We'd like to welcome you to our site YAH STRUCK, where we are introducing the YAH STRUCK series of books. Though they are fictional, they are based on Child Trafficking as well as real events that have happened, though they are disguised. The books have a supernatural aspect to them with the help and strong presence of our Heavenly Father and Creator YAH and a group of Covenant family members destined to take on the sheer evil itself - in all its forms. You will also find blogs and merchandise to help support us as we promote the Name and Authority of Yahuah in this world.

In the fashion of all Hebrew words YAH-STRUCK has two sides. Yahuah can strike us in Righteous Vengeance, or to wake us up and get us to turn back around to Him or the best, for us to be YAH-STRUCK in amazement of Loyal Love, kindness and sheer brilliance.

In 2000, the U.S. Congress created the Electromagnetic Pulse (EMP) Commission, a group of renowned experts tasked with evaluating the threat of an electromagnetic pulse attack from another nation. The Commission found that a single nuclear EMP weapon detonated high in the atmosphere over the center of the US would bring about a Black Sky Event.

Governments and the military of those governments ALL think that a Black Sky Event has something to do with EMP's taking the electrical grid down and setting the world back to the dark ages. They have NO idea what Black Sky Event is coming!

Mother Nature herself has the ability to destroy the power grid via a solar EMP. Solar EMP's typically reach earth every 100 years and Earth is 61 years overdue.

In 2004 and 2008 the EMP Commission released their findings regarding the effects of an EMP on the U.S.'s critical infrastructure. They found the U.S.'s power grid severely vulnerable to an EMP. Worse, critical parts of the system were found impossible to replace if damaged. They concluded that a damaged grid would take years to recreate, while a year-long blackout nationwide could kill 90% of the U.S. population.

Despite these dire warnings the EMP Commission's recommendations for protecting and updating the grid have been largely ignored by our government. The electric sector has done little to protect the power grid. They continue to "study" the problem and classify it as "highly improbable." The EMP Commission itself was permanently dissolved in 2017.

As the clock ticks we draw ever closer to a Black Sky and ever closer cascading catastrophes. A Black Sky Hazard is a catastrophic event that severely disrupts the normal functioning of our critical infrastructures in multiple regions for long durations, from days to years unto generations. On August 21, 2019 the third annual global event will be conducted to prepare. It will be an Emergency All-sector Response Transnational Hazard Exercise

EMERGING, UNPRECEDENTED RISK In our hyper-connected world, any extreme regional disaster could quickly become a complex catastrophe.

EPIC MUSIC WORLD

When it comes to catastrophes you have all heard the phrase, "It's been called a matter of "when, not if." Some of the most powerful people in the world are meeting to discuss how the world will react to a "Black Sky" event, a large-scale catastrophe that would disrupt the functioning of critical national infrastructure such as power supplies.

The date for the exercise is intriguing. It is planned for August 21, 2019. That day seemed oddly familiar and so yesterday I did a bit of research and discovered why the date sent my red flag alert flag waving. The following comes from spaceweather.com. It is important to note that Black Sky X is three years old.

2017: Under the cover of Black Sky from a Total Solar Eclipse the first Black Sky exercise was conducted although few people were paying attention due to the media frenzy about the Great American Solar Eclipse.

During the minutes of totality, the whole world changes. Saying that day turns into night barely scratches the surface of it. The shadow of the Moon lances down to Earth from a quarter million miles away. On one end is you; on the other end is a million square miles of dusty lunar terrain. You're connected, and you can feel the cold.

Let's see what else happened on August 21, 2019

<https://news.mongabay.com/2019/08/amazon-rainforest-fires-leave-sao-paulo-in-the-dark/>

In a technical note released in the evening of August 20, the Brazilian NGO IPAM (Institute of Environmental Research in Amazonia) said the occurrences are directly connected to deforestation as it didn't find any evidence to argue that the fires could be a consequence of a lack of rain.

Fires in Brazil came to spotlight since the afternoon of August 19, when São Paulo's skies suddenly turned black, spurring discussion about the linkage between the fires and the phenomenon

Far-right President Bolsonaro reacted on August 21, raising suspicion that members of NGOs could be behind the fires in retaliation against the government for having caused the suspension of a $33.2 million payment from Norway to the Amazon Fund.

