Studies with Scripture explaining the Covenant with Yahuah - what He expects as well as what He offers us as His children. There are chronological studies showing when they first showed up in Scripture and with amplification of Scripture one will find a whole new look for the Father of the Universe.

We'd like to welcome you to our site YAH STRUCK, where we are introducing the YAH STRUCK series of books. Though they are fictional, they are based on Child Trafficking as well as real events that have happened, though they are disguised. The books have a supernatural aspect to them with the help and strong presence of our Heavenly Father and Creator YAH and a group of Covenant family members destined to take on the sheer evil itself - in all its forms. You will also find blogs and merchandise to help support us as we promote the Name and Authority of Yahuah in this world.

In the fashion of all Hebrew words YAH-STRUCK has two sides. Yahuah can strike us in Righteous Vengeance, or to wake us up and get us to turn back around to Him or the best, for us to be YAH-STRUCK in amazement of Loyal Love, kindness and sheer brilliance.

The PDF's were/are located on our website but we only presented the webinar studies live to a small group of Covenant Family Members since the topics, even then, sounded conspiratorial and quite outlandish. In 2021 we now have a good deal of proof that we needed on some accounts and the motivation has become crystal clear as to why this evil is happening.

So far we have learned that to successfully use coercion, lo-shema and our captors, (and make no mistake this world has been captured) need to:

- ❖ Know as much about us as possible- to tailor the technique they will use.
 - ❖ Create a debility.
- ❖ Create a dependency upon captors, including basic needs, emotional support, direction.
 - ❖ Create dread.
 - ❖ Create anxiety and fear.
 - ❖ Create guilt feelings- easiest way to get compliance
- ❖ The captor becomes the sole provider of satisfaction and punishment becoming a parental figure.
 - ❖ Create internal struggles for the captive.
 - ❖ Create insomnia
 - ❖ Isolate the captive
 - ❖ Create confusion
 - ❖ Create a mindset of resignation-unable to meet new, challenging and complex situations.

Deprivation can be achieved on several levels. Most think of sleep deprivation and how devastating that is to our health. Deprivation is being cut off from our very foundations if possible.

Yahuah knows this and that is why He is throwing the evil into the outer darkness. Void of any sensory stimulation- suspended but not dead. A place devoid of Yahuah. It is terrifying. We have never experienced that. He is everywhere. We can ignore Him but He is still there. So why would it be that humanity is led to "empty the mind" or submerge into nothingness like it is a good thing yet is also a torture technique?

HOW SLEEP AFFECTS YOUR HEALTH

SLEEP DEPRIVATION

IMPAIRED COGNITION

Lack of sleep impairs memory and your ability to process information.

HIGHER LEVELS OF ANXIETY

Lack of sleep raises the brain's anticipatory reactions, increasing overall anxiety levels.

STROKE RISK

When you sleep 6 hours or less a night, your chance of a stroke increases 4x.

INCREASED RISK FOR DIABETES

Lack of sleep increases cortisol and norepinephrine, both are associated with insulin resistance.

INCREASES SYMPTOMS OF DEPRESSION

A lack of sleep disrupts neurotransmitters to the brain which regulates mood.

INCREASED RISK OF BREAST CANCER

Melatonin decreases when you are exposed to light late at night. A decrease in melatonin disrupts estrogen production which can lead to breast cancer.

INCREASED RISK FOR HEART DISEASE

Blood pressure decreases when you sleep.

WEIGHT GAIN

Sleep helps balance hormones that make you feel hungry and full.

Similar: poverty impoverishment penury privation hardship destitution

- the lack or denial of something considered to be a necessity.

