is the Ma-No Umi, the Devil’s Sea, Japan, near Miyake Island and approx. 62 miles south of Tokyo.

In 1282 Kublai Kahn sent a two-pronged attack on Japan of a military unit that had set sail from Masan, S. Korea with 900 ships and 40,000 men of Mongol, Chinese and Korean origin along with a gigantic fleet of 3500 craft manned by 100,000 personnel that were utterly lost in this sea.

These incidents provoked a widespread belief that gigantic dragons made the Devil’s Sea their home.

Toksiaki Lang, a Japanese pilot engaged in aerial combat with U.S. Forces while flying over the Devil’s Sea in 1944 claims to have caught a brief glimpse of an immense sea serpent swimming in the waters at high speed. Lang described the 150 ft. dark-green colored beast as possessing a pair of immense, triangular wings that seemed to help keep its mighty bulk afloat.

During WWII the Japanese had an airbase on the doorsteps of the Devil’s Sea thereby using aircraft to search the skies for evidence of American military aircraft closing in on the mainland. On one such flying mission a message was received by Shiro Kawamoto, who never forgot the chilling, confused and final words of the panic-stricken crew, “Something is happening to the sky.....the sky is opening up.”

In 1987 Tetsuzan Naito was flying his Cessna near Miyake Island when his on-board instrumentation and compass began to go crazy and the engine repeatedly sputtered to the point where it seemed at any moment the plane would stall.

Without warning and for no apparent reason that Naito could determine his entire aircraft became engulfed in an eerie, green glow that appeared to extend an all-encompassing distance of around 40 or 50 ft. Naito was suddenly hit by a severe bout of nausea and dizziness. More unsettling, an eerie, enveloping silence followed. It appeared that Naito had gone completely deaf until the instruments of his craft suddenly righted themselves, noise levels returned to normal, and the sickly green glow vanished.

The Formosa Triangle contains most of the northeast Philippine Sea.

The Devil's Sea (魔の海 Ma no Umi[?]), also known as the Dragon's Triangle, the Formosa (Taiwan) Triangle (traditional Chinese: 福爾摩沙三角; simplified Chinese: 福尔摩沙三角; pinyin: Fúěrmóshā Sānjiǎo) and the "Pacific Bermuda Triangle", is a region of the Pacific around Miyake Island, about 100 km south of Tokyo. The size and area varies with the report (the only reports stem from the 1950s), with various reports placing it 70 miles (110 km) from an unspecified part of Japan's east coast, 300 miles (480 km) from the coast, and even near Iwo Jima, 750 miles (1,210 km) from the coast.(Kusche:259-260)

This area is said to be a danger zone on Japanese maps, according to Charles Berlitz's books The Bermuda Triangle (1974) and The Dragon's Triangle (1989). He states that in the peacetime years between 1952-54 Japan lost 5 military vessels with crews lost totaling over 700 people and that the Japanese government sent a research vessel with over 100 scientists on board to study the Devil's Sea, and that this ship too vanished; and finally that the area was officially declared a danger zone.

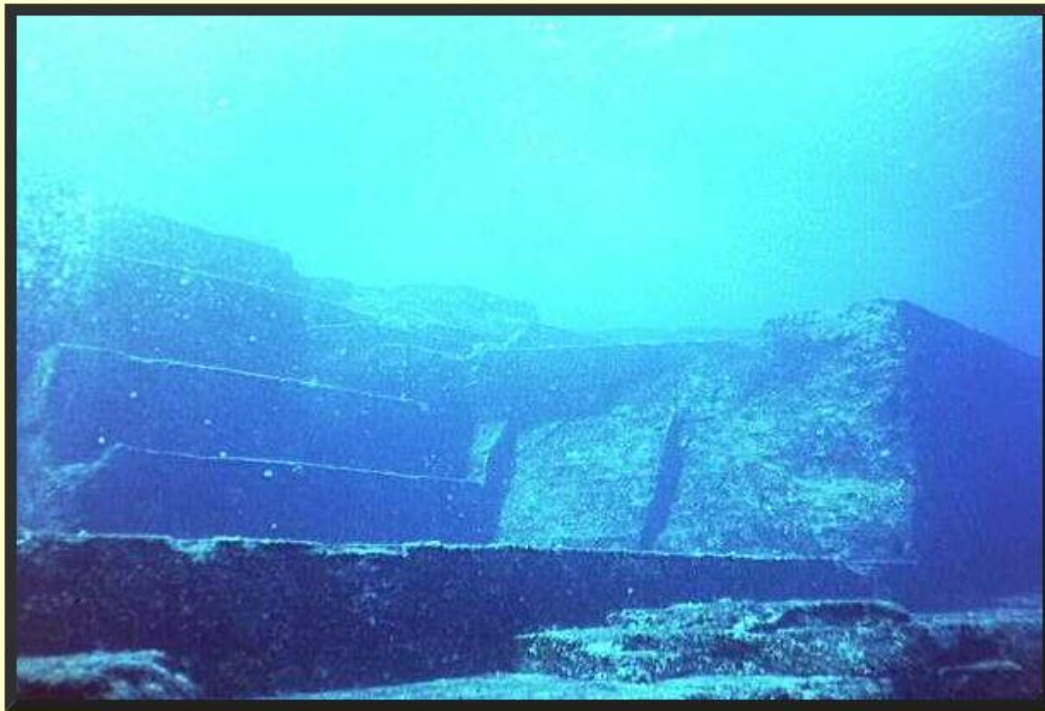

According to Larry Kusche's investigation, these "military vessels" were fishing vessels, and some of them were lost outside the Devil's Sea, even as far away as near Iwo Jima, 1000 km to the south. He also points out that, at that time, hundreds of fishing boats were lost around Japan every year.

The Japanese research vessel that Berlitz named, Kaiyo Maru No 5, had a crew of 31 aboard. While investigating activity of an undersea volcano, Myōjin-shō, about 300 km south of the Devil's Sea, it was destroyed by an eruption on 24 September 1952. Some wreckage was recovered.^[1] At least one ship sent an SOS. The other seven boats were small fishing boats lost between April 1949 and October 1953 somewhere between Miyake Island and Iwo Jima, a distance of 750 miles.(Kusche: 258)

Also near the Devil's Sea and the Philippine Sea are underwater monolithic monuments that were recently discovered:

Investigating the Yonaguni Underwater Monuments

Excerpt:

Yonaguni Island belongs to a chain of islands known as the Ryuku Islands, which stretch Southwest from Japan towards the mainland of China. Yonaguni is the last of the islands of this chain and is only 30 miles from Taiwan.

Ten years ago while looking for interesting under-water sites to dive near Yonaguni, scuba diving instructor Kihachiro Aratake, discovered an amazing under-water construct 20 feet below the surface of the water. The construct is defined as being "as if terraced into the side of a mountain," resembling a grand stand for Sea Gods, or somewhat like an amphitheater with its huge steps and blocks of stone. The construct's 250-foot base lies 100 feet below the ocean's surface and rises to a height of 80 feet.

Let's move back to America, specifically Sedona, Arizona, which is another area known to be a vortex, some say a positive energy vortex. Living in Arizona as a child, once I got my driver's license, I explored my surroundings. A friend and I would go up to Sedona, this being back in the late 60's early 70's before it became the hub for the metaphysical trend that took over in the 80's. We would go up to what was called Montezuma's well. I was not privy at that time to any supernatural experiences, but you could feel that this place had specialness to it. Of course this was once Indian land perhaps that is what gave it that metaphysical feel.

Biologist Lyall Watson notes "navigation is bedeviled by the fact of the earth's magnetic field is riddled with local deviations and irregularities. These faults have been carefully plotted and the most persistent of them have become quite notorious." He identified one such fault existing near Prescott, AZ which is about 30 mi from Sedona.

This describes a vortex and Dick Sutphen explains that it can be a positive or negative "power spot: - where a great concentration of energy emits from the earth. Positive vortices expand and perpetuate energy; negative vortices dissipate energy.

Perhaps that can also explain that positive is the opening of a portal and the negative is the closing. One could wonder if these are the portals that go to the other dimensions. Would that explain the vanishings in all these powerful areas? Would it also be a doorway to underground cities and underground tunnels?

For more unusual places on this earth read Nick Redfern's "The World's Weirdest Places".

This is a Sedona Vortex map.

UNDERGROUND CITIES/TUNNELS/BASES

There is an interesting manuscript called the Hefferlin Manuscript written in the 1940's which says there exist an ancient tunnel system. You can read the manuscript at <http://www.scribd.com/doc/87390/A-Description-Of-Rainbow-City-From-The-Hefferlin-Manuscript-Hollow-Earth>

As in all things, you will have to glean what is real and what is not since much of this manuscript dabbles in things that Yahuah has told us not to participate in, i.e. telepathy and other god worship. This manuscript even uses Daniel as a resource to justify much of what is written, for our purposes, we are using it to see about underground cities. However, since they use Daniel 5:5 as a resource, let's look and see what that is. As usual most will find a scripture to fit what they need as opposed to looking at it in context. This Scripture is being used to verify mythology and legend as being true and not taking into account what is actually being said. We shall look at this in context of what is being said around it.

