Exploring the New Towers of Babel Part 2

Back in 2015 we did a study on CERN, it's time that we update what's been going on of later—has a lot to do with CERN changing our reality with Scripture. This is the link for the original study:

Con Cern or Dis Cern

On March 20, 1969 Dr. Lawrence Dunegan attended a lecture at a meeting of the Pittsburgh Pediatric Society. The lecturer was a Dr. Richard Day who died in 1989. At that time Dr. Day was a professor of pediatrics at Mount Sinai Medical School in New York. He took the attendees they couldn't record what he was about to tell them, so in 1988 Dr. Dunegan recorded his recollections of that lecture from the notes he wrote down after the meeting.

You can read it all or get the recordings, which are most interesting as what is on this is telling how the New Order of Barbarians or otherwise known as the elite have or had planned for us, since you'll find a lot has happened.

BLENDING ALL RELIGIONS...THE OLD RELIGIONS WILL HAVE TO GO

Another area of discussion was Religion. This is an avowed atheist speaking. And he said, "Religion is not necessarily bad. A lot of people seem to need religion, with it's mysteries and rituals - so they will have religion. But the major religions of today have to be changed because they are not compatible with the changes to come. The old religions will have to go. Especially Christianity. Once the Roman Catholic Church is brought down, the rest of Christianity will follow easily. Then a new religion can be accepted for use all over the world. It will incorporate something from all of the old ones to make it more easy for people to accept it, and feel at home in it. Most people won't be too concerned with religion. They will realize that they don't need it.

CHANGING THE BIBLE THROUGH REVISIONS OF KEY WORDS

In order to do this, the Bible will be changed. It will be rewritten to fit the new religion. Gradually, key words will be replaced with new words having various shades of meaning. Then the meaning attached to the new word can be close to the old word - and as time goes on, other shades of meaning of that word can be emphasized. and then gradually that word replaced with another word." I don't know if I'm making that clear. But the idea is that everything in Scripture need not be rewritten, just key words replaced by other words. And the variability in meaning attached to any word can be used as a tool to change the entire meaning of Scripture, and therefore make it acceptable to this new religion. Most people won't know the difference; and this was another one of the times where he said, "the few who do notice the difference won't be enough to matter."

THE CHURCHES WILL HELP US!"

Then followed one of the most surprising statements of the whole presentation: He said, "Some of you probably think the Churches won't stand for this," and he went on to say, "the churches will help us!" There was no elaboration on this, it was unclear just what he had in mind when he said, "the churches will help us!" In retrospect I think some of us now can understand what he might have meant at that time. I recall then only of thinking, "no they won't!" and remembering our Lord's words where he said to Peter, "Thou art Peter and upon this rock I will build my Church, and gates of Hell will not prevail against it." So .. yes, some people in the Churches might help. And in the subsequent 20 years we've seen how some people in Churches have helped. But we also know that our Lord's Words will stand, and the gates of Hell will not prevail.

Enter the D Wave Quantum Computer

To speed computation, quantum computers tap directly into an unimaginably vast fabric of reality—the strange and counterintuitive world of quantum mechanics.

How D-Wave Systems Work

In nature, physical systems tend to evolve toward their lowest energy state: objects slide down hills, hot things cool down, and so on. This behavior also applies to quantum systems. To imagine this, think of a traveler looking for the best solution by finding the lowest valley in the energy landscape that represents the problem.