This is clearly geo-engineering, since Brazil is still on fire – just like California, “they” set the fires and then buy the land cheaply.

Couldn't find much of anything else on this exercise that was supposed to happen – but let's take a look at what did and what will happen, according to Scripture for a Black Sky Event.

Prophetic Black Sky

It is no wonder the Feds are planning for a Black Sky because it is embedded with the pages of The Set Apart Scripture. The Old Testament prophets, Yahusha, and the apostles all spoke of a celestial blackout of planet earth that will herald the Day of Yahuah is drawing very close.

The Day of Yahuah (is really the return of Yahusha) is not the same as the seven-year tribulation period though they think it starts during the tribulation, but that day follows immediately after the tribulation has ended. Boy will they be surprised!

Yahusha says that the days prior to his return will be as the Days of Noah. We can take this data that he relayed to us in many levels such as literal or straight meaning, deep hints of metaphoric/allegorical meaning, inquiring about other similar meanings within the biblical texts, or mystical or hidden meanings. Straightforwardly, it literally can mean that clouds will cover the earth as they did at the time of Noah.

Let us look at the Scriptures that predict the planet wide blackout including the whole earth being under a cloud of thick darkness not just a small path as we recently observed with the solar eclipse:

Genesis 7:11 – 12

In the six hundredth year of the life of Noah, on the seventeenth day of the month – on that day all the springs of the great deep, which included the seas and all the waters that come out of the earth burst open and gushed forth, and the floodgates of heaven were opened and released with very heavy rain. And the rain of flooding and destruction came upon the earth forty day and forty nights.

EXODUS 10:21 – 23

Then Yahuah said to Moshe, "Stretch out and extend your hand toward the heavens so that there may be darkness and confusion over the land of Egypt and so that a person can feel the very intense darkness, confusion and evil." And Moshe stretched out and extended his hand toward the heavens, and there was darkness, confusion and evil of night in all the land of Egypt for three days. No one could see his brother and no-one could move from where they were for three days, but there was light for the Yasarelites in their dwellings.

Matthew 27:45

BLACK SKY EVENT #3 – YAHUSHA'S CRUCIFIXION

4/1/2022

From the Gospel of Nicodemus

And it was about the sixth hour, and there was darkness over the earth until the ninth hour, the sun being darkened; and the curtain of the temple was split in the middle. And crying out with a loud voice, Yahusha said: Father, Baddach Ephkid Ruel, (Hebrew: Yad Paqad Ruah) which is, interpreted: Into Thy hands I commit my spirit. And having said this, He gave up his spirit. And the centurion, seeing what had happened, glorified Yahuah, and said: This was a just man. And all the crowds that were present at this spectacle, when they saw what had happened, beat their breasts and went away.

From Psalm 31:5 – Daud prophesying about Yahusha.

Incline Your ear to me. Quickly deliver and rescue me. Become my rock of refuge of protection, a fortified keep and stronghold to save me. For You are my rock and my fortress. So for the sake of Your name, reputation and authority, lead me and guide me into a favorable state. Bring me out of the snare that they have secretly set and hidden for me, for You are my refuge of protection. Into Your hand, power and control I commit my spirit. You have redeemed and rescued me, O Yahuah, faithful Eternal.

"Their sons and their daughters . . . they sacrificed to the idols of Canaan"

31:7-10

I hate those devoted to useless idols, but I trust Yahuah. I will exult and rejoice in your loyal love. Because you have seen my misery, you know the distresses of my life. And you have not delivered me into the hand of the enemy. You have set my feet in a broad place of safety and freedom. Be gracious and take pity on me, O Yahuah, because I have distress, lacking in vigor or power. My eye becomes weak because of vexation and feelings of anxiety and sadness, along with my soul and body. For my life is at an end with sorrow and anguish, and my years with sighing in emotional pain. My strength stumbles and falters because of my iniquity and sin, and my bones become weak and waste away.