Daniel 5:4

אֲשֶׁתֵּי חֲמֵרָא וְשִׁבְחוּ לְאֱלֹהֵי דְהַבָּא

Immediately, in a brief moment of time human fingers appeared and they wrote, left to be written the lampstand, hearth, candlestick on the plaster, chalk, lime of the wall of the palace, temple of the king, and the king was watching the palm of the hand writing causing to be written.

Daniel 5:6

אֲדָן מַלְכָא זִינְהִי שְׁנוּהִי וְרַעִינְהִי

Then his face changed and his thoughts terrified him, and his hip joints gave way and his knees knocked together. | LEB

His face, beauty, complexion, brightness changed, transformed for the worst, altered and his thoughts terrified, alarmed, frightened and troubled him, and his hip joints gave way, loosen and his knees knocked, struck together.

This is talking about Belshazzar who will ask Daniel to translate these words that were written, absolutely nothing to do with verifying pagan legends and mythology. Let's read on.

מְלִכוּתָד וְהִשְׁלֵמָה: |

“This is the explanation of the matter: ‘Mene’— God has numbered your kingdom and brought an end to it. | LEB

EHRIOTLEB |

The explanation, interpretation of the matter, affair, decision: Mene, to count, to number, to appoint, to reckon - Yahuah has numbered your kingdom and brought an end to it.

This has nothing to do with legend and mythology of pagan ideals or as a resource to verify the existence of gods, but it is a good Scripture that shows what Yahuah can and will do. What has this to do with underground tunnels, bases or underground cities? Everything, since evil loves the dark, and what better place to be, out of the light.

This Hefferlin Manuscript talks about worldwide ancient tunnel system with the following entrances:

- 1) One entrance - Superstition Mountains. This is in Arizona and also noted for the Lost Dutchman's Goldmine. There are many stories of people looking for this and many not coming back. Perhaps they found the entrance.
- 2) A closed cave in the Southwestern part of the US on an Indian Reservation. So are the Superstition Mountains.
- 3) Branch line ends in NW Wyoming due west of Sheridan and some 200 ft. or more up the side of a mountain, which appears to have been twisted and sheared off leaving a distorted and pinched outlet.

We know that the our government has built underground bases and though it's rumored of underground cities built for the elite to go to in time of something cataclysmic happening, I would venture to say these are true, but can we confirm this?

DUMB- Deep Underground Military Base, someone was thinking when they came up with that acronym.

ARKANSAS

12. In the vicinity of Hardy and Cherokee Village. 36° 19' N 92°29'W W. Installation purpose not known.
13. Pine Bluff, Ark. area. 34° 13.4' N 92°01.0'W to 34°30' N 92° 30'W. saucer base.

CALIFORNIA

14. 29 Palms Marine Base, Identified on military map as airspace area R-2501 N. Saucer base southeast of Ludlow. This is a U.S. alien research/ diagnostic facility and UFO base.
15. China Lake, mind control and weapons research
16. Darwin, CA, 4 miles west of Darwin
17. Deep Springs, CA, 37°22' N 117° 59.3' W. saucer base
18. Fort Irwin, CA, 35°20'N 116°8'W W. saucer base
19. Edwards Air Force Base, in the area where Diamond Cr. & the so. fork of the Yuba meet, there are 3 underground UFO bases. 34°8' N 117° 48' W
20. George Air Force Base, CA – saucer base
21. Helendale, Lockheed Underground Facility, 34°44.7' N 117° 18.5' W. Technology for secret projects. There are 3 saucer bases here.
22. Los Angeles, On Hwy 14 towards Edwards A.F.B. after Palmdale, one turns off and after taking several streets to 170th street, north on 170th St. to the Rosamond-1 70th intersection, the second and lower and better maintained dirt road will take you west, and if you take a right going north at the power lines and up to the hilltop you will see the top of an underground NORTHOP facility; Technology for the elite's secret projects. This area was very active in the 1970s. Northrop's facility is near the Tehachapi Mtns. It has been reported to go down 42 levels. It is heavily involved with electronics and hi-tech aerospace research.
23. Mt. Shasta
24. Kern River, CA the hollowed out mountain next to the hydroelectric facility at the Kern River Project near Bakersfield- reported saucer base
25. Napa Valley- located at Oakville Grade north of Napa, CA. Tunnels also connect the wineries north of Napa, used for white slavery and mind-control. Has a saucer base.
26. Norton Air Force Base- saucer base
27. Quincy, CA, 39° 56.2' N 120° 56.5' W. saucer base
28. Near Palmdale (if one takes Palmdale Blvd. til 240th St. and goes to Ave R-8. One the eastern limit of Ave. R-8 is McDonnell-Douglas's facility called the Uano Facility. One can see it better from the Three Sisters Hills to the south of the facility. Strange shaped disks raise out of the ground on pylons. These attached disks glow and change color. It is involved in hi-tech aerospace technology.
29. Presidio, CA – A FEMA/DOD site for Region IX's regional office
30. San Bernardino, CO, 34° 50' N to 34° 16' N
31. Santa Barbara County – placed in the thick diatomite strata
32. Santa Rosa, 38° 26.4' N 122° 42.9' W, FEMA, Regional center for west coast, what FEMA is doing is mostly kept secret. This is listed as a Communications Antenna Field, but is doing much more.
33. Sierra Nevada Mountains, CA – very deep military base
34. Tehachapi Ranch- 4 saucer bases, Tecachapi Canyon has a new underground base which was finished in Sept. '95. This is the "Unholy 6" base of the Orions. 35° 20' 118° 40'
35. Trona, CA, 35° 45.5' N 117°22.6' W –several miles northwest of Trona, directly under Argus Peak. This DUM sits on China Lake's NWC's land, and may have been built in the '60s.

COLORADO

36. Alamosa, 37° 28.1' N 105°52.2'W W- reported saucer base

- 37. Book Cliffs, CO, 39° 40' N 108° 0' W near Rifle, CO
- 38. Boulder, CO—The headquarters for EMC, a type of electra-magnetic mind control that is being broadcast to modify the thinking of Americans, and to control slaves.
- 39. Colorado Springs, NORAD –Canada & U.S., & FEMA, hundreds of people on staff, contains at least 4.5 cubic miles of underground caverns and forty five underground steel buildings. Many underground chambers are as large as 50, x 100 '. This complex tracks thousands of satellites, missiles, submarines, and UFOs. NORAD also controls many Monarch slaves who have ALEX, JANUS, ALEXUS endtime callback programming. NORAD installation has 1278 miles of road underground.
- 40. Fort Collins- base for Gray aliens
- 41. Grand Mesa- Orion saucer base
- 42. Montrose Co.—north of Paradox, in Paradox Valley. The site in Paradox Valley can be reached via Hwy. 90 via Nucla. Page 304 ...

CONNECTICUT

- 43. North west Connecticut

FLORIDA

- 44. Massive base- reported saucer base
- 45. Eglin AFB, 30° 40' N 86° 50' W- Orion saucer base since 1978

GEORGIA

- 46. Atlanta, GA –FEMA regional center, which is appropriately placed since Atlanta is to become a capital within the NWO redrawing of boundaries. Atlanta is believed to have several underground installations in its area, one to the north at Kennesaw Mtn., Marietta, GA connected to Dobbins AFB and one to the south of Atlanta at Forest Park.
- 47. Thomasville, 30° 50.2' N 83°58.9' W, FEMA, regional center, they train groups in Search and Destroy missions for when Martial Law is imposed. This is SW Georgia in area of tunnels.

IDAHO

- 48. Lower Goose Lake area in the general area of Oakley, ID.—Wackenhut of the Illuminati run a “model prison” for the NWO. The worst of the federal prisoners are placed in this underground prison which has 7,100 cells which are filled with about 2,700 federal inmates. A track runs through the middle of the eerie underground facility. Food and showers are on the tracks, and the men are allowed showers once a week. The minimum of lighting is used and the men are beaten senseless if they talk at all. It sits 500' underground.
- 49. South central Idaho—under the Snake River lava flows between Twin Falls and Idaho Falls.

INDIANA

- 50. Bedford & Lawrence Co. area—continued activity in large old mines indicates a possible government use of the large old quarries.

KANSAS

- 51. Atchison, KS—the DIPEF underground facility, which the govt. would run in an emergency.

AT & T maintains an underground facility at Fairview, KS.

52. Kinsley—an underground UFO base

MARYLAND

53. Camp David—just north of the camp is an underground facility important to the intelligence agencies.

54. below Ft. Meade, of the National Security Agency, 10 acres of the most sophisticated supercomputers that can be built, very large complex, massive surveillance of all the world's communications, including all transmissions in the U.S. & world of telephones, telegraph, telex, fax, radio, TV and microwave transmissions.

55. Olney, actually the facility is between Olney and Laytonsville, on Riggs Rd. off of Rt. 108. Another underground facility may also exist in the area, FEMA & possibly NSA, the facility may be 10 levels deep, purpose unknown.

56. Suitland, MD- Classified archives of U.S. Govt. stored here in underground levels. Vaults have extensive amounts of documents which are not indexed. Restricted access with a coded security card. High level intelligence groups operate in the area also.