E. Deprivation of Sensory Stimuli

The chief effect of arrest and detention, and particularly of solitary confinement, is to deprive the subject of many or most of the sights, sounds, tastes, smells, and tactile sensations to which he has grown accustomed. John C. Lilly examined eighteen autobiographical accounts written by polar explorers and solitary seafarers. He found ". . . that isolation per se acts on most persons as a powerful stress In all cases of survivors of isolation at sea or in the polar night, it was the first exposure which caused the greatest fears and hence the greatest danger of giving way to symptoms; previous experience is a powerful aid in going ahead, despite the symptoms. "The symptoms most commonly produced by isolation are superstition, intense love of any other living thing, perceiving inanimate objects as alive, hallucinations, and delusions." (26)

A number of experiments conducted at McGill University, the National Institute of Mental Health, and other sites have attempted to come as close as possible to the elimination of sensory stimuli, or to masking remaining stimuli, chiefly sounds, by a stronger but wholly monotonous overlay.

"Three studies suggest that the more well-adjusted or 'normal' the subject is, the more he is affected by deprivation of sensory stimuli. Neurotic and psychotic subjects are either comparatively unaffected or show decreases in anxiety, hallucinations, etc." (7)

That is very interesting. As if turning the well-adjusted into neurotic, psychotic (hypochondriac) could be an end goal. Easier to manipulate. The love of inanimate objects-perceiving they are alive- robots, AI, new idols, new tech. Social media bots. Must guard the children.

2. An early effect of such an environment is anxiety. How soon it appears and how strong it is depends upon the psychological characteristics of the individual.

3. The interrogator can benefit from the subject's anxiety. As the interrogator becomes linked in the subject's mind with the reward of lessened anxiety, human contact, and meaningful activity, and thus with providing relief for growing discomfort, the questioner assumes a benevolent role. (7)

The right brain is smaller and has enlarged ventricles - holes in the centre of the brain. It also shows a shrunken cortex - the brain's outer layer.

EXTREME NEGLECT

HOW STRESS CHANGES A CHILD'S BRAIN

3-YEAR-OLD CHILDREN

Normal

Extreme neglect

■ Prolonged exposure to trauma triggers physiological changes in the brain.