Psalm 31:22-24

As for me, I said in alarm and dismay, “I am cut off from Your eyes.” However you heard the voice of my supplications and plea for mercy when I cried to you for help. Love Yahuah, all His faithful and devoted ones. Yahuah preserves and guards the faithful but repays abundantly the one who acts arrogantly, filled with pride and conceit. Be strong and determined and let your heart show strength, all who wait for Yahuah.

BLACK SKY EVENT #4 – METOPHORICALLY SPEAKING – WITHOUT THE WORD OF YAHUAH

The Middle Ages: a thousand years without the Bible

Most of us romanticize the Middle Ages. We picture knights of King Arthur's Round Table, castles, lords and ladies, wandering minstrels, and crusades to liberate the Holy Land. But these images weren't created until the last part of the medieval period. Actually, most of the Middle Ages—some eight hundred years of it—was largely a period of spiritual and cultural darkness.

<https://journal.christianscience.com/shared/video/1s3lqjua7m8>

By the end of the second century AD, classical civilization had come to an end. The Roman Empire was on the decline—weakened by corruption, economic disintegration, and the ever-present threat of barbarian invasion.

peplumtv.com

The emperors became more despotic than ever—imposing military conscription and heavy taxes. And they persecuted Christians periodically, as they had almost from the beginning.

Constantine's support gave the Church new strength. But it also introduced long-term problems for Christianity, particularly when Constantine moved his capital from Rome to Byzantium, which he renamed Constantinople in his own honor. This move created a power vacuum in Rome, which was quickly filled by a strong line of popes who created a kind of "papal monarchy."

ALEXANDER VIII OTTHOBONUS VENETVS P M

Throughout the Middle Ages, this papacy was the ruling authority to which all Western Christendom was subject. The popes assumed not only religious but also secular control over much of the old Roman world. For all practical purposes, the Church of the Middle Ages was a church state—with absolute power to levy taxes, call up armies, make laws, and punish citizens who violated its laws.

With this secularization of the Christian Church, Bible study diminished dramatically. Gradually, the doctrinal teachings of the Church replaced the Bible in the hearts of Christians.

As the people lost touch with the Scriptures, they moved farther and farther away from certain Christian practices—such as reading the Bible aloud in church services, preaching the gospel, and practicing spiritual healing. At the same time the actual text of the Bible became corrupted.

The new vernacular tongues included the modern languages we use now in Western civilization: Romance languages like French, Spanish, Portuguese and Italian; and Germanic languages like German, Swiss, and English.

GWARCK GWAKARRK GWAKRCK.

The important thing as far as the Bible is concerned, though, is that people who spoke these new languages in the Middle Ages were totally out of touch with Latin and with the Latin Bible that the Church doggedly maintained as its only official text—the one and only version of Scripture to be used in church services or to be read by the clergy.

But the fact remains that illiteracy prevailed among all but a few priests and nobles. And even if the common people had known how to read, the Church forbade them to read the Bible.

Let the sin begin!

At the height of its power in the early thirteenth century, Church authorities completely shut down any possibilities for the average person to become familiar with the Scriptures when they made it illegal for lay members to even own a Bible, much less read one.

Spanish Inquisition, (1478–1834), judicial institution ostensibly established to combat heresy in Spain. In practice, the Spanish Inquisition served to consolidate power in the monarchy of the newly unified Spanish kingdom, but it achieved that end through infamously brutal methods.

Don't you find it interesting that religion defines heresy as a variance of THEIR accepted doctrine – and not once do they even say anything about Yahuah's Torah and His 10 Words – the true definition of heresy is IGNORING YAHUAH!

Heresy definition, opinion or doctrine at variance with the orthodox or accepted doctrine, especially of a church or religious system.

Punish the Non-Believers: 6 Cruel Torture Methods of the Spanish Inquisition

The use of the strappado or Corda had three variations. The accused would have their hands tied behind their back, similar in nature to modern-day handcuffing. A rope would be tied to the wrists and passed over a pulley, beam, or hook, depending upon the place where the torture took place. As the accused was pulled off of the ground, they were hanging from their arms.