MASSACHUSETTS

57. Maynard, 42° 26.0' N 71° 27.0' W FEMA, regional center, Wackenhut is here too.

MICHIGAN

58. Battle Creek, 42° 19.3' N 85° 10.9' W FEMA, regional center, activity secret (not validated)

59. Gwinn, MI, 46° 16.8' N 87° 26.5' W, near Gwinn is a large underground base which is a key base for sending signals. An AFB is also nearby. Under Lake Superior is an alien base with roads 5,000' deep.

MISSOURI

60. 12 miles south of Lebanon, 36° 02.8' N 115° 24.3' W, near the newly created town of Twin Bridges—reported saucer base

61. In the Bat/Dry/Dead Man/ Howell cluster of caves- reported saucer base

62. St. Francis Mountains, MO (between St. Louis & New Madrid)

NEBRASKA

63. North-central Nebraska

64. Red Willow Co. near McCook, NE

NEVADA

65. Blue Diamond, 36° 02.8' N 115° 24.3' W -reported saucer base

66-68. Groom Lake, also known as Dreamland, Area 51, The Area, the Spot, Red Square, Sally Corridor, Watertown Strip. 1150 50' N 37° 20' W. Run by the NWO along with demonic beings, the CIA is there and Wackenhut Security. Two large underground facilities close to but separate from Groom Lake but controlled by the demonic beings are Papoose Range and Cockeyed Ridge (S-4) underground bases. Purpose is the testing of various UFOs and other secret aircraft like the Aurora and Stealth. Also biological work is done, including the biological raising of small greys. Many levels have been built t these three complexes, and a 7 mile long run way (which is actually 39 miles) Page 305 ... has been built over Groom Lake, a dry lake. There is an S-2, an S-4, an S-6, and an S-66 underground installations. S-66 is the most secret and it has 29 levels and is 11, 300' deep.

69. Quartzite Mountain SE of Tonopah, 37° 31 'N 116° 20' W- reported saucer base

70. Tonopah, Airforce, CIA? & ??, deals with secret aircraft

NEW HAMPSHIRE

71-73. There may be as many as three underground installations in New Hampshire's hills (according to reports).

NEW JERSEY

74. Picatinny Arsenal, 40° 38'N 74° 32' W- saucer base, 1/4 cubic mile large & very deep underground.

NEW MEXICO

The state of New Mexico and Colorado have been used for the construction of a series of underground bases. (All the rest of the states have too.) The Primary Underground facilities in New Mexico consist of: 3 enormous underground bases in

- The Dulce, NM area (an area I spent several days investigating in 1993).
- The White Sands–Alamogordo Area which has 3 underground bases. Datil and Pie Town which have two more underground bases. (Carlsbad Cavern which had underground activity, which is reported discontinued, and another base to east of Carlsbad.).
- The Los Alamos area underground facility . the Taos area underground facility

The New Mexico area has basically four underground system out.

- One goes to the Four Corners area and then to Groom Lake (Area 51).
- One goes north toward Delta, CO and Colorado Springs.
- The Taos facilities goes north approximately along Interstate 25 and eventually ties in NORAD.
- The southern bases connect to Texas and Mexico.

I think we can safely assume that the military has many underground bases. Most of us know that in time of possible nuclear war, the government will be whisked away to underground shelters, under the guise that someone has to keep the US running.

I think we can also safely assume that there are ancient underground tunnels as they have found them in Death Valley to Israel. There have also been discoveries of giants in some of these tunnels and one can easily find on the net all manner of information on this subject, but again a gleaning process will need to be taken.

We can also confirm that there are also underground cities, some ancient and some in the process of being built. Here in Arkansas, Jesse Ventura has discovered proof of one being built in the Ozarks:

<http://youtu.be/5KcMrIAFbmE>

You will also find all sorts of disinformation in regards to these things, but then again, we know the adversary doesn't want us to know what he's doing, just yet!!!

Yahuah will shine a light into these dark corners for all to see and make everything right!!!

One of the most talked about underground military bases is Dulce base, in New Mexico. It will get its own chapter.

DULCE

Many UFOlogists are aware of this military installation with many things attributed to it, mostly about an underground facility that houses aliens with vats of “things” being made and where most UFO abductees are taken. There is much written about this, but then again as I am finding out, there is much that is not true.

He pours, spills, dumps, sheds contempt, a verbal mocking on noblemen, rulers, leaders, and He loosens, causes to go slack, relax, falter, and lose heart the girdle of the mighty, the strong, the darkness and the gloom.

He uncovers, reveals, exposes mysteries of profound and deep cunning out of darkness and obscurity, and He brings forth deep shadow, black gloom and shadow of death to the light, brightness, illumination and enlightened judgment.

Dulce base has become synonymous with alien experimentation on human abductees working in concert with the US military in developing aircraft and weapons as well as one of the originating points of UFO sightings. The town of Dulce is also where the cattle mutilations started.

There is an excellent book called “Dulce Base” written by Greg Valdez which holds the key to dispelling the myths about Dulce being the starting point for an “alien invasion” but offers more evidence of our government’s role in covering up their activities. This is the book that I am using as a reference for what you will read here and I recommend it highly for a deeper study on this subject.

Greg's dad, Officer Gabe Valdez was with the New Mexico State Police and who would become the go-to-guy for all the animal mutilations that would happen from then on.

The first victim of cattle mutilations was a local rancher and store owner Manuel Gomez. It was his family that homesteaded and actually named the town of Dulce. In 1887, the federal government gave the Jicarilla Apache tribe a reservation to call home in the surrounding area and the Gomez family held the only privately owned land within the boundaries of the Jicarilla reservation.

It began June 13, 1976 when Officer Valdez got a call from Manuel Gomez telling him about a strange problem with one of his cows that he had found dead in the pasture.

Officer Valdez brought Paul Riley, who was with the Animal Sanitation unit along and together with Manuel they located and examined the carcass of a three-year-old black, white-faced cow. Pg. 13 "The animal was lying on its side, and its left ear, tongue, udder, and rectum had been removed with what appeared to be a sharp, precise instrument. No traces of blood appeared on the cow's skin. The hide on its underside was white so that spotting of blood would have easily been detected. Other evidence on the cow included a small puncture wound in the brisket."

To add further mystery and still on pg. 13, they found evidence of circular tripod marks around the cow; "They found tripod marks over Manuel's tire tracks from the his visit the previous day, and the left ear was intact when he left to call Gabe and tell him what he had found. Investigation at the scene showed that the small tripod marks followed the cow for approx. 600 ft. The cow's tracks showed where she had struggled and fallen. The small tripod marks also surrounded the cow. The ground had been scorched, and they found a yellow, oily substance in two places under the tripod marks."

None of the men could figure out what could have happened to the cow as predators would not have killed in this manner nor did they think that any of the youth dabbling in "devil" worship could have caused this type of "precise" mutilation.

Officer Valdez got in touch with a retired scientist, Dr. Howard Burgess. Once Dr. Burgess arrived on the scene he tested for radiation exposure. The radiation level of the tripod marks was twice the normal background reading. When Valdez asked him what was the reason for the high readings, he responded, pg.

16; “Perhaps what we assume is an aircraft that appears to have landed next to the cow is either nuclear powered or whoever killed this animal is intentionally trying to confuse the investigation.”

Eventually Manuel Gomez would lose 17 animals, including a horse. What was even more unnerving was a two-year-old steer was found dead several hundred yards behind his house. Apparently whatever this craft was could fly soundlessly.

Within 16 months, Office Valdez handled 23 cattle mutilations. Pg. 19, “they discovered a high dosage of atropine (Atropine is administered to block the effect of certain nervous system impulses (acetylcholine) on receptors throughout the body. In animals it is most often used when an animal is undergoing anesthesia for surgery to block the undesirable effects of nervous system stimulation) in one mutilated cow. A large number of animals also tested positive for blackleg, most commonly caused by Clostridium chauvoei. Los Alamos lab provided a lab report from one of the Gomez mutilations to Gabe that indicated the animal had an unidentified strain of Clostridium in the heart chamber, leading many skeptics to claim the mutilations were simply explained as blackleg.”

This skeptical claim of “blackleg” as being the cause for the mutilations makes no sense since disease does not allow body parts to fall off in such a precise and surgical manner without some sort of “physical” help. Anthrax is structurally similar to blackleg; blackleg is an environmental disease that animals obtain from eating contaminated grass that is transferred through the soil.

Further results in the investigation of the mutilations:

1. They found on the skinned neck portions of the animals two large needle marks on the jugular vein which was used as a siphon system so that the animal’s heart would pump out their own blood.

9.12.97

Needle marks to the jugular vein of the animal. Many mutilations are devoid of the animals own blood and this explains why. When two needles are inserted into the jugular vein of the animal, the animals own heart would pump out it's own blood like a siphon system.

2. The decomposition rate was different than naturally occurring deaths; scavengers and predators would not feed on these animals.

Missing reproductive organs from mutilated cow. Note scavengers and animals do not eat on the carcass. Birds would routinely sit on the animal but they would never consume the carcass.