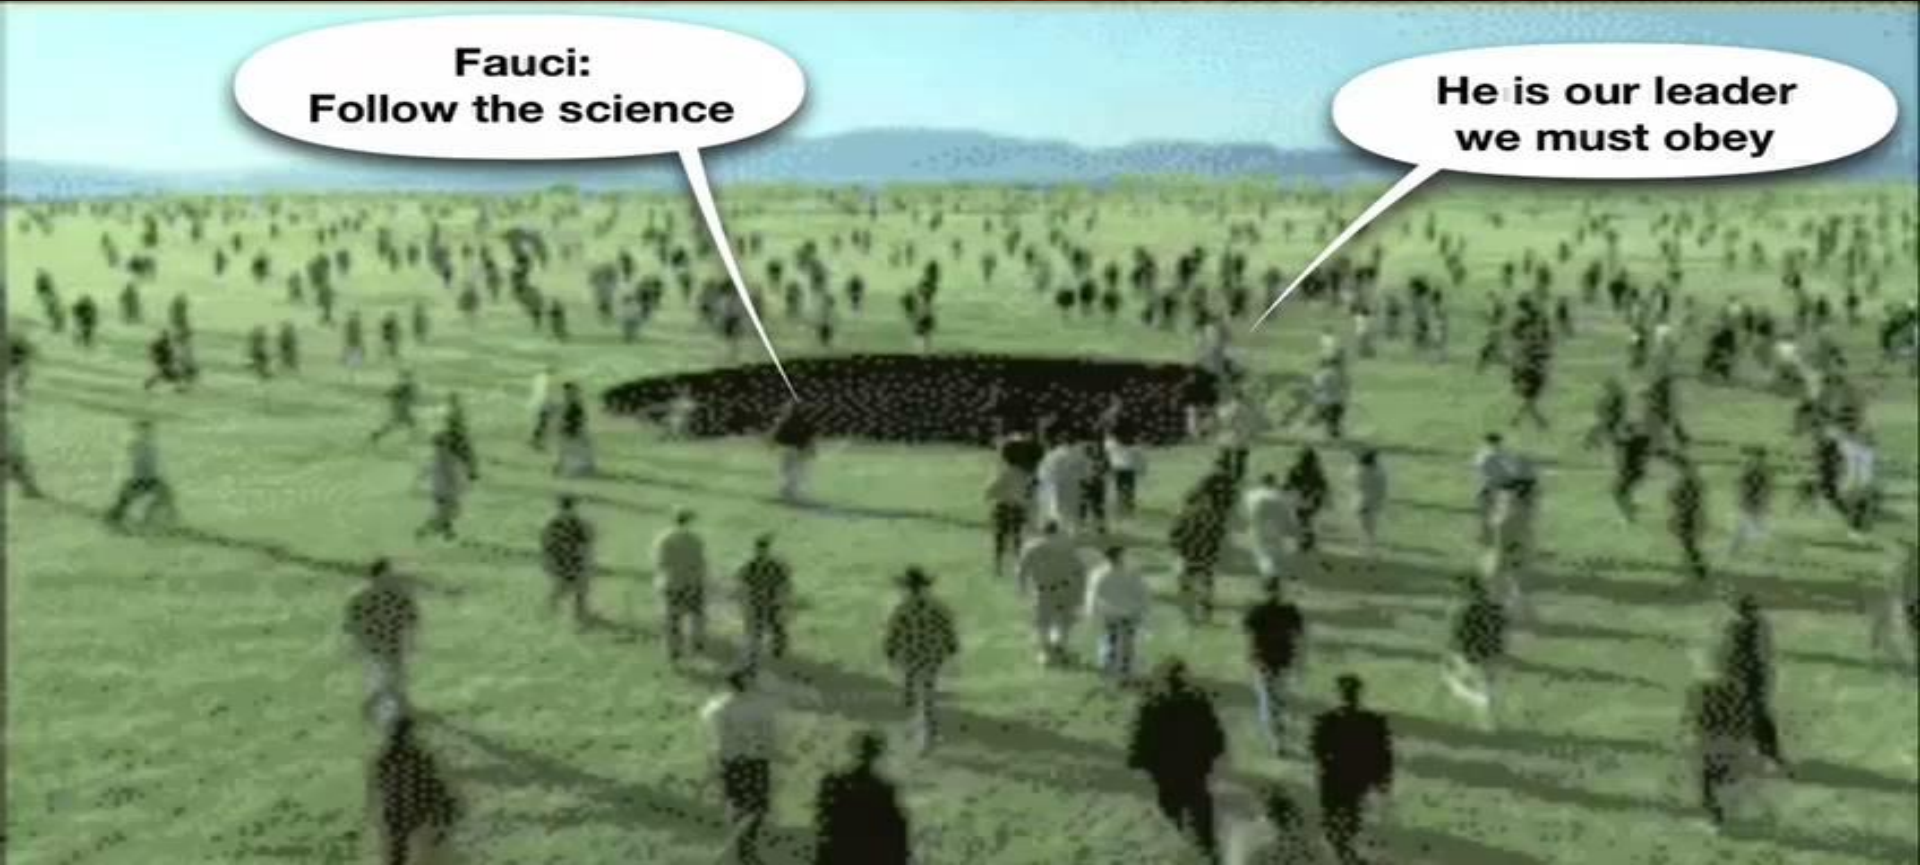

■ Neural circuits are disrupted, causing changes in the hippocampus, the brain's memory and emotional centre.

■ This can cause brain shrinkage, problems with memory, learning and behaviour.

■ A child does not learn to regulate emotions when living in state of constant stress.

■ Associated with greater risk of chronic disease and mental health problems in adulthood.

4. The deprivation of stimuli induces regression by depriving the subject's mind of contact with an outer world and thus forcing it in upon itself. At the same time, the calculated provision of stimuli during interrogation tends to make the regressed subject view the interrogator as a father-figure. The result, normally, is a strengthening of the subject's tendencies toward compliance.

Two little girls dead after jab on Gold Coast

JAN 28 Posted by Editor, cairnsnews

Letter to the Editor

Two more little angels taken by the jabs, just 12 minutes from where I live on the Gold Coast. Bet you won't hear about this on the 5:30 – 6pm news!