Variations on the strappado included using weights to cause more resistance and pain. The inverted and extended shoulders would separate from their sockets. At times, jerking the hanging victim would cause the shoulders to break. An especially torturous variation on the strappado was tying the wrists of the accused in front along with the ankles, then adding weights before pulling the victim off of the ground to hang.

The length of time for the strappado was relatively short. Reports of its use during the Inquisition had the entire process completed in 60 minutes or less. Of course, a person's individual threshold for pain would have ultimately determined the strappado's success of eliciting a confession or information sought by the tribunal. While death did not happen with this torture method, permanent nerve, ligament, and tendon damage was likely to occur in the victim.

Spanish officials willingly and repeatedly used eye-witness accounts of toca to prevent the spread of heretics.

Theatrical images of someone having their head held under water to encourage a confession pay homage to toca. In modern times, this would be referred to as waterboarding. During the Spanish Inquisition it was also called interrogatorio mejorado del agua. The idea behind it was to make the accused feel as if they were drowning. The techniques used for toca were different from place to place.

The accused would lay on his or her back and be strapped to a board. Securing the ankles, wrists, arms, and legs was essential to prevent the accused from thrashing around. Once secured, a rag or some type of cloth would be inserted into the mouth. Officials of the tribunal would then pour water over the rag, mimicking the sensation of drowning.

This technique would be repeated, sometimes for days, until confessions came forth. Breathing would become increasingly difficult as the torture increased in frequency. At first, the accused would be given enough time to catch their breath after the toca. If no confession came, the length of water pouring would increase while the breaks for breath would decrease. Death was a distinct possibility.

The use of the rack dated back to ancient times and its purpose was to stretch out a human being. A person would be secured to a board at the wrists and the ankles with some type of cuff, then chains would be attached to the cuffs. The chains would be attached to a wheel and a crank would turn the wheel. As the chains were tightened, the body would stretch and joints, ligaments, and tendons would snap, crack, and pop.

Sounds produced by a body stretching may be one reason why this torture method had such a long life in human history. During the Inquisition, those accused of heresy were often required to witness torture. When the tendons and ligaments of a person on the rack began making noise, bystanders routinely offered up confessions. For the accused stretched out too much, their muscles would lose the ability to contract. Without elasticity of muscles, a person could no longer move on their own. For a person that survived long sessions of forced stretching, they could lose control of their bowels and other bodily functions and be permanently unable to move on their own.

Sometimes included with the rack were ancillary torture methods. For example, part of a person may be on a bed of nails or some other sharp objects. When the rack began to stretch them, the nails would slowly pierce the skin. The accused would feel the pain of being stretched as well as objects scraping against their skin.

The Catherine Wheel, or the Breaking Wheel, was a form of capital punishment adapted from the Rack. For the Spanish Inquisition, torture methods had to provide variety and surprise. The more forms of torture the greater the chance that accused infidels would confess to their crimes and embrace the Church.

Intended as capital punishment, it sometimes was used as a form of torture. Generally, a wagon wheel was used and the accused or convicted would be stretched over the wheel. Then they would be beaten. The spaces between the spokes would allow bones to break upon contact with a club or other device. If the device was used as torture, the accused would be removed from the wheel before death.

When the Wheel was used as a form of capital punishment, the convicted would be bludgeoned to death. Repeated hits from clubs, thick tree branches, or other implements would break bones. The mangled body of the convicted would be placed on display until death. In some instances, the dying convict would be kept alive as long as possible to drag out the painful process of awaiting death from broken bones

The hairshirt was a garment made out of animal hair. Generally, it would have a neck opening and rest upon the shoulders with the sides tied under the arms. There were numerous variations. Sometimes it was called a cilice or sackcloth. The idea was to wear something against the skin that would irritate it. For Catholics in the early days of Christianity, hairshirts were used as a method of repentance during the season of Lent, the 40 days before Easter.

To intensify the irritation of the skin other items were added such as twigs, rocks, or metal.