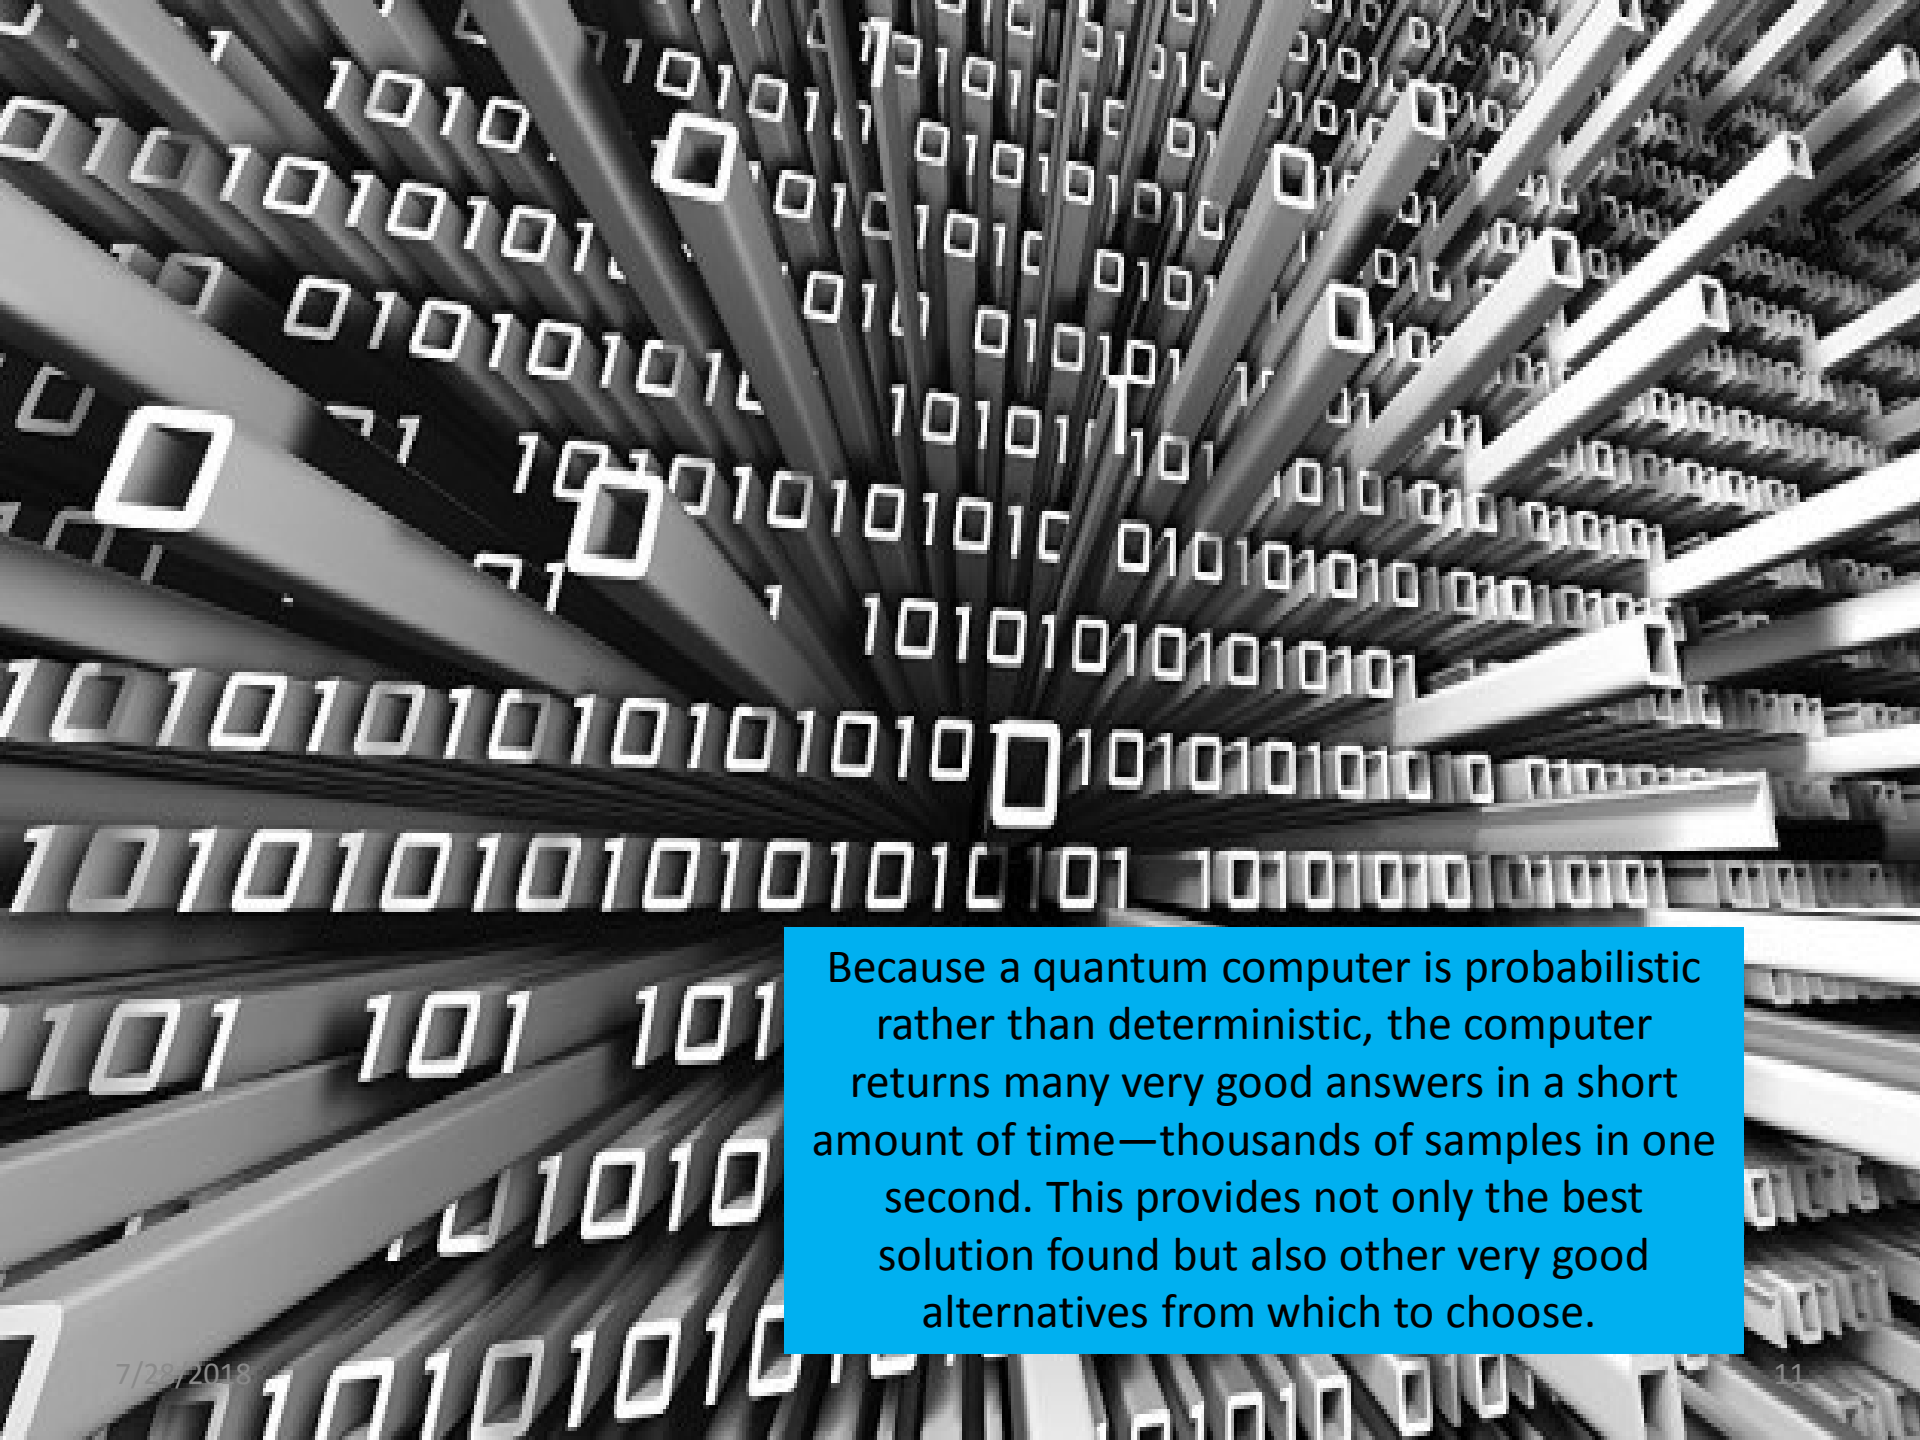

Classical algorithms seek the lowest valley by placing the traveler at some point in the landscape and allowing that traveler to move based on local variations. While it is generally most efficient to move downhill and avoid climbing hills that are too high, such classical algorithms are prone to leading the traveler into nearby valleys that may not be the global minimum. Numerous trials are typically required, with many travelers beginning their journeys from different points.

In contrast, quantum annealing begins with the traveler simultaneously occupying many coordinates thanks to the quantum phenomenon of superposition. The probability of being at any given coordinate smoothly evolves as annealing progresses, with the probability increasing around the coordinates of deep valleys. Quantum tunneling allows the traveler to pass through hills—rather than be forced to climb them—reducing the chance of becoming trapped in valleys that are not the global minimum. Quantum entanglement further improves the outcome by allowing the traveler to discover correlations between the coordinates that lead to deep valleys.