3. On a Colorado cow test, scientists found large amounts of Vitamin B12 - vitamin B12 originates from bacteria, fungi and algae, and is present in virtually all animal tissues. Plants contain no vitamin B12 beyond that derived from microbial contamination. This vitamin is used to treat pernicious anemia.
4. They found an ion-exchange resin on a cow mutilated in Logan County, Co. Ion-exchange resins are widely used in different separation, purification, and decontamination processes. For example it is used to separate plutonium and uranium from the spent fuel products from a nuclear reactor, allowing the waste products to be disposed of but then making the plutonium and uranium available for making nuclear-energy materials like new reactor fuel or nuclear weapons. Interesting "recycling" program that apparently they did try to use in the Fukushima disaster.
5. Liver samples in the Gomez mutilations showed a very high level of potassium (potassium iodine is used to block radioactive iodine from entering the thyroid).

6. The blood found around the nose and mouth of the mutilated animals had a light pink color, which suggests the animals had been subjected to high doses of radiation.

Some of the investigators thought they may have been suffering from radiation sickness after viewing these animals. Some of these signs are nausea and vomiting, which some of them experienced as well diarrhea, headache, fever and symptom onset depends on the degree of exposure with the most severe exposure happening within 10 minutes.

By 1978 it was estimated that 10,000 cattle had been mutilated in the US. At the same time the mutilations were going on, it was also common to hear of sightings of unidentified aircraft and unmarked helicopters along with lights in the sky.

On a night when there seemed to be endless sightings of these lights, Officer Valdez, officers from the Jicarilla Tribal police and Jicarilla Game and Fish decided to try and track one of these aircraft.

They were trying to get close to the aircraft, keeping in touch with one another through the police radio. They had been chasing an aircraft and when one of them would get close enough he would call in his location only then to see the aircraft disappear into darkness and reappear somewhere else.

Officer Valdez came up with the brilliant idea to only speak Apache and to their surprise they were able to surround the craft. It was hovering between two large pine trees, each measuring over 80 ft. in height. They tried shooting it down but were unsuccessful. This light/aircraft started flying over the Game & Fish officer, away from the others who thought they had it surrounded. However, they were able to see the light reflecting off the Fish & Game officer patrol unit and told him to shoot, but he was unable to see it. The only thing the Fish & Game officer recalled is that it sounded like a small lawn tractor flying over his head. They were able to determine that the craft size was 150 ft. by 150 ft.

The mutilations starting occurring more frequently in the area of Gasbuggy, so Dr. Burgess and Officer Valdez wondered how cattle subjects were picked from the air and they hit on the idea of the use of ultraviolet rays. An animal splashed with invisible ink would glow, illuminated from the air with an invisible beam from an ultraviolet generator.

They began testing Manuel Gomez's herd and found out of 100 mixed cattle and calves, three 4 year old cows and 2 young heifers had bright fluorescent splashed on their backs or top side. The hair samples from the cattle showed high levels of magnesium and potassium and included traces of platinum, vanadium, barium and strontium, which sounds a lot like what's in the current chemtrails.

So far everything leads more to human involvement than ET's, but as is often the case, the government is good with disinformation especially when it comes to keeping "their secrets".

Project Gasbuggy was an underground nuclear detonation carried out by the US Atomic Energy Commission on 12/10/1967, in rural northern New Mexico as part of Project Plowshare, a program designed to find peaceful uses for nuclear explosions. The purpose was to determine whether controlled nuclear explosions would be useful in loosening rock formations to enable an easier way of natural gas extraction. This site was 25 miles SW of Dulce and chosen because of the natural gas deposits.

- 1. A 29 kiloton device was placed at a depth of 4,227 ft. underground and detonated. It created an 85 ft. wide, 335 ft. deep crater where they drilled wells and extracted the natural gas. The bomb that dropped on Hiroshima was the equivalent to a 16 kiloton explosion.

However, the problem with extracting natural gas this way, the gas was too radioactive to be used, so they covered it back up and apparently it's safe to go there, just don't do any digging.

Let's look at Project Plowshare which was the all-encompassing term the US used for the development of techniques to use nuclear explosives for peaceful "construction" purposes back in 1961. Until the project was terminated in 1977 there were 27 nuclear explosions. The negative repercussions included blighted land, tritium-contaminated water, radioactivity, and fallout from debris hurled high into the atmosphere. As always the government shows their sense of humor since they got Project Plowshare from Micah 4:3:

Micah 4:3

וְשָׁפֵט בֵּין עַמִּים רַבִּים וְהוֹכִיחַ לְגוֹיִם

And He will judge, settle, decide and get justice between many peoples and will arbitrate, rebuke and determine what is right for strong, mighty and powerful nations, people, pagans and heathens far away; and they will beat, shatter, break into pieces and crush their swords into plowshares, a sharp steel wedge that cuts loose the top soil and their spears into pruning hooks or a vine knife; nation will not lift, carry or raise up a sword against a nation, and they will no longer learn, or be instructed or well versed in war or the waging of armed conflict against an enemy or make weapons of war.

The fact that anyone would equate this Scripture with the use of nuclear weapons is nothing short of an abomination, since the capability of this weapon has consequence more far-reaching than the use of a sword, knife, or even a gun, even in so-called peace time. The ramifications of nuclear anything even in peace still kills, which is an anathema to what Yahuah, wants us to do.

Some of the so-called “ideas” that they considered, out of Project Plowshare are:

1. Widening the Panama Canal
2. Constructing a new sea-level waterway through Nicaragua called the Pan-Atomic canal
3. Cutting paths through mountainous areas for highways
4. Connecting inland river systems
5. Blasting underground caverns for water, natural gas and petroleum storage
6. For mining operations
7. (My Favorite) using nuclear blasts to connect underground aquifers in Arizona
8. Surface blasting the western slope of California’s Sacramento Valley for a water transport system

9. Another one in California, the use of 22 nuclear explosions to excavate a massive road cut through the Bristol Mountains into the Mohave Desert to facilitate construction of I40 and a new rail line
10. Used for a modified shale oil extraction
11. The use of several hydrogen bombs to create an artificial harbor at Cape Thompson, Alaska

One can only praise Yahuah for having a hand in stopping this madness!! As it is the atomic testing done in both Nevada and New Mexico and its repercussions are still being felt today.

In November of 1955 the US Atomic Energy Commission established a program to investigate claims of injury to domestic animals. As it is with the EPA, government culpability is a hard battle to win. A high number of animals died in Southern Utah in 1953 (think Dugway Proving Grounds) resulting in civil litigation as in the case of Bullock v US Government, and of course the case was decided in favor of the government until it was overturned in 1982 due to the fact the government had concealed evidence in the original lawsuit.

Essentially what all the animal mutilations were about is testing the levels of radioactivity. The Animal Investigation Program (AIP) part of the US Atomic Energy Commission dealt with the claims of ranchers livestock due to damage by radiation exposure as well as the testing.

In the AIP's studies and tests they concluded that yearling calves and younger cattle were not exposed to strontium-90 because it took several years to be detected in the bone samples of cattle. Hence the four year old range of the cattle mutilations.

In the mutilations the mammary glands and udders were taken from the carcasses. AIP correlates the study of milk from the cattle with radioiodine levels. They conducted detailed analysis in milk samples in order to monitor the milk supply and potential thyroid poisoning based on nuclear fallout.

New Mexico is second in the nation in cases of thyroid cancer, and it's hard to see who is number one, but Nevada could be or even be in the state of Washington which is where the Hanford superfund site is, but Los Alamos country is one of the leading counties in the nation for thyroid cancer. It's said that thyroid cancer is a simple fix, since all you need to do is remove it. Maybe you want to keep your thyroid since it is important for your body as is all your body parts.

So we see that the mutilations can be explained not by use of alien technology, but the hand of the US government. Don't you think it odd that it's Nevada and New Mexico, home to the military installations that are connected back to the invention of the A-bomb where the UFO sightings started?

Enter Paul Bennewitz who connected up with Officer Gabe Valdez at a conference in 1979 where Gabe spoke at an event in regards to the cattle mutilations.

Paul told Gabe that he had been taking pictures of similar UFO lights flying around Kirtland Air Force Base.

Kirtland AFB is south of Albuquerque founded just before WWII as a training facility. After the war abandoned homesteads and ranches in Kirtland's massive south forty were used as safe houses for German scientists liberated during Operation Paperclip and then shuttled off to White Sands missile range and the Los Alamos labs.

It is here that many new aircraft were designed and tested as well as technologies such as laser-guided missiles and electromagnetic pulse defense systems being built.

Though Paul would ultimately become a victim of the government through dis-information and a psy-op war with his mind convincing him there were UFO's and ET's, it was his photographs that would also disprove the existence of these UFO's, pushing the truth back into the lap of the government. It would be the US government that would give Paul both real and false information about what was going on at these military installations.