Below is the gist of the story:

Extract from what looks like a tweet by Krystle Lee Candy:
“This is so crazy I actually know this person she’s a very lovely lady and her 2 babies passed away. I am so sorry hun and I am here for u if u need me”.

<https://cairnsnews.org/2022/01/28/two-little-girls-dead-after-jab-on-gold-coast/>

Yesterday at the Pacific Pines MedCentre. 9.20am

A Mum, with 3 young girls was attending to have the girls vexed for ["C-word 19"] - I added the words incorrectly - just in case. The girls were aged 6-10.

While I was in the waiting room, the girls came back out of the room where they had been injected, to wait for 20 minutes to ensure they were 'alright'. Within about 10 minutes one of the younger girls hands and face suddenly tightened, her neck muscles were straining and she started convulsing. She was uncontrollable.

The nurse screamed for Dr. Wilson Chin say "you're the vaccine stand doctor, do something".

Then not more than 30 second later, the older girl, aged about 9, did exactly the same thing.

Violent convulsions. The Mum was totally distraught. She was screaming in despair. The doctor could do nothing. All the Mum could say was "I'm so sorry, I'm so sorry".

Don't know what happened to the 3rd young girl, but this makes me so angry, I just cried.

I looked up Dr. Wilson Chin, and yes, he practices at the Pacific Pines MedCentre at Shop 8, Pacific Pines Town Centre, 1 Pitcairn Way, Pacific Pines, 4211.

Editor: Every Premier of every state, the PM, the AMA and the TGA and many others are complicit in the murder of little kids (and many adults). Let us all pray we live long enough to see them at Nuremberg then the gallows. Dr Wilson Chin does practice at the above clinic.

DID YOU SEE THAT? THE MYSTERIES OF SENSORY DEPRIVATION

POSTED BY SUSAN LUBEJKO ON NOVEMBER 8, 2018 IN NEUROSCIENCE | LEAVE A COMMENT

Despite its long history of alleged use in torture, sensory deprivation in a different form has become both treatment and fad. It is now being studied by medical and neural scientists for its potential benefits under the term flotation restricted environmental stimulation therapy (REST).

After a shower and informational briefing, you will insert ear plugs and enter a chamber filled with 1 foot of Epsom salt-saturated water. The salt content of the water increases its density and ensures that you will be able to float without any effort – many people even fall asleep during the 1 hour floating session without any issues in buoyancy. The chamber is long and wide enough to accommodate an adult floating on their back, but narrow enough so that you can reach out and touch each side. Once the chamber door is closed, you are left in complete darkness and silence.

An example of an open sensory deprivation tank. The tank is big enough to comfortably accommodate an adult laying down. (source: Wikipedia)

<https://neuwritesd.org/2018/11/08/did-you-see-that-the-mysteries-of-sensory-deprivation/>

Clean, filtered air enters the chamber so you can breathe comfortably, but it is devoid of odors. You will have already removed all clothing and jewelry so that the only thing touching your skin is the salty water, warmed to your external skin temperature. During the float, you are in complete control. The experience can be stopped at any time, although a majority of floaters do not exercise that option. Now that you are in the tank, simply relax, quiet your mind for one hour, and... float.

While it seems that the consensus on floating is of positive physical and mental health effects, one phenomenon often overlooked in flotation REST research is the propensity for multisensory hallucinations within the one hour floating session. Visual experiences are most common, followed by auditory and somatosensory events.

Norlander, Kjellgren & Archer [1] actually attempt to quantify these experiences in the laboratory setting through detailed questionnaires for study participants before and after a session of flotation REST.

Approximately 75% of the participants reported the feeling of their body disappearing. 64% reported seeing images. 35% heard noises in the complete silence, and 75% of the participants compared their physical experiences to flying.

The Mystical
Art of Confusion
Called
Fau Chi

While these numbers are astounding, the most interesting reported data from the group includes what these participants were seeing and hearing. Common visual hallucinations include flashes of lights or colors, often called phosphenes. However, in some individuals, full visual scenes become clear. For example, one participant reports seeing “horses and a woman that fell off and hit her head.” Five subjects reported meeting “strange beings” – one participant in particular met and received advice from an older wizard-type figure named Araknion. Six heard inner voices of strangers or family members, and many felt themselves become one with the universe. Perhaps most strangely, four participants relayed the experience of being born, in which they were initially in a dark, constricted space and were delivered into the light, some even with the bonus experience of breastfeeding.