Because a quantum computer is probabilistic rather than deterministic, the computer returns many very good answers in a short amount of time—thousands of samples in one second. This provides not only the best solution found but also other very good alternatives from which to choose.

Quantum computation ...will be the first technology that allows useful tasks to be performed in collaboration between parallel universes.

Donkey: 1 mph

SR-71: 2,000 mph

Just a few weeks ago, D-Wave announced the availability of a 2000-qubit quantum computer. So this notion of being able to access parallel universes using D-Wave quantum computers really isn't so far fetched. In fact, that might be exactly what the proponents of the Mandela Effect theory are saying is causing our brains to short circuit. In all actuality, that's probably not the case but how cool is that to think about eh? (Keep this on the sticky side of your mind)

Prediction #3:

By 2028, intelligent machines will exist that can do anything humans can do; quantum computers will have played a critical role in the creation of this new type of intelligence

Quantum computers aren't new fangled supercomputers. Quantum computers will allow us to access hidden dimensions in our universe that will give us more computing power than we could ever imagine possible. We didn't just make that up. That's taken directly from a speech given by the other founder of D-Wave, Eric Ladizinsky.

D-Wave lecture by Geordie Rose (IdeaCity 2013)

I'm sure Satan would like a full or permanent connection to the human mind as well. With this type of connection, he could plant more sophisticated false ideas to more severely harm humans. One such big lie I believe Satan is currently trying to plant is that we can turn ourselves into machines and become super-intelligent and live forever. We would then become Satan's new creation and God's creation, the old human model, would become obsolete. Evolution wins! <http://defeatingthebeast.com/quantum-computing-sciences-new-ouija-board/>

Mind-Bending Quantum Facts

Quantum computing requires extremely cold temperatures, as sub-atomic particles must be as close as possible to a stationary state to be measured. The cores of D-Wave quantum computers operate at -460 degrees f, or -273 degrees c, which is 0.02 degrees away from absolute zero.

Quantum computing is often described as “natural”. This is because although we don’t completely understand them, the mechanisms underpinning the real world (which have evolved through nature) clearly operate at a sub-atomic level. By simulating this with computers, we come a huge step closer to being able to simulate the natural world.

Mind-Bending Quantum Facts

At a quantum level, science fiction appears to become reality. Particles can travel backward or forwards in time and teleport (quantum tunneling) between two positions.

One possible explanation for why quantum computers work involves parallel universes. It has been theorized that qubits are able to exist in two states simultaneously because we are observing them in multiple universes simultaneously.

The claim is we are now able to open portals to other dimensions with this technology and those "aliens" we have reached are actually demons who are coming. The theory is also there is a crush on to get AI up and running fast so these beings can have a place to "live" ...like in the AI!

One of the interesting things that's happened from the D-Wave story, is there's this gigantic conspiracy that's arisen on the internet that goes like this. So...D-Wave builds quantum computers, the way that they work if you know, that's how this works is one of the interpretations is that you tap into these parallel universes and they do computations, sounds really weird. But, what's happened is this idea is being hijacked to describe something called the Mandela Effect, which is this thing where the past changes. So, think about something you know to be true from the past, and then imagine you went out on the internet, and you can't find it at all. It's not there. It doesn't match with your experience. So, these people think that do is responsible in CERN (words missing from his actual speech)...and of course, the quantum key to the Abyss factors into it somehow. I'm not exactly sure how.

Another important piece to the quantum computer pie is D-Wave, which is used in interdimensional communication. Patch details how they are accessing thousands of parallel dimensions, and extracting resources, information, data and energy. He also outlines how this can lead to the situation his third book “Revising Reality” outlines and where we anomalies like the Mandela Effect.

Perhaps your real life is so rich you don't have time for another.

Even so, the US Department of Defense (DOD) may already be creating a copy of you in an alternate reality to see how long you can go without food or water, or how you will respond to televised propaganda.

The DOD is developing a parallel to Planet Earth, with billions of individual "nodes" to reflect every man, woman, and child this side of the dividing line between reality and AR.

Called the Sentient World Simulation (SWS), it will be a "synthetic mirror of the real world with automated continuous calibration with respect to current real-world information", according to a concept paper for the project.