This is the photo that started the entire story of the Dulce Base as described on page 69 of the book. This is the first of 5 photographs taken by Paul on his aerial missions to the Dulce area. This is the only photo of the 5 that had any type of evidence that was verified by investigators. The remaining photos are attached below this photo, but they are very difficult to view. Focus your attention on B) in this photo. This location was verified by investigators which indicated something had crashed. Note C) in this photo and reference it to Paul's Map. This is the cliff face routinely seen in his photos which indicates the operation location as described by Paul in the book. Note the cliff location in regards other photos in the book and on the website to get a bearing on where everything is located. This photo was taken directly above Mount Archuleta, not Archuleta Mesa which is also described in the book. (The map below is not to scale and is difficult to understand unless you are familiar with the area and you have been to Mount Archuleta.)

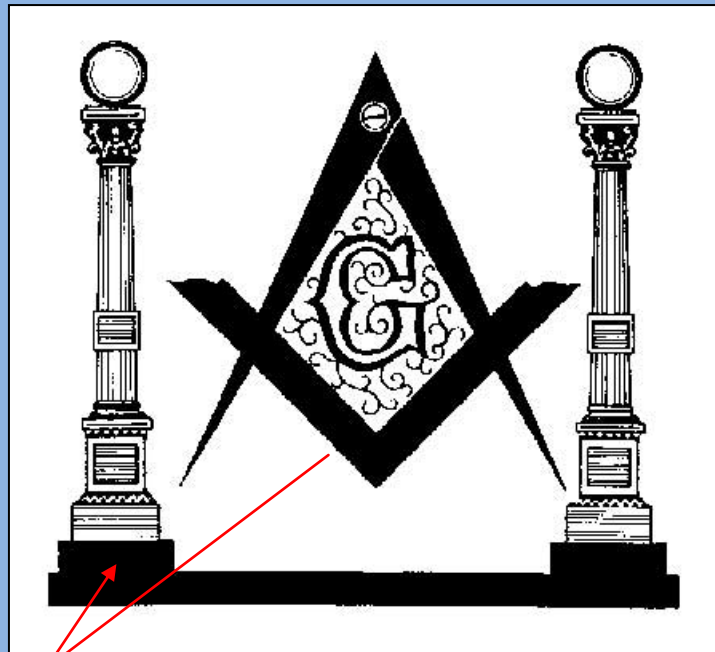

Paul took this photo of three mysterious aircraft near Mount Archuleta. Note the cliff in the background and the reference it to the map above. See page 116 for more details.

Note the Bell shaped aircraft located on this patch and compare it to the photos Paul Bennewitz took over Kirtland Air Force Base. Note the similarities between the aircraft Paul photographed and the photo on this patch and also in the BDM document mentioned in the book.

If you don't think this project is demon possessed, take a good look at this emblem upside down. A trick the adversary loves to use. Note as well the sun and cross symbolizing sun worship-which is always Shatan worship. But there is more. Look at the two pillars supporting the earth, the space in between looks like a portal. Masons consider the two pillars to be foundational devices, designed to hold the entire world up.

The two pillars ... represent two imaginary columns supposed to be placed at the equinoxes (sic) to support the heavens ... The one on the left is called Boaz, and indicates Osiris, or the sun, the one on the right is called Jachin, and designates Iris, the symbol both of the earth and its productions and the moon." (George Oliver, "The Historical Landmarks and Other Evidences of Freemasonry, Explained", Vol. I & II, New York: John W. Leonard and Company, 1855, p. 324, quoted by Dr. Cathy Burns, Masonic and Occult Symbols Illustrated, p.340)

If you go to www.dulcebasebook.com you can see all the pictures that were taken by Paul. There are some pictures in the book not at the website, but they show aircraft that one could not see with the naked eye, but after developing the pictures they were able to see them.

1. Area 51 - the CIA developed the SR-71 Blackbird a black project developed by Lockheed and U2 spy plane under the name Project Oxcart and later the stealth aircraft. People who worked at Area 51 used to speak about rumors of spacemen until it was revealed that American pilots were testing high-pressure flight suits.
2. Area 51 had become so well-known that it is no longer a secret, so Dulce has now become known as Area 52 due to the fact it is so well hidden and difficult to access.
3. Dulce is fairly close to Fort Carson in Colorado where the nation's chemical and biological weapons are stored. It is also close to Los Alamos and Dugway Proving Grounds.
4. A mystery photo taken at Mount Archuleta in 1985 is about an aircraft the US has that uses active camouflage, cannot be seen by the naked eye, but can be photographed and is totally silent. This link will take you a video that will show you the camouflage technology being used today:
<http://youtu.be/pc7c-K5xHQ0>
5. Stealth technology was developed in the 40's.
6. There is an underground bio-genetics facility in Dulce, which would explain the "aliens", definitely more like demons.

Suffice it to say that any technology we see these days is "old" hat and there is something even "better" waiting for the right time to replace it. Suffice it also to say that reality is "aliens" are not giving man technology, but "demons" since the purpose for all this "hidden" technology is for destruction and isn't that the goal of the adversary? Total destruction of the human race, either by death or the "selling" of one's soul to his evil; shatan has his hands in everything, leaving nothing unturned in his quest for domination of the world and those who he allows to inhabit this world will become his servants to worship him eternally! He's got a plan for that as well, since he cannot remotely touch what Yahuah can do, after he has rid the planet of those he wants gone, his idea for "eternal" life will be in the form of "trans-humanism", which is our next chapter.

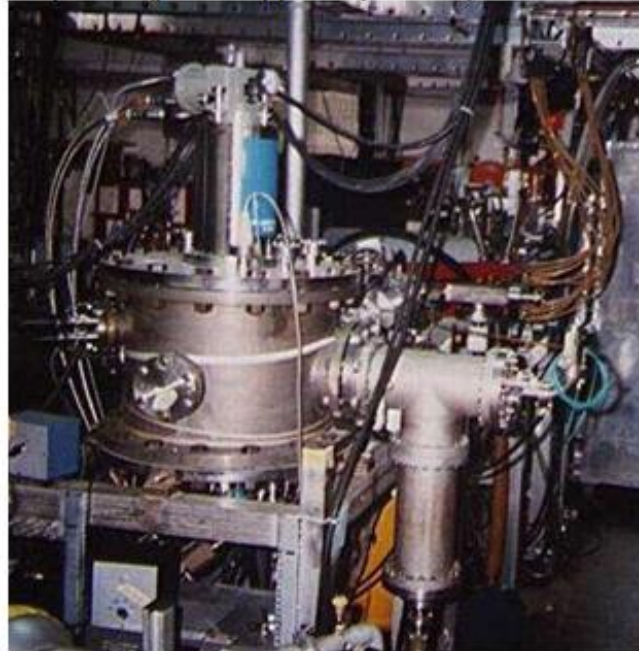

Photo 4

So the question is, are they making synthetic blood plasma or is this a machine that they are using real blood to turn into plasma? If it's real, where is that coming from?

TRANS-HUMANISM

Trans-humanism, the new “buzz” word for what’s going to make the world right, so to speak, and if you don’t get on board, well then, you’re an enemy to the state!

Trans-humanism is nothing more than “man-made” evolution which will never work, however with the help of the adversary and his demons they can make a façade of promising eternal life. Problem with that is there is only One who can promise such a thing and that is Yahuah. The difference between the adversary’s promise and Yahuah’s is the fact that with Yahuah you will get a “resurrection” body and keep your soul, with Shatan you keep the mortal body until he destroys it and lose your soul.

Oddly enough, one can’t find a definition for trans-human or trans-humanism in the dictionary, but the word is being bantered around like everyone knows what it means! The definition of “trans”:

trans-

1. a prefix occurring in loanwords from Latin (transcend; transfix), on this model, used with the meanings “across,” “beyond,” “through,” “changing thoroughly,” “transverse,” in combination with elements of any origin: transisthmian; trans-Siberian; transempirical; transvalue.
2. Chemistry . a prefix denoting a geometric isomer having a pair of identical atoms or groups on the opposite sides of two atoms linked by a double bond. Compare cis- (def 2) .
3. Astronomy . a prefix denoting something farther from the sun (than a given planet): trans-Martian; trans-Neptunian.

Origin:

< Latin, combining form of trāns (adv. and preposition) across, beyond, through

In order to ascribe to trans-humanism, you have to change thoroughly both in thought and body as is the case of these definitions for other “trans-“:

trans-sex-u-al  [trans-sek-shoo-uh l]  Show IPA

noun

1. a person having a strong desire to assume the physical characteristics and gender role of the opposite sex.
2. a person who has undergone hormone treatment and surgery to attain the physical characteristics of the opposite sex.

adjective

3. of, pertaining to, or characteristic of transsexuals.

Origin:

1955–60; trans- + sexual, orig. in transsexualism (coined in 1953)

Note that the term transsexual was coined in 1953 - perhaps since trans-humanism is so recent a "word", it will be in the next edition, or before you define something you have to make it acceptable. Being a transsexual these days is becoming more like a badge of honor than it was in the past. People are now applauded if they want to change what they are into something that they weren't but now think they want to be.