During the Spanish Inquisition, the hairshirt was used after a voluntary or post-torture confession. If a person was suspected of heresy, they could either confess their sin or wait for the Inquisition Tribunal to charge them. The use of the hairshirt happened mainly in the New World viceroyalties.

Torture chambers were windowless rooms that held the modes of torture. These rooms existed in places where society was settled. They made sense in regions with a larger population where the Tribunal would be required to hear charges of heresy for several people. Since members of the Tribunal had to witness the torture so that they could hear a confession, these chamber rooms made sense.

The Spanish Inquisition in the New World was a somewhat different story.

Conquistadors made initial contact with native populations. They read a proclamation that stated all the people, plants, and animals on the land were now subjects of the Spanish Crown. Clerics would then read the Rites of Baptism, which meant that all native populations were now members of the Church and expected to follow Church doctrine. It did not matter to the Tribunal if the native people understood what had happened to them or not.

In the New World, the torture happened in public spaces instead of in dark, windowless rooms beneath a prison. Public torture put fear into all that witnessed it. The agonizing screams of the tortured and the sounds their bodies made would keep the community heretic free.

<https://historydaily.org/25-most-brutal-torture-techniques>

Saw torture

The victim is hung upside down to ensure that the blood will rush to their heads and keep them conscious during the torture procedure. The torturer would then cut the victim's body in half. Most were sawed only up to their abdomen to prolong the agony.

Judas cradle is a bit similar to impalement. The punishment starts by sitting the victim on the pyramid-shaped cradle. The victim would then be forced down by ropes with the intention of stretching the victim's orifice over a long period of time, impaling him slowly. The victim was usually undressed and the device was seldom washed - meaning, if the torture doesn't terminate the victim, the infection contracted from it would.

- It is only man with the help of lo-shema that could come up with these inhuman tortures. Yahuah NEVER resorted to this kind of debasement. Also note it didn't seem like there was any issue in finding people that would happily do these tortures – of course this was condoned by the Church, so for them that was okay. According to their god this was acceptable – how like today's modern world!

Let's talk about the LAST SKY EVENT, the one where Yahuah comes back and judges all that is on the earth by using some Scripture by Yahuah's prophets!.

A large crowd of people walking in a city street, with a car in the foreground. The scene is somewhat blurry and has a blueish tint, suggesting a night or low-light setting. The crowd is dense, and the car is in the middle ground, moving towards the viewer.

Isaiah 13:6-8

Wail, howl, shouting noises of sorrow, for the Day of Yahuah is near, imminent and approaching; it will come like destruction, violence and oppression from Shaddai the true Almighty! Therefore and for this reason all hands will grow slack, hang limp, being feeble and powerless, and every human heart will melt, becoming weak and losing courage, and they will be dismayed, terrified, bewildered and alarmed.

4/1/2022

Pangs, anguish and torment causing great distress and anxiety will seize and take hold of them; they will tremble and writhe like a woman giving birth. They will stare, being astonished and stunned at one another in confusion, their faces flushing, like a flash of light reflecting off the blade of a sword.

Isaiah 13:9-11

Look and behold! The Day of Yahuah is coming, cruel and merciless with wrath and fury and the burning of anger, to make earth a desolation, a horror being laid to waste, and He will destroy and decimate its sinners from it.

*For and indeed the stars of the heavens and their constellations will not flash forth their light; the sun will keep back and darken when it comes out, and the moon will not cause it's light to shine.
(No sun no light for the moon)*

Then I will punish the world for its evil and wrongdoing and the wicked and unrighteous for their iniquity and sins.
Also I will put an end to the pride and conceit of the arrogant, and I will bring the haughtiness and high status of tyrants low, humbling and humiliating them.

*Yahzqi' 30:2 "Son of man, prophesy and say,
'Thus said the Master Yahuah," "Howl and wail for alas," "Woe to the day!"*

Yahzqi' 30:3 "For a day is near, indeed, a day is near for Yahuah. It is a day of cloud and darkness, a supernatural occurrence of gloom, a time and season of the nations it will be.

FAMOANO

Yahzqi' 30:4 "Then a sword (conflict, war) will come upon Mitsrayim, and great anguish and worry will be in Kush (Ethiopia), at the falling of the slain in Mitsrayim. And they take away her wealth and abundance, and her foundations are demolished and laid to ruins.