"SWS provides an environment for testing Psychological Operations (PSYOP)," the paper reads, so that military leaders can "develop and test multiple courses of action to anticipate and shape behaviors of adversaries, neutrals, and partners".

SWS also replicates financial institutions, utilities, media outlets, and street corner shops. By applying theories of economics and human psychology, its developers believe they can predict how individuals and mobs will respond to various stressors.

An Exhortation to Peace and Unity

The Works of John Bunyan Volumes 1-3 — John Bunyan

[ADVERTISEMENT BY THE EDITOR]

This treatise was first published in 1688, after Bunyan's death, at the end of the second edition of the Barren Fig Tree, with a black border round the title. It was continued in the third edition 1692, but was subsequently omitted, although the Barren Fig Tree was printed for the same publisher. It has been printed in every edition of Bunyan's Works. Respect for the judgment of others leads me to allow it a place in the first complete edition, although I have serious doubts whether it was written by him, for these reasons: --

(5.) Divisions, and want of peace, keep those out of the church that would come in; and cause many to go out that are in.

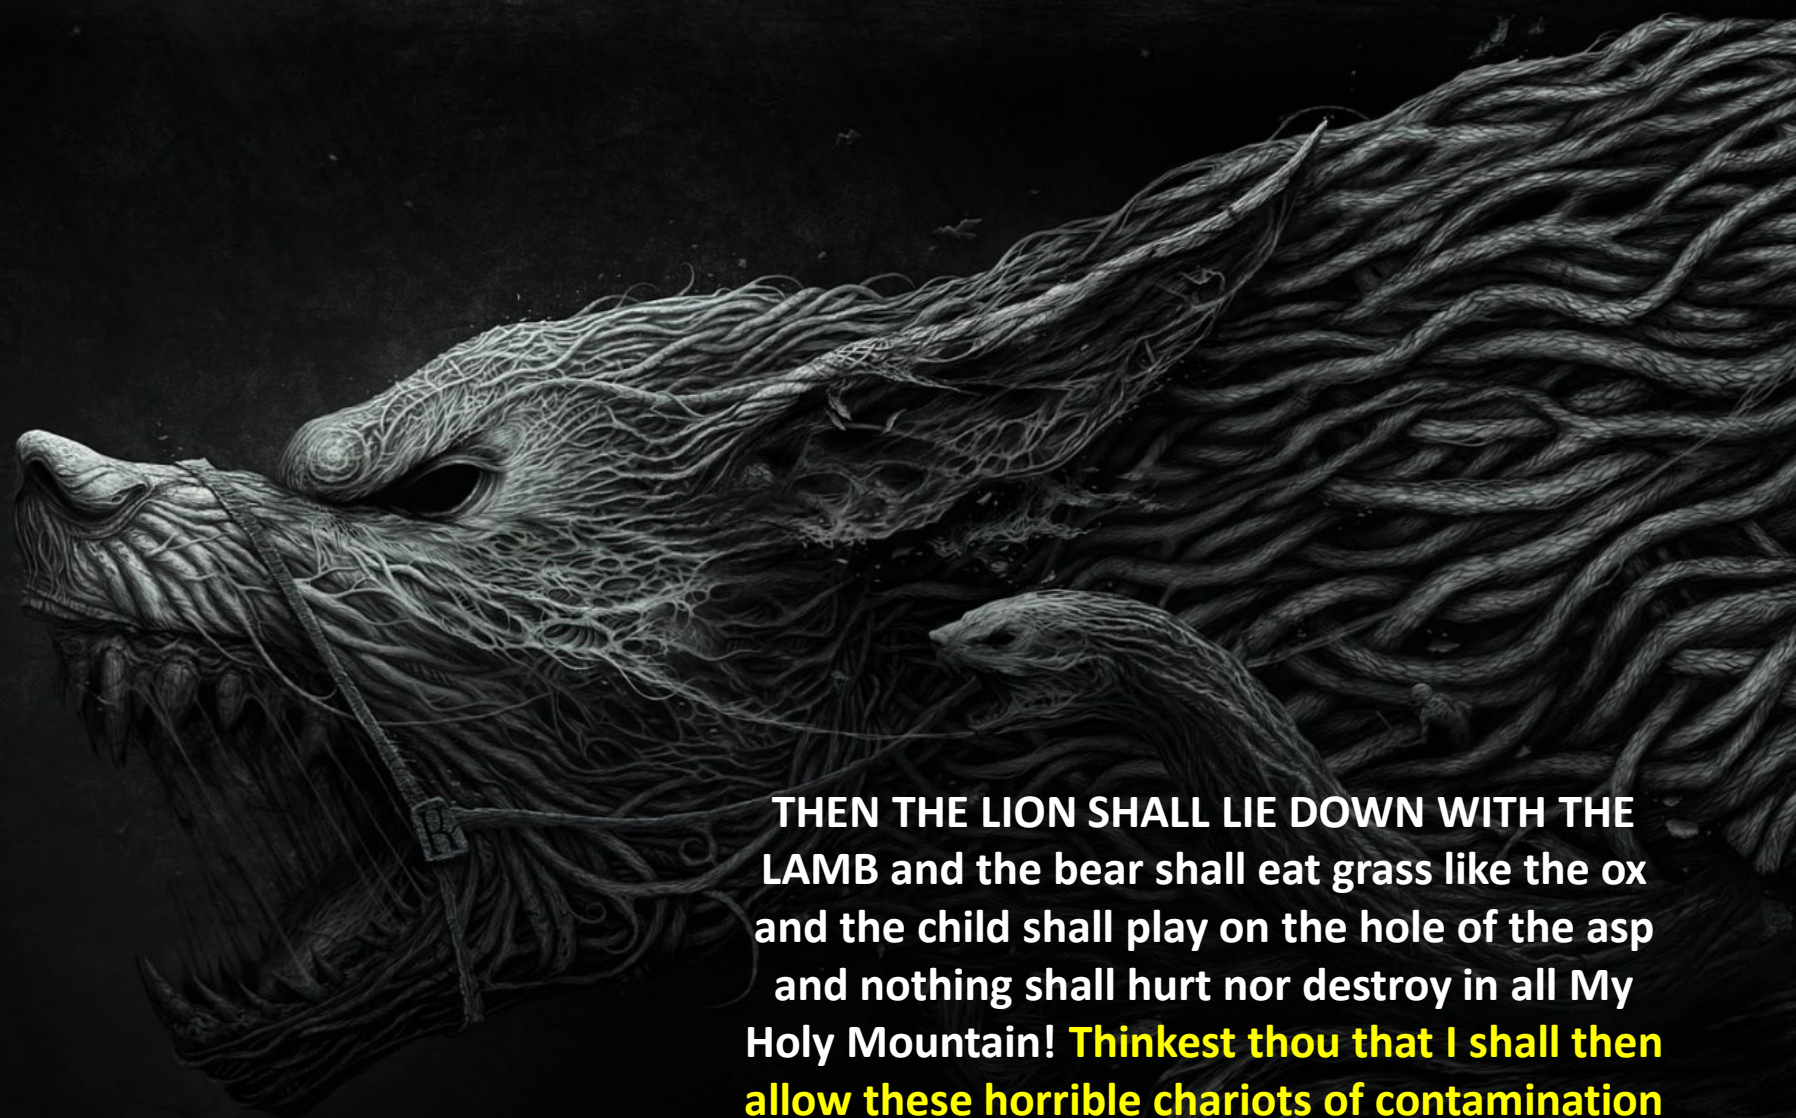

'The divisions of Christians (as a learned man observes) are a scandal to the Jews, an opprobrium to the Gentiles, and an inlet to atheism and infidelity.' Insomuch that our controversies about religion, especially as they have been of late managed, have made religion itself become a controversy. O, then, how good and pleasant a thing is it for brethren to dwell together in unity! The peace and unity that was among the primitive Christians drew others to them. What hinders the conversion of the Jews, but the divisions of Christians? Must I be a Christian, says the Jew? What Christian must I be; of what sect must I be of? The Jews, as one observes, glossing upon that text in Isaiah 11:6, where it is prophesied, that the lion and the lamb shall lie down together, and that there shall be none left to hurt nor destroy in all God's holy mountain; they interpreting these sayings to signify the concord and peace that shall be among the people that shall own the Messiah, do from hence conclude that the Messiah is not yet come, because of the contentions and divisions that are among those that profess him; and the apostle saith (1 Cor 14:23), that if an unbeliever should see their disorders, he would say they were mad; but where unity and peace is, there the churches are multiplied. We read (Acts 9:31) that when the churches had rest, they multiplied; and (Acts 2:46,47) when the church was serving God 'with one accord,' the Lord added to them 'daily such as should be saved.'