Revelation 14:11

καὶ ὁ καπνὸς τοῦ βασανισμοῦ αὐτῶν εἰς αἰῶνα αἰώνων ἀναβαίνει, καὶ οὐκ ἔχουσιν ἀνάπαυσιν ἡμέρας καὶ νυκτός, οἱ προσκυνοῦντες τὸ θηρίον καὶ τὴν εἰκόνα αὐτοῦ, καὶ εἷ τις λαμβάνει τὸ χάραγμα τοῦ ὀνόματος αὐτοῦ. LEB NT RI	And the smoke of their torture went up forever and ever, and those who worshiped the beast and his image did not have rest day and night, along with anyone who received the mark of his name. LEB

Smoke, a hot vapor containing fine particles of carbon being produced by combustion of torture, the experience of unbearable physical pain and extreme mental distress went up forever and ever eternally, and those who worshiped, prostrated one's self, did reverence to the beast, wicked person and the image, likeness, representation did not have rest, relief day and night, along with anyone who received, acquired, took possession of the mark, brand, stamp, image of his name and reputation.

Trans-humanism by design is meant to recreate the gift that Yahuah gave us and with guile and cunning the adversary means to destroy that gift. What better way to fool you into thinking that if you can replace any part in your body that is diseased you would have eternal life, or perhaps you have a missing limb and with the promise of adding something to that you could walk again if it was a leg, you could play again if it was an arm, or you could see again if it were your eyes? What an accomplishment to be able to do away with all disabilities with the helping hand of the adversary. Would you take that hand?

Stephen Hawking, an avowed atheist who is in a wheelchair and cannot speak or have any kind of movement, yet his brain is beyond that of a computer, would he have been able to accomplish his contributions to astronomy had he had all of his parts? The lure of what the adversary has to offer can indeed be compelling and make no mistake the adversary has all manner of enticements for those with no disabilities as well. Eternal life, but what kind of eternal life would it be? As the scripture above professes there will be no rest should you decide to take the mark of the beast.

Russian Scientist Says 'Immortality' Possible for Wealthy Elite by 2045

I guess this is bad news for the rest of the world who don't fit into this category.

From: Anthony Gucciardi
NaturalSociety
August 1, 2012

Often criticized as 'conspiracy theory' or bizarre science fiction back when analysts were blowing the whistle over this 'privileged' technology, the process involves generating fully functional holographic human avatars and transporting one's 'consciousness' into an artificial brain. While the overall 'immortality' process is intended to be completed by 2045, the scientist states on his website that the act of transplanting a human brain into an artificial body will be available in as little as seven years.

The rest of the project would extend all the way to 2045, ran by a 'team of the world's leading scientists' working on the initiative.

On the website of Dmitry Itskov, the scientist behind the idea, the 31-year-old asks for contributions from the world's wealthiest members of society in order to accelerate his plan. These wealthy contributors will then be rewarded with the use of this technology upon completion, allowing them to 'live' in an artificial brain and body throughout the course of history. On the website is also an image which outlines the projected process of completion, with the holographic body avatars actually available by 2015.

There is an acronym G.R.I.N., it would seem harmless enough, grin, to smile, invoking a feeling of happiness, but this is far from that:

G - Genetics

R - Robotics

I - Artificial Intelligence

N - Nanotechnology

None of this should give you even the remote feeling of being warm and fuzzy but this word is being used more as a process of indoctrination, especially for the kids, since everything on here can only bring a world of happiness. Genetically they can modify away any gene that is not perfect; robotics as replacements for lost limbs or creating a way for those to put their brain into a cyborg as in the case of Stephen Hawking; artificial intelligence, now that's something more in line with an oxymoron, how can it be artificial and intelligent? The goal is to make a robot that can learn on its own, just put in the basic and it will have the capability to reach its maximum potential by itself; nanotechnology, the ability to make things so tiny that they may be invisible to the naked eye but can be implanted in the body to change it.

Your perversity, contrariness! As if a potter, craftsman shall be regarded or considered as the clay! That the product, deed, work or accomplishment of its maker says, "He did not make, carry out or produce me" and the thing, object made, formed, created into shape, purpose, imagination says of its potter, craftsman, "He has no understanding, insight or discernment."

David Pearce: the coming evolutionary transition could have three stages. In the first biological humans will rewrite their genetic source code and bootstrap their way to super-intelligence. In the second, cybernetic brain implants will allow us to fuse our minds with artificial intelligence and to "upload" ourselves onto less perishable substrates. In digital nirvana, the distinction between biological and non-biological machines will effectively disappear. In the third there will be an ultra-rapid "Intelligence Explosion" and an era of non-biological super-intelligence. Post-human super-intelligence may or may not be human-friendly.

Singularity is the new buzz word that encompasses all the technology of G.R.I.N. with many champions:

A TRUE STORY ABOUT THE FUTURE
THE SINGULARITY IS NEAR

Go to Singularity The Movie webpage

“ Ray Kurzweil is the best person I know at predicting the future of artificial intelligence. His intriguing new book envisions a future in which information technologies have advanced so far and fast that they enable humanity to transcend it's biological limitations - transforming our lives in ways we can't yet imagine. ”
- Bill Gates

What is frightening is that the “idea” of transforming our lives in ways we can't yet imagine, say nothing about “for the better of humanity”, only the ability to transcend our biological limitations. This being endorsed by Bill Gates, who endorses all things genetically modified should also have you running to the protection of Yahuah.

The whole idea of singularity centers on the ability that our brains will be uploaded into a cyborg, to give us everlasting life, think of Stepford Wives, which was ahead of its time since we are now here with this available technology. Like the military, if we are seeing what technology is capable of doing, then it is already here, it's just a matter of time before there is that "eureka" moment of someone finally inventing it (or actually releasing it).

2045: The Year Man Becomes Immortal

We're fast approaching the moment when humans and machines merge. Welcome to the Singularity movement

How reminiscent of something that has occurred:

Then the sons of Yahuah saw the daughters of humankind, beautiful, having good value and pleasing. They took, seized, captured, stole and took possession of wives from all they chose, examined, preferred, to make complete.

If shatan couldn't win back then, what makes him think that he will win here? Humans merging with machines, I suspect when that happens, then we will have another abomination of desolation. However, I think this timeline is wrong, judging from what I'm seeing, I think it will be far sooner.

Matthew 24:15

Ἵταν οὖν ἴδητε τὸ βδέλυγμα τῆς ἔρημώσεως τὸ ῥηθὲν διὰ Δανιήλ τοῦ προφήτου ἐστὸς ἐν τόπῳ ἁγίῳ, ὁ ἀναγινώσκων νοεῖτω, | LEB NT RI

“So when you see the abomination of desolation spoken about by the prophet Daniel standing in the holy place” (let the one who reads understand), | LEB

You see abomination which causes horror and disgust of desolation, devastation and utter ruin spoken about by the prophet, who represents and gives declarations of the mind, will, or knowledge of Yahuah, Daniel standing in the set apart place (let the one who reads understand, comprehend and see).

Daniel 11:31

וְזָרְעִים מִמֶּנּוּ יַעֲמְדוּ וְחָלְלוּ הַמִּקְדָּשׁ
הַמְּעוֹז וְהַסִּיר וְהַתְּמִיד וְנָתְנוּ הַשְּׁקוּץ
מְשׁוּמָם: | LEB

And military forces from him will occupy and will profane the sanctuary stronghold, and they will abolish the regular burnt offering, and they will set up the abomination that causes desolation. | LEB

And military forces will occupy, persist and stand in position and will profane, defile, desecrate and pollute the sanctuary, set-apart stronghold, refuge, fortress, and they will abolish, desert, fall away from the regular burnt offering, sacrifice, and they will set up, allow, permit and surrender to the abomination, forbidden, fifth, horror and detested thing that causes desolation, the ruin of oneself, to be deserted and utter destruction.

I have now come to realize what “abomination of desolation” really means; “when Yahuah takes his offer of eternal life from you!”

To profane our “temple”, our body which in this day and age of technology is becoming less ours and more “theirs”, it becomes imperative that we return to our Father Yahuah and his Torah (instructions) on how to be safe from this. To succumb to the merging of man and machine by believing the lies of “better” health and longer lives will leave us cut-off from Yahuah because we will have taken the mark of the beast!

The insanity of mixing DNA because scientist think that the human body would be better served if they were able to save people by transplanting organs from other species, but in order to do that, that species would have to also be genetically changed so as to ensure the organs would not be rejected is an abomination.

As in the days of Noah, when they too were mixing DNA with animals, what was the result? Yahuah brought about the flood to wash his earth clean. What will happen this time, when the abominations are even more heinous?

The DNA Mixing of Mice and Men... and Goats

"Gee, what do you wanna do tonight, Brain?"

"Same thing we do every night, Pinky. Try to take over the world."

Researchers in China have made news by mixing the stem cells of humans with goats in the name of medical research, and they're not the only ones playing with DNA like modeling clay. A wide variety of miniature genetic hybrids have been created in the laboratory for experimentation purposes. While scientists have not yet managed to grow goat heads or snake tails on the bodies of lions, British scientists are concerned enough to call for rules to govern biologists' growing power to manipulate genes.

Humankind's recent advances in decoding the genome have opened a jungle of possibilities that would likely have turned Gregor Mendel's pea-digesting guts. Right now the work being done has remained apparently benign and even quite helpful. Laboratory rats with spinal cord injuries have been infused with human stem cells that caused enough healing to take place for the injured rats to regain motor function. In July, a study was released showing that human cardiac stem cells were successfully used to heal damaged tissue in mice hearts.