Joel 1:15

Alas, cry the alarm! For the day of darkness and distress of Yahuah is imminent.
It will come like destruction and violence from Shaddai the Almighty.

A silhouette of a person blowing a trumpet against a sunset sky. The sun is low on the horizon, creating a bright orange and yellow glow. The person is in the foreground, and the trumpet is held up, with the sound waves visible as a wavy line. The background shows a dark sea or ocean under the sunset sky.

Joel 2:1-3

Sound the trumpet in Zion, and sound the alarm on my set-apart Mountain! Let all the inhabitants of the land tremble with anguish and distress, for the day of Yahuah is coming—indeed near and imminent.

A day of darkness, terror, confusion and gloom, a day of cloud with supernatural occurrence and thick darkness and deep misery, as the dawn spreads out on the mountains, a great and strong army! There has been nothing like it from ancient days, and after if nothing will be again.

Before them a fire (Yahuah's judgement of flesh with fire and His sword) devours and destroys, and behind them a flame like a spear point burns. Like the Garden of Eden the land before them, and after them a desolate and inhabitable desert of despair, clothed in horror, of which nothing can escape.

Joel 2:30-31

And I will set wonders and signs in the heavens, and on earth, death and fire of burning anger and columns of smoke.

The sun will be changed to darkness, causing confusion and terror, and the moon to blood and death, before the coming of the great and awesome and dreadful day of Yahuah.

Joel: 3:13-15

Send forth the sickle, for the harvest is ripe! Go tread and dominate, for the winepress is full! The vats overflow, because their evil and wickedness is great!

Key Message: “Take your sickle and reap, because the time to reap has come, for the harvest of the earth is ripe.” (Revelation 14:15b)

Commotion and uproar, commotion confusion in the valley of decision and judgement! For the day of Yahuah is near in the valley of decision and judgement!

The sun and the moon grow dark for a time of judgement, and the stars have withheld their splendor.

Enoch 104: 1-7

104: 1 "I swear unto you that in heaven the malakim will remember you for good before the splendor of YAHUAH the Great One; and your names shall be written before the splendor of YAHUAH the Great One."

104:2 "Be hopeful, because formerly you have pined away through evil and toil. But now you shall shine like the lights of heaven, and you shall be seen; and the windows of heaven shall be opened for you. Your cry shall be heard."

104:3 "Cry for judgment, and it shall appear for you; for all your tribulations shall be demanded for investigation from the responsible authorities - from everyone who assisted those who plundered you."

104:4 "Be hopeful, and do not abandon your hope because there shall be a fire for you; you are about to be making a great rejoicing like the malakim of heaven."

104:5 "You shall not have to hide on the day of the great judgment, and you shall not be found as the sinners; but the eternal judgment shall be far away from you for all the generations of the world."

104:6 "Now fear not, righteous ones, when you see the sinners waxing strong and flourishing; do not be partners with them, but keep far away from those who lean onto their own injustice; for you are to be partners with the good-hearted people of heaven."

A scenic view of a frozen lake, likely Lake Superior, with a large, jagged rock formation in the distance. The ice is a deep blue color with white snow patches. The sky is a clear, light blue. The text is overlaid in the top right corner.

104:7 "Now, you sinners, even if you say,
'All our sins shall not be investigated or written down,' nevertheless, all your sins are being written down every day."

Enoch 108:12-15

108: 12 "I shall bring them out into the bright light, those who have loved MY kodesh NAME and seat them each one by one upon the throne of his honor."

108: 13 "And they shall be resplendent for ages that cannot be numbered; for the judgment of YAHUAH is righteousness, because HE will give faith - as well as the Paths of Truth - to the faithful ones in the resting place."

108:14 "Then they shall see those who were born in darkness being taken into darkness, while the righteous ones shall be resplendent."

108: 15 "The sinners shall cry aloud, and they shall see the righteous ones being resplendent; they shall go to the place which was prescribed for them concerning the days and the seasons."