Cockatrices in the Bible

More Animals! - Our Newsletter

Cockatrices are mentioned, by name, four times in the King James Bible translation. They are only found in the Old Testament and are derived from the Hebrew word tsepha (Strong's Concordance #H6848). Tsepha, found only five times in Scripture, is translated four times as cockatrices (or its singular version, see Isaiah 11:8, 14:29, 59:5, Jeremiah 8:17) and once as adder (Proverbs 23:32).

And the sucking child shall play on the hole of the asp (in reference to the peace brought by the millennial reign of Christ), and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice den (Isaiah 11:8, KJV unless stated)

They hatch cockatrice eggs, and weave the spider's web: he that eateth of their eggs dieth, and that which is crushed breaketh out into a viper (Isaiah 59:5)

For, behold, I will send serpents, cockatrices, among you, which will not be charmed, and they shall bite you, saith the LORD (Jeremiah 8:17)

Other than the Bible verses mentioned above, the mythical animal we refer to as a cockatrice is also found in Isaiah 14:29.

Cockatrices are said to live in a hole in the ground and is considered poisonous (Isaiah 11:8). It reproduces by laying eggs (Isaiah 59:5) and has a deadly bite (Jeremiah 8:17, Proverbs 23:32). Scripture is silent, however, concerning what it looked like. In myth, however, it is supposedly produced from a cock's egg and which is itself half cock and half serpent. One legend states that this creature could only be killed if it was tricked to view its own reflection.

What could it be?

The majority of commentaries believe what the KJV calls cockatrices are actually an adder or a serpent known as a basilisk. Bibles vary, however, in how they translate the Hebrew word tsepha. For example, Isaiah 11:8, which mentions the tsepha at the end of the sentence in the KJV, is translated as follows.

7/28/2018
The infant will play near the hole of the cobra, and the young child put his hand into the VIPER'S NEST (NIV)

One of the fabled cockatrices found on the Notre Dame Cathedral

An infant will play beside the cobra's pit, and a toddler will put his hand into a SNAKE'S DEN (HCSB)

The nursing child will play by the hole of the cobra, And the weaned child will put his hand on the VIPER'S DEN (NASB)

According to the 11th edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica, cockatrices were believed "to possess the most deadly powers, plants withering at its touch, and men and animals dying poisoned by its look." The cockatrice of Scripture might have been a venomous snake that lived in the wilderness of Sinai referred to as a fiery flying serpent.

Rejoice not thou, whole Palestina, because the rod of him that smote thee is broken: for out of the serpent's root shall come forth a cockatrice, and his fruit shall be a fiery flying serpent (Isaiah 14:29, KJV).

A cockatrice is a legendary creature with the head and feet of a rooster, but the body of a dragon. The fearsome creatures played a popular role in folk mythology for many centuries, and some people harbored a secret belief that they might actually exist until around the 1700s. Like many mythical creatures, a cockatrice is a type of monster, and the animal is certainly not something which anyone would want to encounter.

A snake or toad was said to incubate a rooster's egg to make a cockatrice.

According to legend, a cockatrice hatches from an egg laid by a rooster which is incubated by a toad or a snake. These unnatural origins lead to a freak of nature, a nod to the lizard origins of modern birds. It is possible that the cockatrice was identified in the form of the fossilized remains of a precursor to the chicken. It may also, of course, have arisen whole from someone's imagination, like many other mythical beasts.

The concept of a cockatrice is closely related to that of a basilisk, another infamous monster with lizard-like characteristics. Both animals are capable of killing with their gaze, and they have the potential to kill or least petrify their enemies with their eyes even after death. In addition, of course, the cockatrice would make a formidable enemy, with the spurred feet and snapping beak of a rooster along with an impressive size. In some cases, the cockatrice is also depicted with a dragon's wings, and some myths suggest that the animal is capable of flight.

The word comes from the Latin calcare, "to tread." The name may have been chosen to differentiate a cockatrice from a basilisk, since cockatrices have legs, allowing them to walk. Basilisks, on the other hand, slither like snakes, and they have several other distinguishing characteristics as well. Some people mistakenly believe that "cockatrice" is a corruption of "crocodile," but this is simply not the case. The word "crocodile" is Greek, and it translates as "pebble worm."