Flotation REST in a sensory deprivation tank provides a truly unique experience to unplug from the typical stresses of daily life and encounter your mind in the absence of sensory input. While this environment can be confusing to the brain, our sensory processing machine, the relaxation benefits advocated by experienced floaters appear unparalleled.

Our children are now being raised in fear.

Fear of each other.
Fear of the world.
Fear of illnesses, viruses,
& even the air they breathe.

They are being taught to fear everything.

Prolonged fear is terror, and terror becomes trauma.

The psychological damage being done is irreversible.

REAL ESP EXPERIMENTS INSPIRED 'STRANGER THINGS'

In 1973, parapsychologists got a $52,000 grant from the National Institute of Mental Health. Strangeness occurred.

In the Netflix original series Stranger Things a young girl named Eleven, with a dark past and a deep love for Eggs, is blessed/cursed with the gift of extrasensory perception (ESP).

But Eleven is kept captive by her ESP, force-plunged by agents and her controlling father into sensory deprivation tanks — like a secret lab's upright water tank or in a hacked kiddie pool spread out in a school gymnasium — that allegedly deepen Eleven's abilities.

That's not far from the truth.

In 1973 parapsychology got a vote of confidence from the United States government by proxy of a $52,000 grant from the National Institute of Mental Health — the first grant awarded for parapsychological research that eventually went to the Maimonides Medical Center's Division of Parapsychology and Psychophysics. Based in Brooklyn, the objective was (as then-senior research associate Charles Honorton told The New York Times at the time) to conduct experiments to prove the existence of ESP.

Honorton and his group had previously focused on "ganzfeld experiments," a 1930s sensory isolation technique where the "receiver" relaxed in a chair with headphones and halved ping-pong balls over their eyes, a red light shining on them, putting the receiver in a state of mild sensory deprivation. In the 1950s, psychologists began to experiment with the effect of the environment on ESP. The major two methodological variants of "REST" — restricted environmental stimulation — were either a confinement to a room with some sort of stimulation (like a ganzfeld experiment) or reduced stimulation via immersion in a tank of water. This is the sensory deprivation tank — a place of darkness, silence, saturated water, and a ton of Epsom salt.

“Sensory deprivation has been used primarily to study plasticity in the brain,” associate professor Ladan Shams of the University of California, Los Angeles tells Inverse. “It has to do with learning — how malleable the brain is.”

*When someone is in a sensory deprivation tank, floating in water with a high buoyancy and kept at an outer skin temperature, stimuli like sight are severely reduced. Scientists have learned that when deprivation is very artificial and very transient — you’re not going to spend all day in the tank — then the brain is able to adjust to its new state fairly quickly. However, while the name may be sensory deprivation tank, it doesn’t mean that all of your senses are wiped out when you begin your float.*

“If you stimulate one sense, the activation in that sense may cause activation in other senses — so whether you’re in a tank or you’re in a dark room, there’s usually sensations and simulations that still occur,” says Shams. “In a dark room you can still hear, you can still feel, you have access to all these other sensations. In a tank also — even though, it may be dark, you don’t see; you’re floating in the water so there’s less information coming from our vestibular system — you still have sensations from touch, from sound.”

Honorton's research team — whose grant only lasted for a year and whose influence has been all but scrubbed now — was confident that sensory deprivation was the key to unlocking ESP abilities at the time, much like the scientists who work with Eleven in Stranger Things. Honorton told the Times:

“The evidence of ESP, not only from our work but from a dozen other experiments, establishes beyond any reasonable scientific doubt that it occurs. It is important that research on ESP now shift from attempts to demonstrate that something unusual is happening — which has been the argument over the last 90 years — to what kind of situations and individuals are necessary for it to be obtained.”