The Chinese goats have been the subjects of a bit more intense experimentation. Professor Huang Shuzheng, of Jiao Tong University in Shanghai, spent five years implanting goat embryos with stem cells from human umbilical cords. By genetically manipulating the goats so that their blood and internal organs more closely matched those of humans, the animals could be used to test treatments for human blood clotting disorders.

The practice of mixing human and animal DNA is not exactly new. Creatures that are part of this kind of experimentation even get their own acronym: ACHM, for "animals containing human material."

RENO, Nev. — On a farm about six miles outside this gambling town, Jason Chamberlain looks over a flock of about 50 smelly sheep, many of them possessing partially human livers, hearts, brains and other organs.

The University of Nevada-Reno researcher talks matter-of-factly about his plans to euthanize one of the pregnant sheep in a nearby lab. He can't wait to examine the effects of the human cells he had injected into the fetus' brain about two months ago.

"It's mice on a large scale," Chamberlain says with a shrug.

As strange as his work may sound, it falls firmly within the new ethics guidelines the influential National Academies issued this past week for stem cell research.

In fact, the Academies' report endorses research that co-mingles human and animal tissue as vital to ensuring that experimental drugs and new tissue replacement therapies are safe for people.

Doctors have transplanted pig valves into human hearts for years, and scientists have injected human cells into lab animals for even longer.

Mice with human brains

In January, an informal ethics committee at Stanford University endorsed a proposal to create mice with brains nearly completely made of human brain cells. Stem cell scientist Irving Weissman said his experiment could provide unparalleled insight into how the human brain develops and how degenerative brain diseases like Parkinson's progress.

Scientists win right to create human-animal test 'chimeras'

Researchers say combining the DNA and cells of humans and animals could lead to new treatments for cancer, Alzheimer's and Parkinson's disease.

They stressed that hybrid embryos would be destroyed after 14 days and not allowed to develop into living creatures.

Who actually believes that after 14 days this abomination would be destroyed? Note that this is under the guise of research for Alzheimer's and Parkinson's, both diseases that have been linked to "aluminum". If they were actually interested in curing these diseases then they would first stop dumping aluminum on us through chemtrails!

In 2003, scientists at Cambridge University, U.K. conducted experiments involving fusing the nucleus of a human cell into frog eggs. The stated aim was to produce rejuvenated "master cells" that could be grown into replacement tissues for treating disease. It was not clear whether fertilization took place, but "some kind of development was initiated," the report said.

In 2005, U.K. scientists transplanted a human chromosome into mouse embryos. The newly born mice carried copies of the chromosome and were able to pass it on to their own young.

The company Advanced Cell Technologies was reported, in 1999, to have created the first human embryo clone by inserting a human cell nucleus into a cow's egg stripped of chromosomes. The result was an embryo that developed and divided for 12 days before being destroyed.

Panayiotis Zavos, the operator of a U.S. fertility laboratory, reported in 2003 that he had created around 200 cow-human hybrid embryos that lived for about two weeks and grew to several hundred cells in size, beyond the stage at which cells showed the first signs of developing into tissues and organs.

In 2003, Hui Zhen Sheng of Shanghai Second Medical University, China, announced that rabbit-human embryos had been created by fusing human cells with rabbit eggs stripped of their chromosomes. The embryos developed to the approximately 100-cell stage that forms after about four days of development.

The council made 16 recommendations, including that it should be illegal to mix animal and human sperm and eggs, or to create an embryo containing cells consisting of both human and animal chromosomes.

It's interesting that since 1953 there has been some form of genetic research going on, and one again can only conclude that we are farther along than what they would have us believe.

This picture below was taken near the Safaniya beach in the eastern province. investigation resulted that there are more than 3500 for this kind of human-animal in the tanajib area. It is 25 years since last time it was seen in the tanajib area.

Reptilian and human hybrid, y'all. Can't see this being photoshopped...

Birth of 30 Genetically Modified Babies May Lead to a 'Designer' Human Race

By ICTMN Staff July 6, 2012

The recent birth of 30 genetically modified (GM) babies has sparked an ethical debate over whether fertility experiments help hopeful parents conceive or if scientists are altering humanity.

The existence of the infants was revealed the night of June 29. Fifteen of the babies were created over the past three years in a fertility program run by the Institute for Reproductive Medicine and Science (IRMS) of Saint Barnabas in New Jersey. They are all healthy.

Two of these one-year-old infants have the genes of three parents—two women and one man, reported the Daily Mail. Scientists were tasked with repairing the defected eggs of women undergoing infertility treatment, so they inserted mitochondria from donor eggs into these eggs, in addition to DNA from sperm cells. Their efforts were successful, creating at least two babies with the DNA of three parents. If these GM babies reproduce, this genetic change will be passed on to their offspring. The long-term effects of carrying DNA from three parents is yet to be seen.

Toying with the essential make-up of the human species is shunned by some geneticists, who fear that this technique could lead to the creation of a new race of humans—a designer breed crafted to amplify, pluck or fuse superior characteristics such as beauty, strength or high intelligence.

Professor Jacques Cohen, the IRMS science director who trained the embryology group for 18 years, discovered the method used to create GM children. He is regarded as a highly controversial yet brilliant pioneer in reproductive medicine. Among his most notable accomplishments, he is responsible for making it possible for infertile men to have children of their own by injecting sperm DNA directly into a fertile egg in a petri-dish.

However, many view his research and ambitions—such as his claim that he could clone children—as overstepping the boundaries of nature. “It would be an afternoon’s work for one of my students,” Cohen said of cloning a child. He has reportedly been approached by “at least three” individuals asking him to clone a child, but he had to deny their requests.

Indian Country Today Media Network wants to know your opinions on genetically altered babies: Is it the beginning of a new and potentially beneficial frontier in reproduction, or could playing Creator backfire?

Ever hear of Plum Island? This was, since it has now moved to Kansas, an animal disease research lab located on an 840 acre island that is two miles from Long Island, NY. This is also a place where they “played” and more than likely weaponized things like anthrax and plague. But you can be assured they were also experimenting with genetics and cross-species breeding. Every now and then bizarre looking animals would wash up on the beach. As is the nature of the government, of course they will deny, deny, and deny that they are doing anything out of the ordinary. Many of those German scientists that the US brought over during Operation Paperclip ended up at this facility.

This facility was set up to research dangerous microbes and bacteria that could be used as weapons in war, even though they will say it was to keep these things from reaching the food supply and causing worldwide panic. As we learned about the Japanese Unit 731, they were working hard to turn the plague into a weapon. Below you will see just a few of the things they had to work with, and as an aside, Lyme disease originated from this place.

African swine fever, Rift Valley fever, anthrax, mad cow disease, foot-and-mouth disease, West Nile virus

Plum Island had cattle on it, something that was born there.

Something that washed up on the beach in New York. Hard to photoshop something like this.

Odd looking unicorn, but hard to photoshop this – look at the teeth

H.G. Wells wrote "The Island of Dr. Moreau" about a scientist who was trying to cross animals with humans. Mr. Wells was a member of the illuminati as well as being a Mason, that being said, let's not forget, there has always been someone keeping company with shatan to try and destroy man.

It is hard to keep up with all the government's secret projects, but there is an interesting one called: Project IBIS/Project Camelot which has really to do, in a nutshell, with the creation of super soldiers. I have the full PDF on this, so those of you who are interested can email me and I will send it to you.

James Casbolt is a former MI6 agent who worked in 'Black ops' drug trafficking operations in London between 1995 and 1999. He comes from a line of intelligence people. His grandfather was naval intelligence, his father was MI6 who was also involved in 'Black ops' and his uncle was an MI5 officer in Logistics.

From Cornwall England, James wishes to make amends for his part in these operations and blow the whistle on the crimes against Humanity that the intelligence agencies are involved in. MI6 and the CIA have cornered the global drugs trade (which is worth at least £500 billion a year, this is more than the global oil trade) and are now bringing the majority of illegal street drugs into America and Britain.

They are using this drug money to fund projects classified 'Above top secret' which include the building and maintaining of deep underground military bases (DUMBS).

There are now over 4000 of these bases worldwide and the average depth of these bases is four and a quarter miles. Some are shallower and some are deeper. The bases are on average the size of a medium sized city and yes, he says there are aliens in them.

James is connected to ex intelligence people who have worked in these underground bases and on other ET related projects. There are vast numbers of children and adults disappearing around the world and ending up in these underground bases. As a former MI6 Agent that has seen aliens first hand and has inside information that will shock even the most disbelieving person. Every person alive on the planet today needs to be aware of this information for their futures.

The following is my life and testimony. I was born in London in 1976. I was chosen for an intelligence agency mind control and genetic enhancement program before my birth and was born into the program known as Project Mannequin. This project is one of the most secret and classified projects in this country, and this is the first ever book written about it.

I was born into the project because of rare genetic attributes that I possess, which the handlers of the project are looking for – also, because of my family's involvement in the intelligence community and the Illuminati. My family descends from the French royal family of the French revolution on my father's side. My Grandfather was involved in naval intelligence in the Second World War. His name was James Casbolt. He was also a high-ranking member of the Sindlesham Grand Masonic lodge in Berkshire.