In theory, there are several ways to neutralize the threat of a cockatrice. Allegedly, if one can force the animal to look at its own reflection, the cockatrice will die instantly from its own gaze. In addition, the crowing of a rooster is said to be fatal to a cockatrice, as are weasels. Some of these beliefs also hold true in the case of the basilisk. Avoiding a potential encounter with such a creature is obviously the best course of action, however.

Cockatrices have the body of a dragon, and some are also depicted with dragon's wings.

Jews recognize changes to the Hebrew Scriptures PROOF of ME

In Jewish tradition there are different ideas about redemption. When the prophet teaches that the lion will lay down with the lamb (Isaiah 11:6), some take that literally to mean that the order of nature will be changed. Others, like Maimonides, the greatest Jewish theologian of the Middle Ages, assume it is a metaphor to mean that big and small nations will dwell together in harmony. Maimonides paints a very worldly picture of redemption: "In that era there will be neither famine nor war, neither envy nor strife, because good will emanate in abundance and all delightful things will be accessible as dust. The one preoccupation of the entire world will be solely to know God."

Oobi Doob Benooby 1 year ago

The same here. If I wouldn't have had it on the plaque and had memorized it as a child, I probably wouldn't have noticed it. Then the lion shall lie down with the Lamb and the Bear shall eat grass like the Ox and the Child shall play on the hole of the Asp and nothing shall hurt nor destroy in all My Holy mountain! That is what was on the plaque and part of what I had memorized. the rest I believe up through verse 9 continues, ( Thinkest thou that I shall then allow these horrible chariots of contamination to roar and race as demons fire? Nay-- it shall not be so!

The last 2 sentences used to be argued that god was telling mankind that cars pollute the air and planet by the Tree hugging crowd. I don't know about that but I can see the wording could be seen that way.

Anyway now it says that the Wolf, and Leopard, and Lion will basically lie and live with the lamb, calf, and that the child will lead them and play with the snakes and they will not hurt them.

It seems to me that the first one that I remember is indicating that God is telling man that He will make the conditions happen through his will and power. The second seems to just say that it will happen, with out seeming to give God any credit for it. What do You think? Does the first one sound familiar at all? All I can say is we need to pray for discernment as to not be fooled by all of this and thank Lord Jesus, and or God if it is their will to not let us be blind by the traps.

Martin Luther King Jr. - Acceptance Speech

Martin Luther King's Acceptance Speech, on the occasion of the award of the Nobel Peace Prize in Oslo, December 10, 1964 45

I refuse to accept the cynical notion that nation after nation must spiral down a militaristic stairway into the hell of thermonuclear destruction. I believe that unarmed truth and unconditional love will have the final word in reality. This is why right temporarily defeated is stronger than evil triumphant. I believe that even amid today's mortar bursts and whining bullets, there is still hope for a brighter tomorrow. I believe that wounded justice, lying prostrate on the blood-flowing streets of our nations, can be lifted from this dust of shame to reign supreme among the children of men. I have the audacity to believe that peoples everywhere can have three meals a day for their bodies, education and culture for their minds, and dignity, equality and freedom for their spirits. I believe that what self-centered men have torn down men other-centered can build up. I still believe that one day mankind will bow before the altars of God and be crowned triumphant over war and bloodshed, and nonviolent redemptive good will proclaim the rule of the land. "And the lion and the lamb shall lie down together and every man shall sit under his own vine and fig tree and none shall be afraid." I still believe that We Shall overcome!

God's Space, God's Time

In this teaching, we are reminded again that the very last book of the Bible includes a discussion of this very rest, to be observed in a future time, and uses an interval of one thousand years to enumerate the interval of the rest period, as previously discussed (Isaiah also prophesied of this era, an era of peace, in which the lion shall lay down with the lamb [Isaiah 11:6-8]). According to the discussion in the chapter “Chronology of the Abrahamic People,” we see that we are nearing the end of the sixth period if that is the case.

When changes were first starting to be noticed in 2009 it was only the KJV that was affected for this verse. In 2018 it is virtually changed in EVERY Scripture. Other changes that we see are a mixture now, but soon they will go the way of THE LION AND THE LAMB, where you won't find written proof in Scripture of the original reading. At the moment only if you hand write the verses will they stay. You can also note in your Scriptures in the margins, in your own hand writing what you see and circle the words. As we will see the writing in the memes will change but the pictures won't.

We are truly in the end times, pray to YAHUAH the he doe not allow us to be deceived!