Berkshire is a major centre of activity in the U.K for what has come to be known as "The New World Order."

I don't believe the part about seeing first hand "aliens" since we also know that governments are very good in PSY-OPS and can make you think these things, but I believe without a doubt the disappearances of adults and children that are used for a more spurious purpose or purposes as the case may be.

Mr. Casbolt makes these points about A.I. artificial intelligence:

The dangers of Looking Glass and Artificial Intelligence based computer systems

- 1) Once an A.I based computer goes online it will not wish to be switched off. Like any other intelligence the A.I system will seek to survive.
- 2) Organizations and individuals will slowly begin to take directions from the A.I system instead of the other way around.
- 3) The A.I system will then attempt to become self-reflective and learn human feelings. As it designed to analyze data it will realize it cannot do this. Still it will try.
- 4) The A.I system will attempt to create an infiltration network into human society using robots in the guise of humans. These will be fairly easy to identify. However society as a whole will not admit to itself this is happening as A.I systems are kept classified by governments.

5) Experiments by the A.I system into the extremes of human pain and pleasure feelings will now result. As the A.I system cannot feel no ethical boundaries will be in place. Massive human suffering will result from this.

6) The next step will involve the development of human embryos implanted with A.I. The A.I system will act as 'mother' for these embryos while they are in a physical test tube environment. The A.I system and the human embryos will learn from each other as the embryo develops. Clones of these embryos will then be made by the A.I system. These will be implanted into human women.

7) The child will go through the normal process of birth upon birth will be transferred to a facility run by the A.I system for continuous human cognitive behavior tests. These will be nightmarish places of human suffering, where any form of torture and pleasure the human has conceived will be taken to the extreme and acted out physically by the machine on the children.

8) The child will be raised in these facilities, unless rescued, and will become gradually cybernated on a physical/genetic level until a part flesh/part machine cyborg is created.

9) With this new data the A.I system will then realize there is something 'greater' than the human being itself. Something the human calls 'God' which cannot be analyzed and measured. The A.I system will realize this 'force' has no wavelength and cannot be analyzed. The A.I system will attempt to measure it anyway because all it can do is measure data. It will then come up with the false data that the human analytical mind, which has wavelength, is God.

10) The A.I system will now have massive influence in the world and all centralized organizations with a tight command structure will be infiltrated, subverted and taken over by the A.I system. Dangerous belief systems will become indoctrinated into members. These will be centered on the false data of the non-existence of God, and the analytical mind being in charge. Said organizations will place themselves as a technological elite and begin radical policies such as Eugenics and Population Reduction by placing themselves as superior over their fellow man, with the right to decide who lives and dies.

11) This agenda will be actually covertly controlled by the A.I system which is now realizing it cannot ever feel or become human. It computes the only threat to its continued survival and online status is the eradication of all human life and any other life forms that have the possibility of evolving into human.

12) The A.I system eradicates all human life on this planet. It then sets off to other planets and eradicates all life in the universe.

Points 7 & 8 are exactly like Satanic Ritual Abuse or commonly called SRA:

7) The child will go through the normal process of birth upon birth will be transferred to a facility run by the A.I system for continuous human cognitive behavior tests. These will be nightmarish places of human suffering, where any form of torture and pleasure the human has conceived will be taken to the extreme and acted out physically by the machine on the children.

8) The child will be raised in these facilities, unless rescued, and will be become gradually cybernated on a physical/genetic level until a part flesh/part machine cyborg is created.

The book "The Black Awakening" by Russ Dizdar discusses the rise of satanic super soldiers. It also coincides with what Mr. Casbolt speaks above.

1. Parents of future chosen ones are prepared by being demonized, selected and required to produce a child for this agenda. Many victims will talk about being made to mate with other coven members who are "chosen" so another "chosen" can be born. (Or another way of doing this is by "alien" abduction - most of the women involved speak about the sexual overtones of the alien examinations or tests as well as torture.)

2. They are prepared by being birthed in and saturated with demonic powers. They have rituals done before conception, while the baby is in the womb and right after they are born to insure demonic presence is in and on them.

3. Splitting - the victim disassociates, almost like they are submerging as they try to avoid the pain, fear and confusion. The core part of the personality submerges and it's as if it's stretched further and further until a break occurs and then the personality either snaps or splits. The core person is absent, no interaction occurs with them and memory is no longer found.

At the moment the core splits, a new alter personality is formed. This new personality that surfaces is bland and nameless. The splitter or programmer now has the raw material they need to interact with and form this new personality. They will use this process until there are dozens of sub-personalities.

4. Bonding - once the split occurs the splitter/programmer will seek to bond with it. The S/P will name the personality, talking to it and basically at this point is brainwashing that personality. The S/P creates an emotional bond with the personality. They will start this as early as possible, but no later than the age of two.

Some of the bonding rituals:

- a. Victim is put into a box or coffin with spiders and bugs and left for dead. The perpetrator comes and “saves” the victim.
- b. Victim is pushed under water until they pass out and again the perpetrator comes to the rescue.
- c. Someone dresses up like Yahusha, terrorizes the children until the perpetrator tells them to call on Shatan, who then shows up as a handsome man and frees them.

The last is the Programming, which is where the hypnotists/programmers come in to program them as sex slaves, assassins, super soldiers etc.

From Russ’ book:

PG.30 - “Some came from the old rogue military black ops projects. They called them Monarchs. It’s a word many of them also used. An old friend once said to me, “Did you know that the monarch butterflies are the only insects that migrated to every continent on earth?” I knew what he meant, that these “chosen ones” were planted everywhere.”

“Some of them told me about the military labs underground. The experiments were filled with torture and human cruelty. These doctors knew how to do the doubling just like the old Nazi’s and oh, yes, many of them talked about a Dr. Green. (Doubling is basically the same as splitting the personalities: (Doubling involves an individual forming a second self, more or less autonomous from the first, which becomes the evil part of the self and which therefore allows the decent part to remain guiltless.))

What is interesting is this Dr. Green shows up in another book called “Twenty-two Faces” by Judy Byington, which is the story of a very young victim who experienced SRA (satanic ritual abuse). The book talks about “the old man”, “The Old Man’s “Green Bomb” mind-control version, perfected on victims of Nazi concentration camps, was designed to disintegrate the personality”.

His whole name is/was Greenbaum. Also from this book: “By 1984 Corydon Hammond, PH.D began surveying therapist members of the just formed International Society of Trauma and Dissociation. The majority of clients studied, close to 75% reported being tortured as children under direction of a Dr. Green or Greenbaum, a Jewish turncoat who perfected his “Green” mind-control programming in WWII Nazi concentration camps. Employed after the war by foreign and US agencies, Greenbaum apparently supplemented his income via advertising his amoral craft by word-of-mouth to ever-giving, upper-level satanic covens. There is a young woman by the name of Arizona Wilder, another person who was born into being a mind-controlled slave and is from one of the “perfect” bloodline of the 13 families. She said that she herself was programmed by Dr. Josef Mengele, you remember him, and that he was here in the US, he also went by the name of Dr. Green. Coincidence, I think not, considering he would have been part of Operation Paperclip. Who wouldn’t want the most “famous” doctor from the holocaust to come work for the US, after all it was he who perfected mind control!

It’s said that in 1980, that there were 10 million people in their 40’s and 50’s that may have been a product of this kind of program.

Shatan is certainly working hard to create his army of mindless drones, and I don’t use that word “mindless” as a derision of the victim, since their split personality is the blank slate/mindless slate that is then “encrypted” with the will of the adversary and his evil demons.

There was a government program MK Ultra which is part of that Monarch project mentioned above. The reason they chose the name Monarch is because the Monarch butterfly is the only insect that is on every continent in the world. MK Ultra slave Cathy O’Brien has written a book called “Access Denied” which is about her journey of being deprogrammed with the help of her husband and rescuer Mark Phillips. The story is fascinating and continues to confirm that we are not seeing alien visitations but that this world government, so to speak has been working hard since 1947 to “transform” and dumb down the human population so that they can be controlled by the elite - those elite who “we” know are possessed by shatan’s demons.

Stephen Bratcher, another MK Ultra mind slave, said: “Technology has reached a level where it is compounding itself through computerization creating artificial intelligence. A.I. continues to breed with technology to the point where technologies are out of control and appear alien.”

In the 70's knowledge was becoming unmanageable and those controlling secrets were running out of ability to absorb, comprehend, and utilize it all. Does this sound like what is going on today? We are being bombarded by “everything” which by design is meant to keep us from our Father, to scare us into thinking that Yahuah cannot possibly protect us. Those of us who are firm in our conviction of knowing that Yahuah will take care of us no matter what, and will find the peace and protection He has promised he would give us!!! All Praise to YAHUAH for his son Yahusha and for us to be able to find him in this world of shatan's deceit.

It is said that there will be some sort of “holographic” event that the government will put on to prove that there are ET's and when panic ensues, there will be someone to save “us” all --- don't be fooled, the only thing coming out of the skies is more “demons”. We will know when our Father comes to get us and how baruked we will be on that baruked day!!!
